Winter storms hit town

Snow removal poses no money problems

By Deborah Trask
EDITOR

Blustery weather and additional snowfall this weekend kept the Department of Public Works crew busy clearing streets but the years' tally of snowfall doesn't yet threaten town coffers, say officials.

Several hefty snowstorms brought snow removal equipment and crews out in December, and January went out with a final burst of snow. Total snowfall on Jan. 31 covered streets in several inches of soft powder, according to DPW estimates.

> 29 inches have fallen to date as compared to 8 inches by this time last winter.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said an annual snow budget of $191,000 gives the town ample funds to cover the snowfall to date and, barring any major storms, should cover the remainder of the winter. However, weekend storms can strain the best of budgets. "When it snows on the weekend such as this past storm, the workers get double-time," said Maurer.

"Out of a total of 191,000 budgeted, we've used $85,000 for personnel and other expenses such as sand and chemicals, which leaves some $106,000 for the rest of the winter," said DPW Business Manager Mark LaFleur. One of the items which has helped the DPW keep costs down, says LaFleur, is the fact

Ed bill could bring $140K

A state education reform bill passed by House lawmakers may lead to an additional $140,000 in revenue for Winchester's schools, along with some changes to the school system.

Rep. Paul Casey (D-Winchester) voted for the bill when it finally came to the House floor after four days of debate, although he told the Star that the bill was not as sweeping as he wanted. Casey added that he will not necessarily support the final version after it is changed by the state Senate.

Winchester is expecting a $1.2 million revenue increase in next year's budget but will still have to trim proposed department budgets that have come in more than $800,000 over estimated revenues.

In a presentation to the Board of Selectmen at its Feb. 2, Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said total estimated revenues for Fiscal Year 1994 are $33,027,000, but the requests for spending total $33,862,793. Maurer has said that the increased depart-

Players' 'Hound' offers full repertoire of surprises

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The Winchester Players offer playwright Tim Stoppard's "The Real Inspector Hound", a murder mystery filled with slapstick and satire this week to local audiences.

Like other Stoppard plays, "Hound" deals with a play within a play. The stage play is a British murder mystery, but the main theme of Stoppard's play is carried out by two theater critics who watch and comment on the play. In the end, Stoppard is satirizing both the whodunit genre and theatre critics.

Stoppard, who was employed as a critic before he made his mark as a playwright, with cleverness and precision, satirizes play critics and, indirectly, other chroniclers of life. One of the many themes in the play involves critics Birdboot (Wally Gagel) and Moon (Jerry Kaplan) discussing the wall of separation between critics and those they cover. When Kaplan talks about falling in love with an actress he is reviewing, it seems especially relevant in 1993 when some of the public feel betrayed by the relationship between the media and the politicians they cover.

Stoppard's accurate lines and actions lampooning critics are masterfully executed by Gagle, a Winchester resident. Both Gagle and Kaplan, from their pretentiousness and arrogance, pontificating about symbolism in a play that is trite, down to their fidgeting in their seats are superb. At times it seems they're more preoccupied with their own lives than with what's going on on the stage.

The murder mystery is a comical parody of the British mystery with endless twists (a madman threatens to kill the inhabitant of the manor who threaten to kill each other who are being reviewed by a critic who is dreaming of killing another more popular critic). On the surface the plot is hackneyed — characters are

Cig tax takes a chunk out of local businesses

By Peter McCarron
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

One month into the new year, local store owners and employees say it may be too early to measure the effect the state's new cigarette tax has had on business, but they concede it is inevitably driving some customers away.

Holly Hart, a manager at Cumberland Farms on Washington Street, said people are noticeably upset by the price increase. "Sales have gone down, and people are buying more generic cigarettes," said Hart. "People have said they were going to quit or make the trip to New Hampshire."

The 25-cent tobacco tax, passed in the November elections, went into effect Jan. 1. The money from the tax is slated to go toward an anti-smoking campaign, and it is hoped that this tax will encourage smokers to quit because of the price increase.

An employee at the White Hen Pantry, who asked to remain anonymous, said there was a definite drop-off in sales, but he added that most of the customers will probably be back.

"People are more in shock over the price initially, but I think they'll adjust," said the employee. "They (the consumer) always have," citing previous price increases in cigarettes that people eventually adjusted to as evidence.

The clerk said that if someone wants a pack of cigarettes bad enough, they'll buy one regardless of the price. "If someone is driving along and they see a convenience store, they'll pull in if they want a pack (of cigarettes)," said the White Hen clerk.

The clerk added that the tax may stop some younger people from picking up the habit. "In general, I'd say yes ... It might stop the younger people from buying them," said the employee. "It's probably the best thing about this tax. It could prevent them from developing a bad habit while they're still young."

THE COUNTER OFFER
QUESTION: I received a written offer to purchase my property. What happens to the original offer if I make a counter offer?
ANSWER: A counter offer is a combination of a rejection of the initial offer and a new offer by the seller. When the seller demands a higher price, more down payment, or different terms, the buyer's original offer is, in effect, cancelled. Un fortunately, this may burn bridges behind you. If the buyer refuses your counter offer, there is no way you can force him to make good on the original offer because it will have been wiped out with the rejection and counter offer. This is a tricky area of negotiations that calls for expert advice.
THERE ARE IMPORTANT FACTS to know before making a counter offer.

Town counsel calls lawsuit waste of time

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Town Counsel Wade Welch denounced as frivolous and unfounded a law suit filed by the town of Arlington against Winchester over water fees.

Arlington filed suit in Middlesex Superior Court in December seeking $91,000 in fees for 428 Winchester households that use water from Arlington. The houses include the residents of Hutchinson Road, Skyline Drive, and Dunster Lane.

Welch denied that Winchester owed any money to Arlington, saying that the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA) charges municipalities by population, so Winchester has been paying the MWRA for those households since the mid-80s. "They're billing us for services they don't supply," said Welch. "There may be a certain operating and maintenance fee that isn't covered by the MWRA that we're willing to discuss, but they're not willing to talk to us; they just want to sue us."

Welch said he has no idea on what Arlington is basing its law suit. "I don't know where they got their numbers. Are they saying they've paid the MWRA for these houses?" said Welch.

Arlington Town Counsel John Maher conceded that the MWRA is charging Winchester and not Arlington for those houses, but he said a contract, dating back to the 1950s, which states Winchester will pay Arlington for water used by those houses, was still effective. "There were paying religiously and in 1985 stopped payments," said Maher.

Welch said he thought the suit was "much ado about nothing" and hoped Arlington and Winchester could sit down with a representative of the MWRA to determine who is paying for the water being used. "We're just wasting time, energy and money on this legal suit," said Welch. Maher said that he sees little chance for reaching a compromise. "It's fairly certain it will proceed to court for resolution," said Maher.

The area of town under discussion lays on the Arlington town line. It is fed by Arlington water because Winchester's water would have to be pumped up in a complex procedure whereas Arlington's water can be supplied on a gravity-fed system.

In the 1950s, when the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) oversaw the area water, Arlington and Winchester had an agreement that Winchester would pay for their households that used Arlington water. In the mid-80s, when the fee formula was changed from consumption to population, Winchester stopped paying Arlington, Welch said. Welch said the town heard nothing from Arlington until it received a bill in March of 1992.

"There was an oversite in the billing. No bills went out (between 1985 and 1992)," Maher conceded, but he added, "Just because there was no bills doesn't mean they are forgiven."

House fire starts from painting supplies

Firefighters contained a fire at a Forest Street residence that had consumed one room and threatened to engulf the entire house.

On the afternoon of Jan. 27, firefighters battled to contain a blaze that had already spread through the dining room and part of the foyer on the first floor of a two-story house.

The fire was apparently a result of work being done on the house by a Medford paint company. According to fire reports, a spark from an electrical outlet while the painters were refinishing wood work ignited flammable paint materials. The fire eventually engulfed the room before fighters put it out using a fire hose. Captain Steven Osborne said the fire was accidental and negligence was not a factor.

According to fire reports, there was smoke damage throughout the house. The smoke was removed from the house by firefighters using a smoke ejector. It took firefighters just under an hour to put out the fire.

Local man receives probation for alcohol purchase

Sufficient evidence was found to give a local man probation in connection with one count of selling alcohol to a minor and one count of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, say police.

According to Lt. Detective James Pierce, Main Street resident Ricardo Colon, 23, received six months probation after pleading on Jan. 29.

Police brought charges following an undercover operation in November. After being told that a man that lived there was known to buy alcohol for minors police set up surveillance on the evening of Nov. 14, and watched a van with three youth passengers pull up to the residence and the suspect get in.

According to reports, police followed the van to a liquor store in Woburn where the suspect went in and emerged with a bag. The van then returned to Colon's residence, said reports at that time.

The three Winchester youths were charged with minors in possession of alcohol and police arrested Colon at his home.

SENIOR NEWS

Celebrate Valentine's Day at the Jenks Senior Center

Each year Winchester seniors do honor to St. Valentine and this year's celebration will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 1:30 p.m., at the Jenks Center.

There will be entertainment and refreshments.

The Jenks Center Recorder Ensemble will play under the direction of Jennifer Southcott, their teacher. A very special feature will be an adult spelling bee. Participants are asked to sign up now. Prizes will be awarded.

There is no charge for this party but prior registration is required. Sign up at the Reception Desk. There will be two separate clipboards for signing up, one for attendance at the party (in order that refreshments may be planned for) and one for those who wish to participate in the spelling bee.

Planning for 'The Ageless Follies'

A successful intergenerational event occurred last spring and; by popular demand, the "Ageless Follies" will present a second annual production on Saturday, May 1, at the Town Hall Auditorium. There are old and new faces on the Planning Committee which is composed of Winchester seniors and young people from the Youth Center.

The committee co-chairs are Amy Hougland, Winchester Youth Center, and Margie Kalt, Council on Aging; chairing the various subcommittees are: commercial sales, Betty Newell (COA); property, Peter Harris (WYC) and Maureen McWilliams (COA); publicity, Emily McDowell (WYC) and Marjorie Pedersen (COA); refreshments, Emily White (WYC) and Edie Collari, Rena Labadiani and Jo Sturtevant (all COA); tickets, Leslie Parks (WYC) and Don McLean and Phyllis Hollinshead (both COA); wait people, Anne Marrotta and Meg Sobkowicz (WYC). Brian Milauskas will be the director at the follies and overall production is Ashley Rooney's responsibility.

In preparation for this event, the theme of which is "Romance Through the Years," seniors are asked to share their romantic pictures of long ago or more recently as the case may be. Those who wish to donate pictures are asked to drop them off at the Jenks Center in care of Barbara Ciampa. They will be enlarged and serve as a backdrop for the entertainers at the "Ageless Follies." Pictures will be returned.

Formation of local AARP chapter

Gilbert Radlo, chairman of the recently organized Regional Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), recently announced that meetings are held at the Reading Public Library, 46 Middlesex Ave., at 1:30 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month. Winchester residents are welcome at these meetings. Call Radlo at 944-0761 for further information.

Senior school volunteers needed

Lynch School kindergarten teacher Betty Johnson is interested in senior volunteers who may wish to share their interest in a hobby at a kindergarten hobby workshop. This would involve 45 minutes beginning at 11:15 a.m. with a small group of kindergarten children in mid-February for one day only. Seniors are asked to call Johnson at the Lynch School at 721-7013 to volunteer for this project.

Statewide survey of elders' needs planned

An extensive statewide survey to determine the needs of Massachusetts residents 60 and over will be conducted by the Executive Office of Elder Affairs (EOEA), in conjunction with Area Agencies on Aging (AAA), assisted by local Councils on Aging.

The effort is a prerequisite for Massachusetts to receive Title III federal funds under the Older

Co-chairs of the intergenerational "Ageless Follies," coming in May, are Amy Hougland of the Winchester Youth Center and Margie Kalt of the Council on Aging, shown above planning for the event.

American Act (OAA) for a variety of services including finding employment and volunteer opportunities, financial assistance, home care and legal services. The information generated will also provide the state, Minuteman Home Care (the local AAA) and local Councils on Aging with reliable data for establishing service priorities and distributing funds.

According to Elder Affairs Secretary Franklin Ollivierre, Massachusetts cities and towns have supported the effort by providing residents lists. "With help from the AAA's and Home Care Corporations, we plan on mailing a four-page questionnaire to 10,000 seniors whose names have been selected at random." Ollivierre stressed that the individual responses will be treated as anonymous and confidential.

OAA Title III funds are distributed to the local AAA's such as Minuteman Home Care through EOEA to support services for persons age 60 and older. Some of the funding is passed on to the Councils on Aging for their use. Established by the legislature in 1971, EOEA is the principal state agency responsible for mobilizing the resources and establishing innovative programs to maintain the dignity and independence of elders.

Tax assistance program underway

The first day for tax assistance this year was Tuesday, Feb. 2. Trained senior aides will be at the Jenks Senior Center each Tuesday and Thursday, from 9 to 11:30 a.m., until April 8. No appointment is necessary. Assistance is available for preparing both state and federal tax returns. Persons using this service should bring copies of their 1991 reports, all forms needed for completing 1992 returns and all personal records and receipts required for completing the 1992 returns.

Volunteer tax aides who assist elderly taxpayers are not professional tax consultants but each one has successfully completed a course in tax form preparation conducted by the Internal Revenue Service and the State Department of Revenue.

Seniors requiring transportation may telephone the Jenks Center, 721-7136, two days ahead for a volunteer driver. For further information, or for in-home tax assistance for housebound seniors, call Mert Ober, chairman of the Tax Assistance Committee, 729-0114.

Creative writing course resumes

Terry Marotta's course in creative writing will resume for this season on Monday, Feb. 8, at 1:30 p.m. in the Craft Room. These sessions will be held at this time on the second Monday of each month, through June. There will be exercises in the use of figurative language, sustaining a narrative style and emphasis on tone. Members of last year's group, as well as newcomers, are invited to join in. Those interested may sign up at the Reception Desk.

Come and play Rummikub

The Rummikub group continues to meet on Wednesdays at the Jenks Senior Center. Rummikub is a card game that a small group has maintained interest in and the group would welcome anyone interested in learning the game. The group meets at 1 p.m.

Sign up now to be a grandpal

February is the month to begin thinking about being a Grandpal. Seniors and fourth and fifth graders from the Lynch School will exchange a couple of letters, meet face to face at a luncheon at the Lynch School and enjoy a final program in the spring at the Jenks Center. Grandpals will be matched with a student and become friends. Those interested in the program can call the Jenks Center and leave their name with the desk receptionist.

The itching and scratching of winter skin

By Jennifer B. White

Jennifer White is a public relations specialist from Winchester Hospital.

This time of year, when the humidity goes down and the thermostat goes up — the moisture goes out. You find yourself itching and scratching, trying to find relief for chapped and scaling hands and face. Your skin is letting you know it's the dead of winter.

Caused by repeated exposure to the cold, turning the heat up high, and not maintaining sufficient humidity in the home or office, this common winter condition is known to dermatologists as asteatotic eczema, or "winter itch." During the winter, the air literally pulls water from your skin, making water loss up to 75 times normal.

According to Robert O'Brien, M.D., a dermatologist affiliated with Winchester Hospital, relieving the problems associated with winter itch, involves simple, subtle changes.

"Stay away from frequent bathing or showering — bathe no more than once a day," says Dr. O'Brien. "Try to cut down on the length of bathing as well. To avoid further irritation to skin, use a mild soap or cleansing lotion," he adds.

On those especially cold mornings, a hot shower may seem like the perfect way to start the day. However, Dr. O'Brien advises bathing in warm to tepid water, as hot water can aggravate the itchiness of dry skin. Adding oil to bath water can be particularly effective in hydrating the skin.

"After bathing, pat yourself dry instead of rubbing. The most important thing after that is to apply a lubricating cream or lotion to seal moisture in your body while it is still damp."

O'Brien explains that lubricant creams restore lost moisture in the body. They also act as a barrier to further water loss. He adds, "If you're planning a trip up north to ski country where the air is especially dry, you may want to step up the use of moisturizers and decrease the frequency of showering. Keep moisturizing hand and lip creams with you and reapply them frequently during the day."

Though there's an impulse to crank the heat when the winter winds are blustering, O'Brien says, "It's better for your skin to keep the thermostat at the lowest possible temperature, while still remaining comfortable." He also recommends the use of humidifiers, especially for the elderly who are more susceptible to dry skin.

Although much of the itchiness and dryness is normal this time of year, there are also dermatological disorders that need to be seen by a physician. How do you know if your problem is more than common winter dry skin? When the simple measures O'Brien suggests are not taking the itching away and the skin is fissured and inflamed, then it's worth having a doctor take a look. "Sometimes prescription medicated creams are necessary to reduce the inflammation," he adds. Without proper treatment, the winter itch can not only be irritating, but painful, and possibly lead to infection.

Though probably the best cure for winter dry skin is to move to a tropical island, most of us New Englanders will simply have to wait out the weather and look forward to spring which is, hopefully, right around the corner.

Especially for adoptive parents

Adoptive parents have many special questions and concerns. Winchester Hospital now offers private classes to prepare adoptive parents for the arrival of their new baby.

The program includes information on basic baby care, parenting tips and concerns and when to call a pediatrician. For more information, contact Winchester Hospital at 756-2220.

Quitters in motion at Winchester Hospital

Ex-smokers often need extra support and encouragement to adjust to a new way of life once they have given up smoking. Many people find it hard to be around family and friends who are smokers, others look for advice from someone who has successfully quit.

"Quitters in Motion," offered by Winchester Hospital, is an ongoing support group for those who have quit or are trying to quit smoking. This group may be used in conjunction with the nicotine patch as a patch advantage program.

The group will meet from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday evenings at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center, and costs $7 at the door. For information call 932-8200.

Training course for nurses aides

For nurses aides, or those interested in becoming a nurses aide, Winchester Hospital now offers a nurses aides training course, which meets the needs of state requirements for certification.

The course includes learning about activities of daily living, understanding residents and residents rights, infection control, safety procedures, nutrition and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

The course will run from Feb. 1 through 17, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center at 23 Warren Ave. in Woburn.

For price information contact Winchester Hospital at 756-2220.

People helping people at Winchester Hospital

"People Helping People," a support group addressing cancer patients' and their families' concerns and stresses, is being offered at Winchester Hospital. The group brings patients, and their families and friends, together with a health care professional who can give support and encouragement.

Patients who attend listen and talk to other people who have been through the same experience. The group tries to help participants deal with their emotions through a combination of self-help, education and counseling techniques.

"People Helping People" will meet Feb. 10 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. at Winchester Hospital, and continues to meet the second Wednesday of every month.

For more information contact the Social Services Department at 756-2634.

Mom and baby

The Winchester Hospital offers a program just for mothers and their babies ages 2 weeks to 6 months.

The program includes learning about eating and sleeping patterns, developmental stages, breastfeeding and alternatives, parenting techniques, the changing roles of parents and even discusses certain illnesses. A portion of the class is also dedicated to body image and self-esteem. The class meets once a week for 1½ hours on Thursdays for four weeks. For more information and to register, call 756-2220.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Public scrutiny

We've listened to the community's response to our coverage of the racial incident which occurred in January at the high school. Some people called to say we'd done a great job; others weren't quite sure and insisted that the entire incident had been blown out of proportion.

For those who feel the need to be convinced, we thought the students we quoted offered eloquent testimony to the racism that has been, at the very least, a small part of their experience at Winchester High School.

For countless residents, it seems the microscope provided a close scrutiny of the town which proved painful. However, adhering to this newspaper's philosophy not to shy away from touchy subjects, we followed our instincts.

From the woman who insisted there couldn't have been close to 300 people at the candellight vigil because we didn't squeeze them all in our front page photograph; we hear denial.

From the people who expressed embarrassment over the entire incident and invited us to forget it or downplay it; we hear denial.

From the angry people who said one individual does not a community make; we hear denial.

And finally, from the person who decorated the entire front page of the Winchester Star (Pravda) and told us to keep our politically correct trash out of his home; we hear denial.

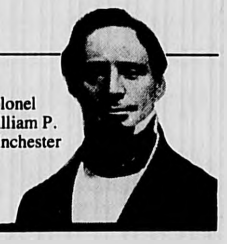

This anonymous letter writer further buttressed his comments by labeling us anti-Christian due to an article on Hannukah which ran in the Dec. 20 Star.

We firmly believe that a full public airing of the incident benefits everyone.

Colonel William P. Winchester

On the Square

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Winchester has always been a pedestrian sort of town with the exception of the outlying hill district.

In 1910, unless you were well to do — or kept a rig, access to the shops in the Square was either on foot or by the electric cars which serves Winchester.

There isn't much left now of the 1910 Winchester square beside the Brown and Stanton Block, the White Block, the original savings bank, the Cullen Block, Hawes Livery Stable and the Town Hall. Truncated versions of Lyceum Hall and the White Building remain but would hardly be recognizable to 1910 eyes.

Most buildings downtown were still of wood frame constructiion and much of that was residential stock. A leisurely stroll down Thompson Street in 1910 revealed 4 two-family homes and 6 single-family dwellings — and on Purrington Place, which was situated about where Winchester Terrace is located today, three single-family buildings were home to numerous working class families.

Four wood frame houses on Mt. Vernon Street (then Pleasant Street) were to come down in 1914 to clear the site for the present fire and police building — while directly opposite the smart rigs for Winchester's devout Methodists stood each Sunday awaiting the finish of services.

In 1910, directly behind the Methodist Church, the Winchester Laundry building arose on the banks of Mill Pond. It was to be Winchester's only "skyscraper" until the advent of Stetson Hall in 1929.

The period was transitional in many respects. There was a combination of oil lamps, arc lights and incandescent fixtures lighting the downtown streets — and though the motor car was seen more frequently, there was still a big horse trough at the base of a hugh elm tree outside the Brown and Stanton Block.

By 1912 a Knox Chemical Engine became the first motorized piece of equipment at Winchester Fire Department — although it had to be squeezed into a dilapidated engine house on Winchester Place.

No trip to town would have been complete in 1910 without a stop at Young and Brown's for a sarsaparilla, to rest weary feet, and some entertainment.

Young and Brown's (now Winchester Drug) featured an amazing mechanical wonder called Encore Automatic Banjo. Housed in a magni-

Departure delayed, so relax

TERRY MAROTTA
COLUMNIST

The morning we tried to fly South, we woke to find it snowing.

Snowing! we growled, looking out at the lacy mantle, draped like needlework on bushes and lawns.

We rushed to pack our bags and dig out the car; fishtailed down the highway to the airport; sprinted in the doors of the terminal to get the news: in the city where our flight originated, it was snowing even harder. We'd be delayed. No one knew for how long.

At first, everyone at the gate looked steamed. Peeved. Deeply disgruntled. But then something nice happened. Knowing we had no control over when we would get to our destination, most of us relaxed. Estimated hours of departure and arrival lost their meaning. Our eyes were opened to the present moment. Here is what we saw:

—That even airport officials have a sense of humor. The one manning the magnetometer stopped our husband, who had set off the alarm, and pulled from his pocket the velvet pouch of our jewelry: lockets and gypsy bangles and flouncy rosettes. "OK, sir!" he smiled, handing them back. "Hope they're not yours, sir!"

—That the young are good at taking things in stride: one youth, amid the crowd packed cheek-by-jowl at the gate, popped on his earphones, stretched out a good five feet of leg and contentedly fiddled with his Gameboy.

—That an 18-inch high airport ashtray makes a perfect sandbox for a toddler to sculpt in.

—That flight attendants, like soldiers, know how to use a break in the action. This one, crisp in her uniform, drew out her book and read for an hour, then by degrees lapsed into a prim sleep, lowering dusky eyelids just the color found on the delicate flanged undersides of toadstools.

—That, looked at closely, many people are found to have added whimsical touches to their dress, meant to express their personalities: A young woman with a ponytail like an explosion of curly pasta, for example, wore a pouch round her neck painted with the face of naughty little Max, who gets sent to bed without supper in Maurice Sendak's "Where the Wild Things Are."

—That children never miss such details. The ashtray sculptor, not yet three himself, began reciting bits of the book about Max; then, his thoughts shuttling down the unobstructed runways of childhood memory, began chanting bits from another Sendak book, in which the small hero falls into a milk bottle and sings — as he now sang, "God bless the milk and God bless me."

—That most adults could use more of a child's simplicity: Hearing his song, this boy's mother broke in crossly. "Do you hear that? They're teaching him songs with GOD in them at that school! It's inappropriate! Songs about God!" Her husband, meanwhile, fumed about the delay. "Haven't you people ever heard of SERVICE?" he demanded at the counter. To which, under her breath, the weary official responded, "Haven't you ever heard of SNOW?"

Finally, after what must have seemed whole geologic periods to this young father, our aircraft arrived and we boarded her. Once aloft, we noticed more things:

—That the tiny old lady near us had chosen to wear all her jewelry with her jogging suit, rather than pack it: knots of diamonds. Strands and braids and ropes of gold.

—That many air travellers read investment magazines.

—That some surprise you: like the well-dressed man by the aisle, for example, who pored over a publication with headlines like "Can he be gay?" and, "Is P.M.S. turning YOU into a witch?"

—That the hands of the old gent beside us were speckled faintly, like a trout.

We hit turbulence then, and the attendant with the dusky lids saw ice cubes spring from a glass and juggle themselves as if by magic in the air before her. The plane pitched and rolled. We looked at the ear of the old gent beside us, thinking, "This is most kids' first view of death: the side of an old person's face in a casket. "Is this dangerous or only scary?" we asked him shakily. Only scary, was the verdict, and not even that to one who'd lived long enough.

He was right. Soon we looked down at the Gulf of Mexico, whose surf tossed its shells carelessly on the shore like a practiced gambler tosses dice. We'd begun up North, where all was pine and crystal. We'd ended down South, where all was palm and pearly. It took the whole day; but we learned a thing or two along the way.

ON THE RECORD

It appears that the Canada geese may have town officials on the run, according to a presentation to the Board of Selectmen by an ad hoc committee to study the situation. Joshua Alper told the selectmen that there were numerous methods of dealing with the geese, but most were time-consuming, expensive, and offered only short-term solutions. Alper said a solution was necessary because the birds carry diseases, ruin vegetation, leave "ubiquitous quantities of feces" around town, and can be violent. "There have been a few incidents where geese have become quite aggressive, either swarming or attacking adults and children," said Alper. Alper said the geese have the potential to carry Eastern Equine Encephalitis, Giardia, and Salmonella.

Alper said the only guaranteed solution is to euthanize the geese, estimated at 200, but a permit is needed from the federal Department of Agriculture, which is reluctant to grant such permits. The department, Alper said, requires a good faith effort by a town that other methods have been tried before depredation is used. For the time being, the selectmen decided to put up a chicken wire fence at Wedge Pond to keep the geese off Elliot Park and a fence at Mill Pond to keep the geese away from Town Hall. The selectmen will also request that police officers give out the fines for people who feed the geese. Alper said police are needed to enforce the regulation "no matter how minor or distasteful it might seem to them." Other methods are under consideration such as turning dogs loose on the geese, having DPW workers scare them off by chasing them with sheets, and egg-shaking. The complex method of egg-shaking, recommended by the government before the step of euthanizing, consists of taking a goose's egg while the goose is away from her nest and destroying the egg. If the eggs are visibly destroyed, the goose will lay more eggs, so the egg must be destroyed by drilling a small hole in the egg and then filling it with wax. Alper said this method takes at least six years.

Thank you from zoo

To the editor:

Traditionally, this is the time of the year to think about the past and dare to develop some plans, hopes and dreams for the new year.

Looking back, we've all been very fortunate. We've had the unique opportunity to make a difference right in our own back yard — save Stone Zoo, and all it represents, from extinction and be instrumental in helping with the first steps in its rebirth and revitalization.

None of this would have been possible without the overwhelming public and private support demonstrated daily in the form of helpful volunteers, monetary contributions, and donations of services and goods. The hundreds of dedicated volunteers have logged an excess of 15,000 hours, both at Stone Zoo and at scores of Friends of Stone Zoo events and fundraisers. They have been involved in every conceivable task at the zoo so that zoo staff could concentrate on their animal care duties and other responsibilities. The staff is a very small group of professionals with relentless dedication to the future of our zoo. The media — radio, TV, newspapers, especially the Winchester Star, has been outstanding in printing our press releases and keeping the public informed about the progress of the Stone Zoo and we are very grateful.

All of these combined efforts, along with your generous donations, have enabled Friends of Stone Zoo to make significant improvements in the facility. To date, you can see that investment in the transformation of the old giraffe house into a gift shop and visitors center; new post and rail chain link fencing all throughout the park; converted elephant pit into a special events amphitheater; maintenance and building equipment and supplies, and ongoing special events for zoo visitors.

You can all feel proud of your part in these accomplishments at the zoo and we look forward to your continued commitment to the rebuilding process of Stone Zoo. Watch for the news about the opening of the South American Exhibit this spring!

Freedom revisited

To the editor:

The word "freedom" is in the news frequently these days. We read about freedom marches, freedom riders, convicts that make their breaks for freedom, and so forth. All this reminds me that I had a taste of freedom once, myself.

I remember that I found it quite exhilarating, but rather frightening, too, especially there under the big dark tree by the water hole, with Old Man Durland's enormous black and white cows staring at me through the fragile fence, shaking their huge heads up and down and making their mouths go from side to side as though they were chewing up something real good — like a little boy, maybe!

The road was awful narrow at that dark and shady place and it took me a long time to sidle past that forbidding, black, wet and muddy spot. But I persevered and finally made it alive. Oh, courage is a wonderful thing! If only we had more of it, oftener!

The way it all came about was this. I finally got fed up with being pushed around by women. There were just too damn many females in my life. I couldn't take it any more, so I ran away. I took off, right straight down the road, and I still think that if it had not been for the delay caused by Durland's cows, I would have made it. On the other hand, maybe it was my legs, they were just not long enough, and they were pretty badly burned, too!

At any rate I had got shut of the cows by calling their bluff, and at last I was making real progress. I shuffled along at a great rate, my bare feet slipping and sliding down to the bottoms of the dust-filled wagon ruts, the hot, fine sand sifting between my toes in the most delightful way.

Everything on that stifling hot summer day was so still. The lush bushes grew up close on both sides of the road, spread out over their tops were the wild grape vines, their broad, spade-shaped leaves white with a layer of summer dust. Little green twirlers, like forked snake tongues, stuck out from the vines, forever reaching for you, it seemed, if ever you got close.

I was way down beyond the big bend now. They would never find me. You couldn't see this far from the house. I had it made! I must have been almost a half-mile from home when I was apprehended. Of a sudden, my frantic mother came rushing up behind me, all out of breath, and before I knew it she was upon me. I can tell you now that it was indeed a humiliating experience to be run down and captured by an adult wearing skirts.

I still feel some of the mortification that I felt then. But there was no help for it. I was captured and brought home, with the huge dark anvil of a summer thunderstorm forming overhead. My short burst of freedom was over and I never did recapture it.

No, I just never did manage to get quite free again, and the women have dominated me ever since, in one way or another. Oh, to be sure there have been advantages; cool milk from the cellar for one thing, and a warm sponging to get the dust off, for another. Clean sheets to sleep on, and dream of freedom, and so forth. But the real ardor, the excitement, the glamour, the adventure, the very stuff of which the good life is supposed to be made, these were gone forever.

I never did learn much more about this sort of stuff. Instead, I learned words and their meanings — words like school, work, weeds, chickens, studies, lawns, crab grass, duty, sweat — words that are the names of things — nouns, they are called, for some reason — how many of these have I not learned since then, and all of them bad, too, it seems!

Well, I often think back on that great adventure and speculate idly on what might have been, had it not been for Old Man Durling's cows! Just supposin' I had actually I made it? Wow! Maybe I could be gone to sea, or something.

WHS faculty state policy on racism and diversity

To the editor:

The following statement was signed by the entire Winchester High School faculty and read to the student body at the assembly for Martin Luther King. We would like to share it with the Winchester community:

The Winchester High School faculty wholeheartedly endorses the Multicultural Policy (Policy 1065) of the Winchester Public Schools, which reads as follows:

"We recognize ethnic and racial diversity as a source of strength and pride. One part of human development is the recognition of one's particular heritage; another part is respect for and knowledge of other people's heritage we share as Americans. We dedicate ourselves to break down the walls of distrust between groups of people, building bridges of understanding instead. We dedicate ourselves to mutual respect and tolerance, to pride in the contributions different groups have made, and to the common bonds that join us."

In addition, we want to make very clear that we deplore discrimination of any kind, including discrimination based on race, gender, religion, sexual orientation, social class, economic status, or physical ability. We deplore harassment, name-calling, and putdowns. We want a school that is physically and emotionally safe for all, a place where students and staff members alike can be confident that they will be treated with dignity and respect. We have worked in the past to create an educational setting which fosters respect and appreciation of differences. We are committed to working together with students and the Winchester community to eliminate discrimination and to promote and safeguard the dignity and value of each member of our school community.

By a 126-27 vote, the Massachusetts House passed a bill on Jan. 29 that calls for an additional $361 million for the state's schools. Winchester's share is $140,000 or $50 a student. The education bill is based on a seven-year schedule that includes increased education spending, reaching $248,000 for Winchester by the year 2000.

However, finding the money to fund the bill may be a problem. Already, Gov. William Weld has proposed a Fiscal Year 1994 budget that does not include the $361 million. "The governor seems to have bought into education reform, but he is shaky on the finances," Casey told the School Committee at a recent meeting.

Also, Casey said that in a caucus, Rep. Thomas Finneran, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, told the House Democrats that he couldn't "guarantee the next few years because we might be broke."

The bill passed by the House does not include any tax increase to fund the measure. There is a measure in the House bill, referred to on Beacon Hill as the "weasel clause", which states that if the state can not provide the funding called for in the bill, the municipalities would not have to abide by the other measures of the bill.

At one point this clause mandated that the sales tax would automatically increase one cent to provide the funding if the state could not find it elsewhere. That section was removed before passage, but Casey said, "It might come back and revisit us in the Senate." Sen. Charles Shannon said a sales tax might find support at the State House. "That might fly if you can earmark it (for education)," said Shannon.

School officials told the legislators that they desperately need the money, noting that they would be in a crisis situation this year if they hadn't received the additional $289,100 last August. "We have a simple request: get us money," School Committee member Jerilyn Heinold told Winchester's state legislators.

Other proposed changes could affect the authority of Winchester's School Committee. Most of the areas relating to school committees were watered down or removed from the House bill, but they could be reinserted in the Senate. There is some discussion on changing the School Committee's power, which currently approves hiring, firing, granting tenure, and ratifying contracts. "As a School Committee member, I may not like that; as a Town Meeting member, I don't think that's bad," said School Committee Chairman Mark Lombardi.

The bill also includes a foundation formula that states that each city and town will eventually have to spend at least $5,600 per child. Winchester, at $ 5,800 per child, is not currently affected.

The bill also asks for more accountability from students and teachers. Students must pass a proficiency test before advancing certain grades and graduating. Tenure would be repealed for teachers and they would have to be recertified every five years.

There would also be a statewide core curriculum for students and an early education plan for teachers.

There has much publicity about the complexity and size of the education bill. At the School Committee meeting, Casey and Shannon said changes were being made continuously to the 120-page bill and the funding formulas were difficult to decipher. "You have to be a hieroglyphics expert to understand it," said Shannon.

"I have yet to find a rep who can explain it to me," said Casey.

At one point in the School Committee meeting, member Edward O'Connell read a section of the bill and asked, "What does this mean, Paul? What does this mean, Charlie?"

The school choice program is not a part of the bill passed by the House, but it is reported that mandatory school choice may take on life in the state Senate. School choice is a pet project of Senate President William Bulger.

Several town officials, including Casey, Lombardi, and O'Connell, have voiced interest in school choice, depending on the specifics. Casey said he wished school choice had been discussed more in the House bill, but he added he would not support school choice that circumvents the approval of local authority. Bulger will probably not get Shannon's support in a Senate vote. "I think, at the present time, it's going to destroy the public school system," Shannon told the School Committee.

The House's bill is scheduled to be taken up by the state Senate next week. If an education bill is passed by the Senate, a compromise bill will be worked out by a conference committee. From there it goes back to both houses of the state Legislature for an up or down vote.

It stars David Dooks as Simon Gascoyne, Glen Doyle as Inspector Hound, Amy Freedman as Felicity Cunningham, Laurie Lapides as Lady Muldoon, Brian Milauskas (Winchester resident and artistic director of Kidstock) as Major Magnus, Tia Van Loan as Mrs. Drudge, David Goldstein as the voice of BBC radio.

Winter storms continue

that no outside contractors are used for plowing. "We haven't hired outside contractors in a couple of years," he said.

The most recent storm kept crews busy over the weekend and prompted school officials to call school off on Monday, Feb. 1.

DPW business manager Mark LaFleur said 29 inches have fallen to date as compared to 8 inches by this time last winter.

According to DPW statistics, a total of 16 inches fell last year.

"Overall I would say we have a good handle on the snow removal operation," said Maurer. Maurer said the Department of Public Works Director Anthony Celli keeps close tabs on the snow budget.

"A couple of years ago we had reversions," said Maurer. This year should come out within the current budget, he added.

Town roads were sanded on Sunday, according to officials, but slick patches due to high winds kept the going treacherous for some motorists. There were numerous fender benders and a few collisions over the weekend. (See police log page 2A for details.)

Maurer projects increase

ment requests are a result of pent-up frustration from several lean fiscal years. However, Maurer cautioned that the departments can't "make up all the ground overnight."

One of the largest budget gaps — almost $600,000 — in is in the education budget. The School Committee has asked for an increase of 1.4 million over last year's budget. School Committee Chairman Mark Lombardi has defended the increase, saying it represents a level-service budget. Lombardi asked that the selectmen consider recertifying free cash to cover the shortfall. At a recent School Committee meeting, Lombardi criticized the selectmen for not providing leadership and direction in the budget process.

In a memo to the selectmen, Maurer discouraged using the free cash option, saying it was a "quick fix accounting gimmick" that will "cause major problems in subsequent years." Maurer compared it to the budget methods that account for the mammoth deficits in Washington.

Board of Selectmen Chairman Thomas Schmitt said the selectmen and the School Committee will continue to meet in the next several weeks to attempt to close the gap. Schmitt said he felt a compromise will be reached that will consist of the School Department making some cuts and the town finding a way to provide some more revenue for the School Department budget.

Despite these disagreements, Maurer is calling this budget one of the most optimistic in years. "This is the first year in the past four years that I have submitted a budget in which we are not making a recommendation or suggestion in a reduction of personnel through layoffs or attrition," said Maurer.

Maurer is also recommending that there be no additional personnel in FY94. This is one of the main points of contention between the town manager and the School Department, which is requesting five new employees — a curriculum director and four new teachers. Acting Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald said that with increased enrollment, the additional teachers will keep the teacher—student ratio the same next year.

The Clerk's Office and the Library Trustees have also made requests for additional personnel that are not in the town manager's budget.

Next year's budget does include provisions for 4.5 percent salary increases for town employees. Maurer based the number on the increase given in FY93 to the teachers by the School Committee.

The total town FY94 budget estimate is $33,027,000, a $1.2 million increase over last year. The town manager has recommended that the municipal budget be increased from 9,650,923 to 10,187,000 and the School Department be increased from $13,526,525 to $14,405,000.

Maurer said the estimated revenues could change and "traditionally shift" between February's estimates and Spring Town Meeting. Maurer said he is expecting local aid to be slightly more than Fiscal Year 1993's $2.3 million but added that "our experience is we can't count on the state for anything until a vote is taken."

According to Winchester's Home Rule Charter, the budget will be handed over to the Finance Committee and Board of Selectmen on Feb. 15. Spring Town Meeting makes all final appropriation decisions.

Cig tax takes chunk

"It is too close to the tax going into effect to see if anything has changed to measure its effect," said Paul Capodanno, manager of The Milk and Bread Store on Main Street. Capodanno said it will take 2-3 months to see if there has been a drop-off in sales. "There hasn't been a lot of comments from the customer about the tax," said Capodanno.

Capodanno said that wholesalers are probably the best indicator to see if there has been any decrease in sales, but they won't be seeing any numbers for a while.

Capodanno also pointed out that the prices are dictated by the state, so retailers can only lower their prices to a certain point.

"Cigarettes are bought by retailers at prices set by the state that the wholesaler can sell them at," said Capodanno.

Capodanno, a Winchester resident, added that because many people make New Year's resolutions to quit smoking it is difficult to measure exactly how much decreased cigarette sales are directly related to the tax increase.

Bortman announces candidacy for School Committee

Eli Bortman

Eli Bortman of West Chardon Road has announced his candidacy for the one School Committee seat that is to be filled in this year's town election.

Bortman has lived in Winchester since 1967, and has been active in town affairs over the years. He served as a member and as chairman of the Finance Committee in the early 1980s, when the town first began to feel the impact of Proposition 2½. His responsibilities while on the FinCom included overseeing the school budget and negotiating labor contracts with the teachers and custodians.

Bortman believes that a very significant part of the current crisis with the school budget stems from the lack of constructive communication between the School Committee and the other major town bodies, the Finance Committee and the selectmen. One of his primary objectives, if he is elected, would be to build the necessary bridges — or actually to rebuild the bridges that used to exist — to promote a sense of common interest among these groups.

"There is no reason for a chairman of our School Committee to be finding fault with the selectmen for lack of leadership," Bortman recently told a group of voters. "We need leadership at the School Committee to show that we have a sense of direction, that we want to improve our educational system, not cut it back any further. The School Committee should be working with the other boards, and with other groups in town, on a continuing basis, acting as champions for our schools. The chairman of the School Committee should not be blaming others for not cooperating, and should not be writing letters to the Selectmen decrying a lack of leadership — it is clear that the leadership vacuum is closer to home," he said.

Election Policy

All candidates for townwide offices March 30 are being allowed free space for two press releases and photographs. The Winchester Star has an election policy in order to ensure that all candidates, regardless of financial backing, receive the same amount of publicity during the campaign.

Each candidate must submit press releases not greater than 500 words or two pages which can be accompanied by a head shot. Those releases may also come in the form of a letter-to-the-editor or event announcement. Deadline for press releases is Friday at 5 p.m. for the following Thursday.

No releases will accepted for the March 25 edition which is immediately prior to the election.

Also letters of endorsement for candidates by others will not be accepted at any time during the campaign. In addition to the releases, the Star will print staff-generated pieces throughout the campaign.

On the Square

ficent quartered oak case, the upright banjo was "played" by a music roll activating picks which plucked out two — steps and marches on the strings.

A nickle in the slot produced such musical bon bons as "charge of the rough riders", "Cecil — Two step" and "Bride Elect March".

Even as the lively music spilled out onto Church Street and innocents rolled hoops along the sidewalk with abandon — change smiled gently in the wings.

Learning to use the public access catalog lesson eight: A Few Final Words

This is the last of the lessons on how to use the Public Access Catalog at the Winchester Public Library. For many people this is the only time that they use a computer, so here are some final tips to help people become accustomed to using it:

1. A search is complete when a user has item-level information. This is the information on the individual copies of the book or other material, and includes the call number, location and status. Keep narrowing down the search by selecting a line number and the return key, until this information is gotten.

2. Until one is familiar with the system, one should be sure to read all of the instructions on the screen. Many of are used to reading or listening only for the information that we judge to be important or relevant. The computer display does not lend itself to this kind of emphasis. Sometimes one can miss the information needed to perform a search the screen isn't read thoroughly.

3. When entering a person's name as an author or subject, type in the last name first. Leave a space between the names; for example: "Hemingway Ernest."

4. Check spelling when typing in a search element. The computer is unable to understand misspelled words. If one is unsure of the last part of a word, and the word is long, try leaving off the end. This is known as truncation.

5. Sometimes a typed term will not be in the database. Sometimes this response will appear: "Your search for an (author, title or subject) did not locate any (authors, titles or subjects) in the database. This means that the computer did not find anything that matches the search. The material requested may not be owned by any of the Minuteman Libraries, or a word may have been misspelled. Try something else or ask a reference librarian for help.

6. Use a light touch. The keyboard is sensitive. If one presses a key too hard, it is read as if the key has been pressed several times in a row.

7. Ask for help. The reference department staff is always ready to answer questions or give instruction.

8. Don't give up. Use of the catalog may seem unfamiliar when one starts to use it, but it is really not difficult to learn, and has many advantages. Users should give themselves a chance to learn it.

Good luck in using the PAC.

Simultaneous chess exhibition in town hall

There was excitement in the Town Hall on Friday, Jan. 22, as local chess expert Tom Richardson circled quickly from chess board to chess board setting down his pieces with speed and authority. On the other side of the table were 11 players hunched over 11 boards, each fighting to stay in the game. At the end of the evening it was clear that expert chess players are tough. Richardson recorded nine wins and no losses with only John Swartz and John Shawcross managing to eke out draws.

Players ranged in age from 5 to 93. After the game Richardson congratulated five-year-old Peter Attarde who started to play this Christmas and who played very well. Richardson said he hoped Attarde will keep on playing as he shows great promise. Richardson's most demanding game was with Cengizkhan Pamir. Pamir, a Gulf War veteran and a chess victor in Germany for the U.S. Army, tried a Desert Storm of his own in a wild and sustained attack:, but eventually Richardson was able to launch a counteroffensive with fatal effect.

The Winchester Chess Club meets every Friday in the town hall from 7 to 10 p.m. Players of all ages and abilities are welcome. Chess instruction is available and various activities are planned. For those who just want to play chess it is always possible to find a game.

Regular chess and instruction is always available, says President Vernon Shoup.

EnKa holds winter meeting and luncheon

The Winter En Ka Society luncheon meeting was recently held at the Parish of the Epiphany. President Nancy Clarke announced a check had been presented to the Society from Debbie Taylor Smith of Sassy Cissie II Gift Boutique. The check represented 10 percent of all store proceeds from "Our Arts for En Ka Weekend" held Dec. 5 and 6. The society was most appreciative of Smith's support of En Ka and its commitment to Winchester. Clarke called for reports from various officers and committee chairmen.

Gifts chairman Danice O'Neil named the following recipients of the En Ka grants for the winter: The ABC program; Lynch International Flags; Winchester High School "Focus Day"; McCall Washington Trip; All-Night Graduation Party; Central Middlesex Association for Retarded Citizens; Community Music Program. Since the October meeting, two members had passed away. Kay Connor spoke in memory of Lorna Symmes, and Shirley Mulvaney in memory of Jackie Heffernan.

Guest speakers were Liz Sayre, Kathy Bodie and member Sandy Thompson. They gave an informative update on the ABC Program and concluded with a slide presentation.

The next meeting will be held in March and will be devoted to plan for the "Field of Dreams" fair to be held May 14 and 15.

BUSINESS NEWS

Bill Barrett and Carlson CEO Dick Carlson exchange a few ideas at a recent seminar at the Colonial Hilton in Wakefield.

Carlson Real Estate kicks off 25th year

Carlson Real Estate, celebrating its 25th year in the real estate business, kicked off the new year on Jan. 6 with a company-wide program featuring international real estate speaker Bill Barrett at the Colonial Hilton in Wakefield.

Over 275 sales associates and managers attended the program on personal marketing and promotion to increase business and referrals. There was also a special afternoon session for managers on managing sales associates for higher productivity. The program was the first in a series of events celebrating Carlson's 25th anniversary.

In his seminar, Bill, who has been nominated by the National Association of Realtors as Outstanding Educator of the Year, shared some of the top prospecting ideas of today's superstars in the real estate industry, plus techniques to lead an exciting and successful life.

Local realtor earns professional degree

Maren Judd of Carlson Real Estate, Winchester, recently had conferred upon her the designation graduate, realtor institute (GRI) by Massachusetts Association of Realtors president, Stephen J. Collins.

The GRI designation signifies 90 hours of advanced in-class real estate education. Realtors who have passed the GRI examinations are recognized as having attained one of the highest professional levels in residential real estate.

The realtor institute is a program of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors and meets the rigid standards set for such programs by the National Association of Realtors. Its purpose is to enable realtors to better service their clients and customers through education and training in real estate.

Padgett scholarship provides relief for local entrepreneurs

The current economy has created numerous concerns for local businesses, especially small, independent, entrepreneurs. Among these concerns is the challenge of providing adequate funding for their children's education.

Sensitive to this situation, the local Padgett Business Services is offering a $500 scholarship to the son or daughter of an independent business owner. Eligibility requirements and an application may be obtained by calling Joseph O'Toole of the local Padgett office at 729-1323.

"Maintaining a quality, profitable operation has presented the local business owner with challenges not always faced by larger corporations," noted O'Toole. "Further, the resources of big business often are not available to the operators of smaller organizations."

A student who applies for the Padgett Scholarship must be a graduating high school senior who plans to attend a post-secondary accredited institution. In addition, the legal guardian of the student must be an active owner of at least 10 percent of the stock or capital in a local business that employs fewer than 20 people.

Deadline for applying is March 1. The award will be based on applicant test scores, high school grade point averages, and education and career plans. The winner will be announced in May.

This local award is part of an international program in which Padgett Business Services will offer more than $25,000 in scholarship monies throughout the United States and Canada. All local winners will become eligible for a grand prize scholarship of $4,000.

A financial reporting and tax planning service for small business owners, Padgett has been in operation for more than 25 years. O'Toole's local franchise is part of a network of more than 180 Padgett offices throughout North America.

"Padgett is becoming the recognized provider of financial reporting and tax planning for small business owners," added O'Toole. "This scholarship program is just one example of our dedication to serving the needs of our clients."

An active and knowledgeable member of the community, Axon is currently the Muraco School Parents' Association president and the treasurer for the Winchester League of Women Voters. In addition, she serves as a board member for the Community Schools Association and is a member of the Principal-Presidents Group.

The school computer room and library have been the focus of many of her hours as a parent volunteer. Axon has also worked with the DARE program and is a past volunteer for the Winchester Hospital.

"Our reputation for honesty, integrity and responsiveness to customers and clients attracts outstanding real estate sales people," said Garvey. "Comprehensive CENTURY 21 training programs and marketing tools enable them to constantly stay aware of changing times and procedures in real estate."

No Mar-auders for Winchester

Carnival atmosphere not such a merry go-round for WHS cagers

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

When Elvis, the Turk, a 1,000-point scorer and the fourth grade chorus from Belmont's Winn Brook Elementary School showed up at Belmont High School last Friday night, the Winchester High basketball teams should have gone home.

Winchester High School
BASKETBALL

Under normal circumstances, the Sachems and Sachemettes would need near-perfect performances in order to defeat the Belmont boys (who were tied for first in the Middlesex League) or girls (who were tied for second). When the games fell in the midst of Belmont Drug-Free Weekend festivities, Winchester never had a chance.

Winchester's boys were stomped by Belmont, 91-50, while the girls were crushed, 59-29, in a Marauder Massacre in front of over 1,200 whooping-it-up fans at Wenner Field House.

The games were remarkably similar. The Belmont girls raced out to a 19-2 first-half lead before coach Bob Gleason removed his starting lineup just 7:30 into the contest. Winchester climbed back into it with runs of 6-0 and 10-2, but Belmont led 29-18 at the break.

With its starters reinserted for the beginning of the second half, Belmont went on a 21-2 tear to finish the Sachemettes. The Marauders, whose only losses have come at the hands of first-place Wakefield (twice) and second-place Lexington, coasted to the victory as the crowd warmed for the main event of the evening.

Senior forwards Kim McBride and Tara Williams each scored 16 points, despite playing just half the game. Winchester was led by Jenna DeSimone, with eight points, and Jenn Russo and Amanda Armstrong, who scored six apiece.

"We wanted to come out early and do it, and we did," said Gleason. "It's nice coming off a tough loss at Wakefield."

Winchester coach Joe DiSarcina, who had his best inside player, junior center Esme Baker, on the bench due to tonsilitis, wasn't surprised by the outcome.

"We were overmatched tonight," he said matter-of-factly. "They were hitting on all cylinders and we were on reserve tank. McBride and Williams are excellent shooters, and their defense caused a lot of altered shots."

Prior to the boys contest, the red carpet was rolled out for the 40-member fourth-grade chorus from the Winn Brook Elementary School, which serenaded the crowd before

WHS wrestler Worthen-other look

Sachem soph Jon Worthen a 'mat rat'

SPORTS WRITER

If there was a wrestling match held in Winchester at any point in the last five years, chances are Winchester High sophomore Jon Worthen was there watching.

WRESTLING

Worthen is your basic "mat rat," a wrestler with a thirst for constant improvement. Since first being introduced to wrestling by William Thilly, the father of 1992 WHS graduate and New England champion Will Thilly, Worthen has spent as much time around the mat as anywhere else.

"I remember he came down to the Recreation Department practices and was a kid who was really turned on to wrestling," said the elder Thilly. "Since then he's always worked hard in the summers to improve."

So far this season, Worthen has been one of Winchester wrestling coach Larry Tremblay's best and most consistent grapplers. He made the jump from the 119-pound weight class as a freshman to the 130-pound class as a sophomore. Through 15 matches, Worthen had posted a 13-2 individual record for the 12-3 Sachems.

His biggest win this season came in a match against Wakefield last Wednesday, Jan. 27, at Winchester High. Facing off against Warrior Jeff Gormady, a powerful senior with three years of varsity experience, Worthen caught the Wakefield competitor in a cradle and pinned him with 45 seconds remaining in the second period.

With a triumphant pump of his fist, the determined Worthen led the way in a 46-21 Sachem rout.

"I had been hearing a lot about this kid," said Worthen. "I was really looking forward to that match. (Pinning Gormady) was a good accomplishment for me."

The Wakefield match wasn't the first time Worthen had raised eyebrows. In last year's Division 2 Central Sectional at Wayland, Winchester had six seniors with championship hopes. After Worthen, the last seed at 119 pounds, was dumped by top seed Tim Hooper, he ripped through the consolation round. Pinning three opponents and decisioning two others, Worthen shocked observers by gaining a sixth place finish.

Gymnasts on beam for another record

Boys track runs to win; hockey skids

SPORTS WRITER

The Winchester High gymnastics team has done it again. For the third time this season, the Sachemettes set a new team record.

Winchester High School
ROUNDUP

In the last home meet for Winchester's five seniors, the Sachemette quintet went out in style, helping post a 122.9-122.7 win over arch-rival Woburn on Tuesday afternoon at Winchester High.

"It was a complete team effort, from start to finish," said Winchester coach Mim Quine. "We were just psyched. We knew it was going to be close, and it all came down to form."

Winchester got two career bests from Margaret Boettcher (7.9 on floor, 8.0 on vault) one from Sara Bond (6.9 on vault), and another from Andrea DeStefano (7.7 on floor). Marisa McCarthy turned in an all-around score of 31.7, as Winchester was once again without the full services of sophomore Megan Foley, who was nursing a sprained ankle.

The team turned in another solid effort last Friday, Jan. 29, at Belmont, but the powerful Marauders were a bit too talented, pulling away from the Sachemettes for a 127-121.2 triumph.

The highlight of the meet was McCarthy's dynamic floor routine, in which the freshman turned in an impressive 8.7 — a career high — in nearly besting Belmont's Allison Jones, the league's second-rated gymnast.

Winchester got season bests from Boettcher (7.5 on bars), Jen Clark (7.6), Cheri Frost (7.4) and Kim Ciano (7.7) on beam.

"After a week of exams, that's pretty good," said Quine. "I could tell in warmups that they were a little off after the long week, but they had just gone through mid-terms. All in all, I think they did fine."

WHS boys race past Watertown

A healthy Winchester High School boys track team turned in its most impressive outings of the season recently, racking up back-to-back wins over Watertown (71-15) and Melrose (51-35). The Sachems improved to 3-3-1 after Saturday's rout of the Raiders at Lexington.

The Winchester girls beat Melrose 52.5-32.5 last Tuesday, Jan. 26, for their second win of the season.

Winchester's boys won 9 of 10 events against Watertown, including 1-2-3 sweeps of the 1,000, the 300 and the 45-yard dash. Andy Ratner got the Sachems off on the right foot by winning the 2-mile in 11:28.2. Matt Tavares captured the high jump (clearing 5 feet, 4 inches), and Justin Simeone won the shot put, with a heave of nearly 41 feet.

> WHS GYMNASTICS COACH

The Sachems put the meet away by sweeping the 1,000, as Ray Regan, Brandon Smith and Bill Doherty took the top three slots. Brian Lindmark (1:26.4) and Angelo Amico (1:27.8) went 1-2 in the 600, while Rolando Oyola (35.6), Darin Byrne (36.4) and Mike Manzo (37.8) swept the 300.

Alan Toussaint was victorious in the best race of the day, edging Watertown's Tony Gentile by 1.4 seconds in the mile. Paul Albiani (5.4), Ben Simeone (5.6) and Rob Donlon (5.7) took the medals in the dash. Ron Hall, Winchester's fastest runner, did not participate.

Winchester coach Tom Kline tried a new combination in the mile relay, and it worked as well. Brian Mannett, Doherty, Tighe Smith and Brandon Smith combined for the win.

The only difficulty Winchester's Len Nolan experienced in making the jump to the next level was gaining a little confidence.

COLLEGE NOTEBOOK

Nolan, a freshman defenseman on the Stonehill College hockey team, became the Chieftain's top-scoring blueliner with a two-goal, one-assist effort in an 8-5 Stonehill win over Wentworth last Saturday.

Considering that Nolan appeared nervous about his chances of even making the varsity squad just a few months ago, his ascension towards the top of the team's defensive corps is remarkable.

"In the first couple of weeks of practice, I really wasn't sure I belonged," said Nolan, a 1992 Winchester High graduate. "The turning point came after a scrimmage, when some of the upperclassmen told me I'd play a lot if I just kept playing the way I had been in practice. I started to feel a lot better about myself."

Nolan's positive self-image seems to have helped him take his game to new heights. After starting the season as the team's fifth defenseman, the 1992 Middlesex League all-star has taken advantage of every bit of ice time. Through 13 games, he had scored three goals and added 10 assists for the 6-7 Chieftains.

According to Peter Powers, Stonehill's second-year head coach, Nolan's play has improved markedly.

"Len's confidence level has risen dramatically," said Powers. "He's played over his head as a freshman. We had an injury and a suspension, and he stepped into the gap and has played extremely well for us. He's been a pleasant surprise."

Against Wentworth, Nolan was at his best, scoring two first-period goals while playing well over half the game at right defense. His first goal, a blue-line blast, showcased the powerful shot which makes Nolan a logical choice to be the point man on the power play.

Nolan's second goal, however, was highlight-film material. Intercepting a pass near his own blue line, Nolan raced up the right side, deked a defender into covering an open teammate, and whipped a 55-foot wrist shot over the shoulder of Wentworth goalie Robert Mills.

Nolan rolling at Stonehill

"Len can really get the team going offensively," said Powers. "He has excellent speed and the ability to make the end-to-end rush. And when he makes the rush, he can get back because he's so quick."

Of course, offense is only half the battle in hockey. In the college game, a defenseman who gets caught up ice can be a liability. Nolan and Powers are well aware of the rookie defenseman's weak points as well as his strong points.

"I played well in the first couple of games, but then I messed up on defense," Nolan admitted. "I know I need to work on making better decisions with the puck. But every time I've screwed up, he's put me right back out there."

Said Powers, "He's young, and he's made his share of mistakes. He's getting a lot better. He's learning from his mistakes."

The 5-foot-11-inch, 170-pound Nolan is still shaking off the effects of bouncing between forward and defense throughout high school. In his freshman year at Boston College High School, where he played for his father, Len Sr., Nolan was a forward. Transferring to Winchester, Nolan played defense as a sophomore, forward as a junior, and returned to the back line as a senior.

> 'He's played over his head as a freshman. We had an injury and a suspension, and he stepped into the gap and has played extremely well for us. He's been a pleasant surprise.'
> STONEHILL COACH

The last change appeared to be the right one, as Nolan went from four goals as a junior forward to nine goals and 14 assists as a Sachem tri-captain in his senior campaign.

"I really didn't settle in (to defense) until last year," said Nolan. "I've always switched back and forth between forward and defense. I got serious about learning how to play defense last season. I still consider myself more of an offensive defenseman, but I'm working on becoming better defensively."

Powers has an extremely young Chieftain team. Just two seniors dot the lineup, while seven juniors, three sophomores and 12 freshmen supply the bulk of the talent. Powers stated he thinks Nolan will be one of the key ingredients in building a strong Division II team.

"He's going to be a great player for us in the future," Powers said. "We're looking forward to having Len around."

Worthen a Sachem 'mat rat'

"I don't know who was more surprised — the coaches or my teammates," said Worthen. "I know I was."

According to Tremblay, Worthen is the type of athlete who isn't particularly outstanding in any one facet, but is very good at many things.

"He's not great on his feet or on top or a great escape artist," Tremblay said, "but he has an unorthodox style which makes him difficult to wrestle. You know he'll give a consistent effort every time out. He's one of those kids you can criticize who takes it well. He listens and learns."

Worthen is one of the keys to a Sachem team which may regain its Middlesex League stranglehold as early as next season. Winchester currently has just two seniors on its roster. The sophomore class, however, boasts a number of promising athletes, including Dan Boffo, Dave Carr, Dave Drazen, Anthony Feola, Nathaniel Haskell, Mike Marino and Wes Matthews. Tremblay expects Worthen to be one of the Sachems' best.

"He's a great competitor," said the 12th-year Sachem coach. "The team already looks to him for leadership after what he did at the sectionals. If he continues to improve and gets stronger, it seems like he'll be a very good wrestler."

WHS runners start to find pace

"We ran well in both meets," said Kline. "We're still getting most of our points from the middle and short distances. We have a group of six guys who can run anywhere from the sprints to the 600, but we're weak after that."

Winchester was nearly as impressive in its victory over Melrose. Regan won the 2-mile, Ben Simeone the high jump, Oyola the 600, Shaun Oliver the 300, Ben Simeone the hurdles and Hall the dash.

The Sachemettes made it a Winchester sweep of Melrose when they defeated the Lady Raiders. Winchester winners included Deidre Murdock in the 2-mile, Amy Oakes in the high jump, Betsy Kean in the 1,000, Nicole Malouf in the 300, Sarah Bonnell in the mile, Colleen Campbell in the dash and the mile relay team of Diana Grande, Laura Aleo, Kean and Malouf.

"Overall it was our best team performance," said Winchester coach Joe Cantillon. "We're getting good performances from a combination of veterans and new people."

Sachem skaters can't sweep Belmont

Winchester's hockey team figured it had chances for a couple of wins last week, but the Sachems lost twice, falling 6-3 to Lexington before getting blitzed by the Marauders of Belmont, 5-0. The team saw its record dip to 1-12-1.

Last Wednesday, Jan. 27, the Sachems had a 3-2 lead in the third period against Lexington, but the Minutemen exploded for four goals in a span of 4:03 to skate away with the win. Winchester had moved in front on two Anthony Bonfillo goals in the third, but Lexington roared back with goals from four different players. Bobby Marrone scored the first Sachem goal, while Andrew Brown had 26 saves.

Belmont paid the Sachems back for a 3-1 Winchester win last month by crushing the Sachems, 5-0, on Saturday at Belmont. Mike Condelli had three goals and an assist and registered nearly as many shots (9) as Winchester did as a team (11). The Marauders shelled Brown with 39 shots and scored four power-play goals in a penalty-filled contest.

Winchester caged by Belmont

Elvis (actually Rev. Norman David) made an appearance.

When the game finally began, it was all Belmont. With a packed house cheering his every move, Belmont's senior point guard Mark Mulvey set of in pursuit of his 1,000th career point. Sixteen points shy of the mark, Mulvey scored 15 in the first half as Belmont exploded to a 57-15 halftime bulge.

After former Boston Bruin Derek "Turk" Sanderson gave a halftime speech on the dangers of drug and alcohol use, Belmont went back to work. The Marauders kept the pressure on for the first 3:33 of the second half, until Mulvey passed the milestone, tossing in a left-baseline 3-pointer to the joy of the raucous crowd.

Winchester couldn't get much going offensively or defensively, but junior co-captain Brian Keefe still managed to pour in a game-high 23 points. Keefe went over, around and through the Marauder defense in earning his toughest points of the season.

"We walked into a tough situation," said Winchester coach Quinton Dale. "Basically, I think Belmont had a lot going on, and coming off the Lexington game (an 82-72 overtime loss), we were very flat. (The evening) was a big event for Belmont. We tried to get equally pumped, but when the game started, we just weren't prepared. The kids felt going in that they could win both (Lexington and Belmont) games."

Winchester got back on track Tuesday, improving its record to 6-8 with a 47-44 victory at Wakefield. Peter French was the star of the game, tying Keefe for team-high honors with 12 points and running the offense smoothly.

"Pete had a terrific game tonight," said Dale. "He played like a senior. He controlled the floor and make some big shots for us."

Dale also cited the improved play of senior Kirk Minihane, who came off the bench to add nine points.

Dale said that despite the team's losing record he will enter the Sachems in the open tournament at the end of the season.

"We'll definitely go," said Dale. "I really think we're capable of playing with anybody on a given night."

Mite AA's unbeaten in league

Mini-Sachems improve record to 16-0 in conference

With wins over Natick, Needham, Shrewsbury and Stoneham, the Winchester Youth Hockey Mite AA team improved to 33-1 overall and remained undefeated in the Middlesex Youth Hockey League.

On Sunday, Winchester beat Stoneham, 10-0 to improve to 16-0 in league play. Goalie Billy Notartomaso led the way, stopping nine shots (including six in the first period) to record his second straight shutout. Hat tricks by David Notartomaso and Rugo Santini along with Tim Armstrong's two goals and single tallies by Anthony Martignetti and Brad Harvey provided the scoring power. Assists went to Kent Harrington (2), Michael Russo, David Notartomaso and Santini. The Mites fired 32 shots on net.

The Mini-Sachems faced off against Shrewsbury on Jan. 24 and skated off with a 5-0 victory. The game was highlighted by Santini's four goals and one assist, which put him over the 100-goal mark for the season. Linemates Andrew Clavette (1 goal) and Harrington (three assists) combined with Santini to produce nine points.

Bob Norberg, Martignetti and Danny Spang each had assists, while defenseman Adam Delaney-Winn helped Billy Notartomaso secure the shutout. The line of David Notartomaso, Russo and Jason Spang put constant pressure on the Shrewsbury goalie. Charlie McLeman, Tim Armstrong and John Lynch kept up the attack, but were unable to dent the opposing netminder, who made 32 saves.

On Jan. 17, Winchester beat Needham 9-1. This game was highlighted by defenseman Danny Spang's first career hat trick. All three goals were scored on blistering slap shots from just inside the blue line. Clavette also notched a hat trick, adding one assist for a four-point day. Santini (2 goals, 3 assists) and Lynch (1,1) completed the goal-scoring. Martignetti, Russo, Harrington, McLeman and Armstrong each added assists to lead the Mites.

The Mites beat Natick 7-0 on Jan. 10. Santini had five goals and one assist, while Russo and McLeman picked up a goal and an assist each. Clavette, Lynch and Brad Harvey added helpers to round out the scoring.

Winchester's next opponent is arch rival Woburn. The Mini-Sachems meet the Mini Tanners on Sunday, at 5:20 p.m. at the Burlington Ice Pallace.

Wrestling Boosters seek contributions

The Winchester High School Wrestling Boosters Club, like the wrestling team, faces a season of rebuilding. The boosters are rebuilding the club's bank account.

The huge success of the last few years' teams proved costly. Costs such as team trophies, awards and tournament expenses have left the boosters in the red this year and seeking any contributions, large or small.

A contribution will assist in the purchase of athletic shoes and other equipment for those unable to buy their own. The boosters provide wrestling camp scholarships for deserving wrestlers. They pay fees for the fall wrestling instruction offered through the recreation department for the community. In addition, the boosters hold an annual banquet to recognize the team's achievements.

Easter Seals, Celts sponsor Shoot-Out

Hundreds of area youngsters have received invitations from Boston Celtics star Kevin McHale to participate in the 1992 Easter Seal/Boston Celtics Basketball Shoot-Out. Local schools and youth organizations have also been invited to participate.

"We know kids like to shoot baskets in their yards, their neighborhoods and churches," said McHale, the Shoot-Out chairman. "Kids can take part in the Easter Seal Shoot-Out on their own or at their schools."

Youngsters participating in the Shoot-Out collect pledges from family and friends for each basket shot during a three-minute period. A parent, teacher or coach signs off on the number of baskets completed. The shooter collects his or her pledges and sends the money to Easter Seals to fund services for people with disabilities.

Last year, nearly 5,000 youngsters raised $150,000 in Basketball Shoot-Outs all over Massachusetts. The top 100 fund raisers joined McHale and Dee Brown in the Boston Garden for a special basketball clinic.

This season, 100 winners will attend the clinic at Boston Garden on March 28, 1993.

Basketball Shoot-Out sponsors include TJ Maxx, WLVI-TV 56 and WWLP-TV 22.

For more information, call David Lamacchia at 1-800-922-8290.

New England Mariners baseball seeks players

The New England Mariners Baseball Club is currently recruiting potential players to compete in the 1993 AAU/Junior Olympics.

The club is an organization governed by the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) of the United States. The AAU/USA Junior Olympics, founded in 1948, has consistently been one of the largest and most successful programs of its kind in the world of amateur athletics.

The program consists of over 20 Olympic sports with several age classifications, allowing America's youth the opportunity to compete in regional and national tournaments. The Junior Olympics program teaches youngsters the importance of setting goals and striving to achieve and exceed those goals.

In 1992, the New England Mariners 14-year-old baseball team won the gold medal at the national championships, held in Minneapolis. The 13-year-old team placed 17th in the nationals held in Des Moines, Iowa.

In 1993, the Mariners will organize teams to compete in the 10-, 11-, 12-, 13-, 14- and 15-year-old divisions at the regional level, with the goal of competing nationally. The national championships will be held in the following cities in August: age 10 — Cleveland; age 11 — Kansas City; age 12 — Minneapolis; age 13 — West Des Moines, Iowa; age 14 — Cocoa Beach, Fla.; age 15 — Des Moines, Iowa.

The Mariners Club is organized as a supplemental program to local leagues such as Little League Baseball, Bambino Baseball, Babe Ruth Baseball, Senior Little League, Town Pony Leagues and American Legion Baseball. Each player is encouraged to participate in an organized baseball program in the spring and summer in their community.

The Mariners' goals not only include instruction and copetition, but development of friendships and memories that will last a lifetime. Most important, the program offers an alternative to alchol, drugs and other temptations the street corner has to offer.

The Mariners baseball teams will be selected from a series of clinics to be held in March for the 13-15-year-old divisions and in April and May for the 10-12-year-old divisions, at selected sites throughout New England. Clinics and practice sessions will be scheduled primarily on weekends to accommodate players who may have to travel long distances. Players will also be required to participate in fund raising activities to contribute to the expenses of the program.

The Mariners Baseball Club will hold its second annual instructional Winter Baseball Camp from February 13-20, in Orlando, Fla. Major League scouts and players will instruct on the proper mechanics of throwing and pitching, defensive drills and strategies, and hitting. The camp is limited to 24 players, ages 11-16, so as to give each player personal instruction and attention.

The organization is currently accepting applications for coaching positions. These positions are on a volunteer basis, with some expenses paid from the general fund. All travel expenses to the national championships are paid in full.

All player and coaching inquiries should be addressed to: New England Mariners, Inc., 12 Cornell Road, Beverly, Mass., 01915.

Names can really hurt us

We all want our adolescents to feel good about themselves and have the confidence to constructively deal with negative comments made by their peers. The next program in the Parent to Parent series on dealing with differences and valuing diversity is designed for parents of middle and high school students. This program will be held Thursday, Feb. 4, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., at the high school.

Dr. Hillary Turkewitz, a clinical psychologist who is the coordinator of Parent to Parent, will briefly present the results of a survey on students' attitudes. This survey, which was developed by the high school administration and Choate Health Management, the organization providing clinical counseling services at the high school, asks students about the types of prejudice they have seen or experienced and about their ideas on helpful interventions.

Turkewitz will also show a videotape produced by the Anti-Defamation League, entitled "Names Can Really Hurt Us." This videotape, which has been shown to all middle school students, is a powerful study of a group of adolescents struggling with the problems that arise when their peers have difficulty valuing differences. Since much of the filming takes place during a discussion group designed to help with these struggles, the tape offers strategies for students.

A major focus of the Feb. 4 program will be strategies for parents. Participants will work on developing a list of strategies to consider so that every one can work together to move closer to the goal of creating a community where differences are always recognized, understood and valued.

This program is co-sponsored by The Multicultural Network. Funding has been provided by the En Ka Society.

Artists to be featured

Starting in February, Winchester Art and Frame will feature one of their regular artists each month. Owners Dave and Ethel Smith said they had been considering this for some time and it has been enthusiastically endorsed by the artists. "Not only is it a way of promoting original art, but it enables the public to become better acquainted with each of the individual artists," the Smiths said. "While some of our customers may have several pieces by an artist, they may not know them personally. This will provide that opportunity."

Artists scheduled for the first three months are Winchester's own Carolyn Latanision in February and Ann Bannister in March followed by Carol and John Collette in April. Other artists to follow are Diane Urwin, David Olson, Frank Kaczmarek and Bill Maloney. Discussions are underway with several others from the States and Canada.

A reception will be held on the first Thursday of each month with the artist in attendance. Refreshments will be served and the informal atmosphere should provide the opportunity for everyone to talk at some length with the artist.

Latinision reception

A reception was held for Carolyn D. Latinision, Winchester Art & Frame's first "Artist of the Month," recently at the gallery and frame shop at 47 Church St. As "Artist of the Month," her work will be featured throughout the month of February. The public is invited to the reception but for those who cannot make it, her work will remain on display throughout the month and all are invited to view it anytime from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Latinision is a Winchester resident and maintains a studio in Woburn where she works and teaches watercolor classes. The subjects of her paintings include still life, landscapes and seascapes.

Latinision's work is represented in 25 corporate collections here and in Japan, as well as in many private collections in the United States, Europe, Japan and Australia.

Latanision has won numerous awards in regional and national competitions. In 1989 she was a "Top 100" winner in the National Arts for the Parks competition, having been chosen from over 2,400 entrants. Her painting of the Woburn Public Library, a national historic landmark, toured museums throughout the country for one year. In 1990 she was a top 200 semi-finalist in the same competition.

This past October she won the fourth place medal and prize in the Pennsylvania Watercolor Society National Juried Exhibition. During the same month she was invited to become a juried member of the Catharine Lorillard Wolfe Art Club in New York City while also exhibiting in their 96th Annual Open Exhibition at the National Arts Club.

This month she will be exhibiting in two New York national juried exhibits, the Audubon Artists and the National Society of Casein and Acrylic Painters.

Latanision was recently commissioned to paint "Secret Garden II" as a basis for a limited edition of 435. This courtyard retreat on Beacon Hill was done as a six color lithograph. During the reception she had a limited number of Artist's Proofs and signed them for those who purchased one.

This month the gallery in the Winchester Library features the landscape photographs of Jeffrey Trubisz. A winner of an honorable mention in the "Islands" magazine contest in 1991, Trubisz's photographs display a liking for the remote beauty found in Alaska, Hawaii and the Pacific Northwest. His pictures have been selected for the cover of the Earth Day calendar for the past two years. The library exhibit will feature the New England region as well as western locals.

A Winchester resident since 1976, Trubisz is a language arts instructor in the Melrose public schools and conducts slide travelogues for the Boston Center for Adult Education.

Ronald Barton of Leslie Road was elected First Reader, and Julia Fellows of Kenwin Road is now Second Reader.

Mr. Barton is employed in the Treasurer's office at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, while on leave from CSC Index, a management consulting firm headquartered in Cambridge. His wife, Dorothy Leonard-Barton, is a professor at Harvard Business School. Gavin and Michelle, their two children, are graduates of Winchester High School.

Fellows, formerly of Duxbury, is supervising Editor of Science at Prentice Hall in Needham (part of Simon & Schuster). A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, she holds a Master's degree in Ecology from the University of Utah.

As First Reader, Barton conducts the principal part of Sunday services, which begin at 10:30 a.m. His duties also include preparing his own selections of readings for Wednesday evening meetings at 8:00 p.m., which he reads at the beginning of the hour. Then individuals have the opportunity to stand and give testimony to the healing power of God, as they have proven it in their daily lives.

The church is a branch of the Mother Church (The First Church of Christ Scientist) in Boston. Branch churches democratically elect their church officers from within their own lay membership. These include Readers, an Executive Board, a President, a Treasurer and a clerk. There is regular rotation in office.

The Pastor Emeritus, Mary Baker Eddy, ordained the Bible (King James Version) and her textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, as Pastor for all Churches of Christ, Scientist. Each Sunday sermon, as outlined in the Christian Science Quarterly, is comprised of correlative readings from both books. Also known as the "Lesson - Sermon", it is studied daily by students of Christian Science prior to its being heard at services.

Outgoing Readers are James Andrews of Wedgemere Avenue and Amy Gates of Summit Avenue.

Jackie Dee's class at the Neighborhood Cooperative School received this drawing from 5-year-old Alex Elliard who attends the Maternelle Bonnenfant School in Saint-Germain en Laye, France, (Winchester's Sister City). Mrs. Dee's class was introduced to our Twin City by Judy Muggia. The class then sent pictures of castles to France along with a letter. The French Schoolchildren responded with approximately 23 drawings and a letter signed by the 5-year-olds. They are interested in receiving information regarding, McDonald's, Mickey Mouse, Native Americans and skyscrapers.

Achtung!

The Winchester High School German Club is gearing up for their biannual exchange with the Albert Einstein Gymnasium in Munich, Germany. This year the German visitors will arrive March 25 and depart April 15. Approximately 15 students from Winchester will return the visit in June.

The club has been working hard to sell candy to support the activities for these visitors to local excursions. They are preparing applications and trying to find host families for the additional students and the two teachers who will serve as chaperones. Anyone who can host a male or female visitor for three weeks or even part of that time is asked to inform the club. The man does smoke, but is willing to do so outdoors.

Additionally, volunteers are needed for time, energy or ideas concerning local excursions for the visitors. The club would appreciate any help possible. For more information, or to volunteer, call the school at 721-7020 and ask for Pat Smith.

McCall Middle School teacher receives state award

McCall Middle School recently announced that one of its technology teachers, Charles Corley, has been elected Technology Teacher of the Year by the Technology Education Association of Massachusetts at its annual convention. When interviewed about the award, Corley stated that "he was surprised and shocked, but very pleased to receive such a prestigious honor from his colleagues." He was also most appreciative of the many letters of support that he received from the Winchester school community.

Corley has been a technology teacher in Winchester for the past 19 years. His fellow teachers at McCall Middle School describe him as an excellent middle level teacher who is really tuned in to the "transition years." His curriculum and his teaching techniques are geared to meet the wide variety of needs of middle school students. He has been actively involved in updating McCall's technology curriculum to make it more interesting and relevant for his students. Upon entering one of Corley's classes, one observes individual or small groups of students actively engaged in building/testing carbon dioxide-powered racing cars, gliders, rockets, bridges or towers. His students are clear as to what is expected of them and they work hard to meet these expectations.

Beyond the classroom, Corley is fully involved in the total life of the school. He is co-chair of the McCall Computer Committee, chairman of the Philosophy Review Committee as part of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges Inc.'s school accreditation process and an after-school intramurals supervisor.

Saturn of Natick, Saturn of Boston

Location: 1000 Worcester Road, Natick; 1585 VFW Parkway, Rt. 1, Boston

Number of Employees: Saturn of Natick and Saturn of Boston each employee approximately 27 people.

History: Owner James E. Clair Sr. has worked in the auto industry since soon after World War II. Having begun his career as a salesperson for Thompson Buick in West Roxbury, he eventually was promoted to sales manager, then purchased the business from the Thompsons when they retired in the mid-1950s.

Clair renamed the business to Clair Buick, and moved in 1968 to 1575 VFW Parkway, West Roxbury. Since then, Clair Buick has grown to house Toyota, Jeep-Eagle, Honda, Mercedes Benz, Porsche and Audi, in addition to Buicks, and is now known as Clair International Motor Cars Inc. All in all, Clair owns more than 20 automobile franchises.

In February, 1991, Saturn of Boston opened at 1000 Worcester Road, with the grand opening of Saturn of Natick following in October of the same year. A third dealership, Saturn of Danvers, recently celebrated its premier in November,1992.

Types of Cars Sold: Saturn

Hottest Sellers: According to Walter Doviak, general sales manager of Saturn of Natick, all models of Saturns are hot sellers. "We sell out of everything we get in," Doviak said.

Best Deal on the Lot: Saturn SW2, a new station wagon model, is available at a base, 5-speed manual transmission price of $12,195, excluding sales tax , registration and a $300 destination charge. Among numerous features, this wagon includes a standard driver's

New wagon offers smart styling, standard air bag

Saturn introduces two new wagon models for 1993, an SW1 at $10,895 and an SW2 at $12,195.

In response to customer demand, the automaker said all 1993 models will include a standard driver's side air bag as well as a number of product and technological refinements.

"We've been able to hold the line on cost increases and have continued to price our 1993 models to be the best value in the competitive small car market," according to Saturn Vice President of Sales, Service and Marketing Donald W. Hudler. "On a comparably equipped car-to-car comparison, the overall incrase for the new year averages 2.5 percent."

In response to customer demand, the automaker said all 1993 models will include a standard driver's side air bag.

Saturn's wagon offers front wheel drive in a five-passenger, five-door vehicle, and is equipped with motorized passive belts.

The base Saturn SW2 automatic's options include cruise control, power windows and locks, right-side rear-view mirror, anti-lock brakes and traction control, sound system aluminum wheels, fog lamps and floor mats. Major standard accessories include power steering, tilt steering, rear defroster and wiper. The sound system is an AM/FM-stereo radio cassette with four speakers.

Featuring a 1.9-liter engine, the Saturn wagon's EPA is approximately 24 mpg city, 27 mpg highway. According to "Car and Driver" magazine, "It churns out 124 horsepower and 122 pound-feet of torque and spurs the wagon to 60 mph in just 8.7 seconds..."

A different kind of car company

Being a "different kind of car company", which is Saturn's way of doing business, often means challenging traditional ways of listening to your customer.

In reaching its target market and capturing the highly successful Asian imports in the competitive small car market, Saturn has begun building a world-class retail network which plans to have more than 250,000 owners by the end of this year. From its distinctive advertising to its unique market area strategy, Saturn is hitting its mark with a family of fun-to-drive, affordable, high-value cars.

Saturn captured 2.27 percent of the 1992 model year U.S. new car market through June 1992, with about 70 percent of the buyers being "plus business" to General Motors. These Saturn owners would have purchased a non-GM car if Saturn was not on the market. More importantly, 50 percent of all Saturn buyers say they would have purchased an import car. And in the import-dominated California market, 80 percent of Saturn's buyers are listing a non-GM vehicle as their second choice option.

Specifically, Saturn buyers mention the Honda Civic, the Honda Accord and the Toyota Camry as their "second choice" behind the SL/SLI or SL2. The Toyota Celica, Mitsubishi Eclipse and Ford Probe are the most frequently named second choice vehicles for the SC. This "plus business" or conquest sales figure matches Saturn's goal for the year and surpassed its 1991 conquest total of 67 percent.

Ongoing Saturn surveys show 97 percent of Saturn owners say they would "enthusiastically recommend the purchase of a Saturn car – and the retailer" from whom they purchased it – to a friend, relative or neighbor. In addition, Saturn has earned the industry title of best domestic car in two of the 1992 J.D. Power & Associates reports. In Saturn's first year in the Customer Satisfaction Index (CSI) survey, it earned the title of "Best Domestic Carline." Saturn was also recognized as the best domestic nameplate in Power's Initial Quality Survey (IQS) in 1992.

ATHENA Award to honor local professional woman

Nominations are now being accepted

HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

"I was nervous dealing with the public... it was a different experience for me," says Michelle Fashjian, describing her reaction to entering the business world full-time.

Perhaps it is this experience that led Fashjian to the ATHENA Award, an honor to be presented to an outstanding business or professional woman in the MetroWest area.

Fashjian, who heads the rental department of MetroWest Inc., joined the automobile business full-time in 1985 after raising her children. Since then, her department has grown from housing six rental cars to owning more than 100. This year, her business joined forces with Oldsmobile and a unique opportunity presented itself.

"When we became an Olds dealer in March, I saw the (information on the) award in the packet and immediately bought (into) it. I thought it was a great idea," recalls John Fashjian, owner of MetroWest Inc. and husband to Michelle. He says the award offered him the opportunity to honor women, such as his wife, who deserve recognition for their successes in the work force.

The ATHENA Award was begun in 1982 by Michigan's Lansing Regional Chamber of Commerce. It was created to annually reward one woman who not only strives for and achieves success in her chosen field, but also one who opens paths so that other women may follow. The Oldsmobile Division of General Motors and its network of dealerships teamed up with the Lansing Chamber of Commerce in 1985, and began offering the award on a local level to women nationwide.

Fashjian and her committee of five will judge applicants based on their support of the goals of professional women and their commitment to excellence, , among other criteria. In addition, nominees must demonstrate dedication to professional and community improvement, and should exhibit initiative and creativity in the pursuit of these goals. Women who live or work in the MetroWest area are eligible.

Nomination forms are available at the MetroWest Chamber of Commerce, as well as through MetroWest Oldsmobile, located at 1199 Worcester Road, Route 9, Framingham.

Deadline for submission of these forms is Feb. 12, with the presentation of the award scheduled for the Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting in April.

This one happens to be quite beefy. We call it a spaceframe. It has some 3,000 structural welds. And "crumple zones" that help dissipate the energy of a crash before it reaches the passenger compartment. A fact that helps Moms and Dads sleep more comfortably, too.

ASK ABOUT THE PLAN!

What you should know about motor oil

By Norm Hudecki

The shelves of auto-parts and discount stores are lined with products — some effective and some not — that are aimed at the car owner's desire for high performance, long engine life and trouble-free motoring.

Car owners can be confused by the constant wooing of manufacturers, if the mail I receive is any indication. Each week, I get a number of questions about the effectiveness of engine-oil supplements. These products, priced at $18 to $25 per quart, claim to add a protective coating on engine parts that enhances performance and prevents wear.

My response to these questions is simple: Quality engine oils leave the manufacturer with all the additives needed to provide peak performance. When those additives become burdened with dirt and other contaminants, usually at three months or 3,000 miles, the oil should be changed.

These quality motor oils are tested rigorously to ensure that they will perform in your engine. While they are well-marketed, supplemental additives simply are not necessary. In fact, they can upset the delicate balance of additives in your motor oil and, in some cases, may affect the validity of your car's warranty.

Here are some other reader questions from the mailbag:

I have a 1977 Dodge motor home with 80,000 miles and a 360 engine, which occasionally gives off a little smoke. Should I switch to another type of motor oil?
R.L., Lakewood, Colo.

Those smoke signals your motor home is sending may be caused by either fuel or engine oil. Generally, blue smoke is from oil and black smoke is from gasoline.

If the problem is fuel-related, I would suggest you try adding Pyroil Fuel Injector Cleaner or a similar cleaner to your fuel system. This supplement, poured into the gas tank, will help to clean the fuel-intake system without harming catalytic converters and oxygen sensors.

If your engine is consuming oil, an overhaul may loom in your future, especially with the mileage you have on your vehicle. You may be able to fend off this expensive procedure for a while by using a heavier viscosity oil, such as 20W-50.

Does altitude have any effect on the performance of motor oil? Because I live in a high-altitude area, should I use any certain type of oil?
L.K., Denver, Colo.

Lubrication requirements are not affected by altitude. A more important consideration in your area of the country is ambient temperature.

To get your car through those frigid Rocky Mountain winters, I'd suggest a multi-viscosity oil, such as a 5W-30. As always, it's a good idea to consult your owner's manual or automotive service representative for specific recommendations on your car.

I heard that the major automakers recommend 5W-30 and 10W-30 oils only because they help to boost the fuel-economy ratings of their cars. But don't lighter oils also increase wear in an engine?
R.B., Frederick, Md.

By helping the engine run a little cooler and more efficiently, SAE 5W-30 and 10W-30 engine oils do help engine manufacturers meet federal fuel-economy requirements.

Rather than increasing wear, however, lighter-viscosity engine oils such as 5W-30 actually reach the critical valve train and bearing areas more quickly than high-viscosity oils.

Lighter oils reach the valve train in about 10 seconds at minus 10 degrees. A 20W-50 oil, on the other hand, will take more than three minutes to flow freely through the engine.

He also is a technical consultant to the racing teams of 1992 Indianapolis 500 Champion Al Unser Jr., Mark Martin, Joe Amato and other top drivers.*

Dealer profile: Saturn of Natick, Boston

air bag, a twin cam 16-valve engine, 15 in. wheels and an am/fm stereo with speakers.

Service: These Saturn dealerships employ technicians who are General Motors-trained Master Mechanics. In addition to the employees' GM training, Saturn of Natick and Saturn of Boston send its technicians to Saturn schools.

Saturn service departments are equipped with the most modern equipment, and loaner cars are available to customers whose cars must be held for more than 24 hours.

Philosophy: At Saturn of Natick and Saturn of Boston, the price of a vehicle is clearly posted, and is the lowest price possible. According to Doviak, the philosophy of his dealerships is simple: "We treat the public the way they want to be treated. We don't hassle prices; we let the people walk into our showrooms and roam at their discretion. There is no one that attacks them at the door, and, if you read all the JD Powers reports, we (the Saturn dealerships) are the leader in the auto industry."

In Case you haven't heard about our

NO PRESSURE PRICE

What Are We Doing?

Our industry has spent millions of dollars surveying car buying consumers to find out what it is they disliked about buying a new car. Results were consistent. Simply put, people just didn't like the experience. Consumers are intimidated by the game playing, the mystery, and negotiation. And that's a terrible way to have to do business–for both of us. So we are changing all of that by introducing

NO PRESSURE PRICING!

Forget the Agony of Wheeling and Dealing.

Our no pressure price is already marked on every vehicle. We know you're smart enough to know what you want. And to ask questions if you don't. So the solution was obvious. We set the prices of every vehicle at the lowest possible discount. No negotiating on the price. Each vehicle is marked for the right price, the only price, THE NO PRESSURE PRICE.

You Said You Hated Being Pressured, So We No Longer Have Salesmen.

We have re-assigned our sales team and hired full-time, salaried employees. These product specialists will serve as customer assistants. They are expert in product knowledge, benefits and features of all our new cars. They are ready to assist you with information and demonstrations. By paying everyone a salary rather than a commission, we've removed the temptation to pressure a customer and sell the car at a higher profit.

Unlike Some Dealers ...

who use the one price philosophy for their short term sales programs, Automall's NO PRESSURE PRICE is a long term commitment on our part to simplify the car buying process. Now you can buy with confidence. You can rest assured that the price that you see is the same price you or anyone else would pay.

THE WINCHESTER STAR

VOLUME 112, NUMBER 6 | SERVING THE RESIDENTS OF WINCHESTER SINCE 1880 | THURSDAY, February 11, 1993

EVENTS

■ Census forms
Town Clerk Carolyn Ward is asking that all Winchester residents return their census forms that have yet to do so. Ward said that approximately 1,500 census forms have not been returned. Unreturned forms are costly and time consuming, said Ward. The Clerk's Office will soon have to send out a second form to those who did not return the first form.

NEWS

■ Budget forum
The Community School Association will sponsor a budget forum on Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Social Studies Open Area of Winchester High School. Chad Maurer, the town manager, Tom Schmitt, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and Mark Lombardi, chairman of the School Committee, will all be in attendance to explain the budgeting process in detail and to answer any questions the public may have as to how budgets are prepared, the fiscal outlook for the town and how the various town committees and boards work together to prepare the town of Winchester for the fiscal year ahead.

■ Host families
Host families are needed for 25 French students who will be visiting Winchester for two weeks during spring vacation, April 17 through April 30. The students are sponsored by FIVE, a nonprofit organization based in Nice, France. The students are between the ages of 13 and 15 and are visiting the United States in order to take part in American family life and improve their English language skills. Seventeen boys and seven girls will need homes. If interested in hosting a student, call Carol Henderson at 729-1971, as soon as possible.

Super search on hold

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The search for a new superintendent is back at square one after both finalists withdrew. Also, acting Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald was given an opportunity to interview for the position but declined the offer.

After a lengthy and contentious discussion, School Committee members voted 3-2 at their Feb. 9 meeting to interview Fitzgerald for the open position of superintendent. The committee had expressed a desire to move the process along as quickly as possible and would have made a decision whether or not to hire Fitzgerald after his interview. "It would be foolish to bring him forward if we were not going to vote one way or another," said School Committee Chairman Mark Lombardi.

Town looks to free cash

By Deborah Trask
EDITOR

Town officials and the School Committee will address budget shortfalls and overages for the next few months in order to answer one key question: Will the town borrow from the future to pay for today?

While some selectmen recommended a closer look at projections for 1994 and called the town manager's estimates on reversions or overages, "too pessimistic", still others said it was too early in the budget process to close the door on any option that would bring more cash into play.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer spoke to selectmen on Feb. 7 and explained the process of determin-

Five new places to feed your face

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Winchester residents will begin enjoying an expanded menu when five new restaurants begin serving customers this month.

The arrival of new businesses are welcome news to The Chamber of Commerce, which has seen its share of closings during the recession. "Anyone coming to town is good news," said Catherine Alexander, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. "Winchester is an attractive and profitable place to do business ... People who have a good product or service will be more than successful."

Dunkin Donuts, which opened a year ago, will have some competition for breakfast customers when Bagel Land opens across the street. Jerry Tilbor, the owner of the Main Street restaurant, however, sees bagels as more than just a breakfast food. The restaurant will be serving bagel sandwiches, pizza bagels, and hot dog bagels.

Bagel Land, which will open in the next few weeks, is a franchise with locations on Cape Cod and Canton. The restaurant, which has a seating capacity of 12, will open at 6 a.m. Tilbor says Bagel Land's selling point is that they make all their bagels right at the eatery. "Basically, it comes in as flour and we make the bagels," said Tilbor.

Lin's Wok Restaurant will be opening on Main Street near Lake Street. The Chinese food restaurant, which is scheduled to open in April, will have a seating capacity of 12. The restaurant will open at 11 a.m. until 10:30 p.m.

The Cross Street Cafe will open in place of what was once a sub store. The restaurant, which will open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 8 p.m., will be selling muffins and coffee in the morning and subs, salads, and soup in the afternoon and evening. The restaurant will be able to seat 12.

Owner Kathryn Trider says the restaurant, which will open in two weeks, has undergone major renovations and upgrading since it was the Sub Station.

On Swanton Street a new restaurant called PaPa'a Pantry will be serving a wide variety of foods from bacon and eggs to roast beef and potatoes. The

Healthy babies are goal of BCH midwifery program

By Deborah Trask
EDITOR

Winchester resident Kam Ling Lucia Ma is one of five graduates of Boston City Hospital's nurse-midwifery program, the state's first training program to certify nurse midwives to practice in Massachusetts.

"Delivering a baby is a very exciting experience. It's just wonderful to bring such joy to parents," said Ma. A resident for the last several years, Ma says her own experience when her two-year old daughter was born led her to further pursue a career as a midwife.

"I felt so lost following the birth. I could have used more reassurance," said Ma. Part of the special touch that a midwife offers is the followup for the first few days after a baby is born, she says.

Ma is currently a registered nurse seeking an opening as a midwife after recently finishing her clinical work at Quincy Hospital. Since licensed midwives are certified by the State, she can practice wherever delivery privileges are extended. Currently Winchester Hospital doesn't extend privileges to nurse midwives.

The precertification training program at BCH is affiliated with the Frontier School of Midwifery of Kentucky. The six-month program, made possible by a grant from the Department of Medical Security, prepares foreign trained midwives who are registered as nurses in Massachusetts for practice and licensure in the United States.

Ma is a native of Hong Kong and England and said the program offered her an opportunity to use training she had received in England. She works at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital as a nurse, but found the program difficult since she was on call for the last three months with a beeper she carried 24 hours a day.

Kam Ling Lucia Ma

"I found it very nerve-wracking at the beginning. When the beeper sounded I didn't know why I was being beeped. I was called to deliver a baby or to simply answer a question," said Ma.

Underserved mothers in the Boston area are the primary concern of the program's organizers, according to Boston City Hospital's representative Lora Chatfield, a certified nurse midwife. Chatfield says the program addresses the need to "get more providers out in the community for the medically underserved."

"The focus (for midwifery) is on facilitating what we see as a normal process, not a disease," said Chatfield. "Midwives individualize and personalize care during the birth and after. I think for low-risk births a midwife offers the best of all worlds. We work in collaboration with a physician and provide a very safe option," said Chatfield.

Boston Health Commissioner Judith Kurland said BCH plans to seek American College of Nurse midwifery accreditation for a permanent training center at BCH for foreign trained midwives and certified nurse midwives not currently practicing.

Further information about area programs can be obtained from Fran Ventre, chairman of the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of the American College of Nurse Midwives at (508)-373-3578.

Deadline passes on nomination papers

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The deadline for submitting nomination papers for the town election on March 30 has passed, not with a bang but a wimper.

The majority of the seats up for election this year will be filled in uncontested races. "It seems pretty calm to me," Town Clerk Carolyn Ward said of the election just after the deadline on Feb. 9. "There does not seem to be as much interest town wide or in Town Meeting this year."

The eight spots that will see no competition are: Harry Chefalo and Alan Schoennegge for the Planning Board; Randall Swartz for the Board of Health; John Sullivan for moderator; Deborah Pavelle and Ellen Browning for Library Board of Trustees; Richard Cary for Housing Authority; and Maura Looney for Northeast Regional Vocational School representative.

Much of the attention in the next two months will focus on the three contested races in the upcoming election. In the race for the one open School Committee seat, incumbent Mark S. Lombardi will be challenged by Eli Bortman. In the contest for the open Board of Selectmen seat, former Finance Committee Chairman Ralph Johnson will face Carol Mullin. For the open spot on the Board of Assessors, incumbent Mark A. Lombardi will have to fend off a challenge from Susan Lippman.

Incumbents Thomas Schmitt, Board of Selectmen; Pat Wells, Housing Authority; and Maryann McCall-Taylor, Planning Board, are not seeking reelection. Schmitt and McCall-Taylor announced earlier this year that they did not intend to run for reelection. Wells drew papers but did not submit any by the deadline.

Man arrested for OUI after chase to Woburn and crashing his car

Winchester police arrested a Woburn man for operating under the influence of alcohol after leading police on a high speed chase before crashing his car.

In the early morning of Feb. 5, police observed a car heading north on Main Street near Sheridan Circle at a high rate of speed. According to reports, police observed the operator crossing the center line.

Police pursued the vehicle, and when they activated their siren, the operator accelerated his vehicle up to 60 mph. The operator would not pull his vehicle over, and he shut off his lights as police chased him into Woburn, police said.

Police temporarily lost sight of the vehicle, but found the car in a gas station lot. The operator had driven his car into two soda vending machines and a building. The motor vehicle had extensive front end damage and one machine was on its side, completely destroyed, police reports said. Police measured 150 feet of skid marks before the point of the accident.

According to police, the operator, a 24-year-old Woburn man, was unsteady and splurred his speech. He was given and failed three sobriety tests. The operator was arrested for OUI, failing to stop for a police officer, and speeding.

On his usual rounds Boston Edison's Overhead Lamp Patrol Jim Stone discovered an old unlit lamp. In relighting the lamp in the Winchester Terrace, he dedicated it to four men who patrolled the same seven towns he now patrols. Frank Benoit (Doc), Don Harris patrolled the streets at night searching for lamps that needed to be lit for a total of 100 years, says Stone. Hot stick driver Paul McGurdy and Al Lambiase were also included in his dedication. "I could never hope to fill these guys shoes," said Stone.

The Lamplighter

My tea is nearly ready and the sun has left the sky.
It's time to take the window to see Leerie going by;
For every night at teatime and before you take your seat,
With lantern and with ladder he comes posting up the street.

Now Tom would be a driver and Maria go to sea,
And my papa's a banker and as rich as he can be;
But I, when I am stronger and can choose what I'm to do,
O Leerie, I'll go round at night and light the lamps with you!

For we are very lucky, with a lamp before the door,
And Leerie stops to light it as he lights so many more;
And oh! before you hurry by with ladder and with light;
O Leerie, see a little child and nod to him tonight!

Local forum targets racism

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Local multi-cultural organizations are sponsoring forums and workshops for the purpose of keeping the fight against prejudice on the town's agenda.

The Multi-Cultural Network, along with Parent to Parent, sponsored a forum called "Names That Hurt" on Feb. 4. The forum for parents, teachers, and school administrators dealt with prejudice and discrimination among students.

The speaker, Hillary Turkewitz, stressed that discrimination should be viewed as more than racism, sexism, and anti-Semitism and includes bias based on class, appearance, and background. Turkewitz said there is a not too subtle connection between discrimination based on clothes and discrimination based on skin color. "We need to talk about intolerance in general, not just sexism or racism," said Turkewitz.

Turkewitz said a recent survey of 104 Winchester High School students done by Choate Health showed that 98 percent of the girls and 83 percent of the boys believe there is prejudice at the high school. "This is not an indictment (of Winchester) ... It is impossible to grow up in this country without experiencing some racism," said Turkewitz.

Students in the survey said they experienced or witnessed prejudice based on race, religion, class, appearance, and clothes. Some students said they felt discriminated because they were not athletic or they came from the city or they were deeply religious.

Turkewitz advised confronting racism — both in ourselves and in others — as the first step to combating it. Turkewitz said the age-old advice that parents give children — ignore those who hurt you — is antiquated. "Somewhere along the line that became the ineffective strategy ... They are using an old strategy that really isn't working for them," said Turkewitz. In the survey, only 15 percent directly asserted themselves when faced with prejudice.

Turkewitz said the key was to open communication with children, to find out if they discriminate or have been discriminated against. This is no easy task according to the survey, which says that students think that the best way parents can help is by staying away.

"We can't assume how our kids feel ... As much as we try to raise our kids with certain beliefs ... we don't know what they're picking up," said Turkewitz. She added that those who have been targets of prejudice rarely tell their parents.

In order to keep the subject of discrimination from vanishing from the town's menu, Turkewitz said there is an effort to institute town policies that discourgage discrimination.

Turkewitz said that there will be similar forums for students, parents, teachers, and town officials in the future. Turkewitz said parents interested in a three-series workshop on teaching their children to respect diversity and deal with prejudice can call 729-7945.

SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Dr. Duberman to discuss colon surgery

Diseases of the large bowel and colon are especially apt to occur in older individuals. Early diagnosis and surgery, when indicated, improve the outcome and prolong life significantly. Several aspects of these problems will be explained by Dr. Eric D. Duberman, Winchester Hospital staff surgeon, on Wednesday, Feb. 17, at 10:30 a.m., in the Pond Room at the Jenks Senior Center. Duberman is a graduate of Columbia University and Columbia University Medical School, and served his residency at Tufts New England Medical Center. He now specializes in colon and rectal surgery.

This program is sponsored by the Winchester Seniors Association's Health Committee. There is no charge for admission, and all are welcome. No prior sign-up is necessary.

Pictures... Pictures... Pictures

Planning for the intergenerational "Ageless Follies," to be presented in May, is well underway. However, in keeping with the theme of this year's event, "Romance through the Years," the committee wants to borrow your romantic pictures. There has been some response to the request for pictures but more, much more, is needed. Look back in your photo albums and share some of those romantic moments. All pictures will be returned. Whether they are shots of romantic times in "the old days," or in more recent days, write your name and telephone number on the backs, and drop them off at the Jenks Center, in care of Barbara Ciampa. They will be enlarged and serve as a backdrop for the entertainers at the Ageless Follies.

Do you need assistance with your tax returns?

Each Tuesday and Thursday, from 9 to 11:30 a.m., trained senior aides will be at the Jenks Senior Center to help Winchester elders in the preparation of their state and federal tax returns. This service will continue until April 8. No appointment is necessary. Those who wish to use this service, be sure to bring 1991 reports, all forms needed for completing 1992 returns, and all personal records and receipts required for completing the 1992 returns.

Volunteer tax aides are not professional tax consultants but each one has successfully completed a course in tax form preparation conducted by the Internal Revenue Service and the State Department of Revenue.

Seniors requiring transportation may telephone the Jenks Center, 721-7136, two days ahead for a volunteer driver. For further information, or for tax assistance at home for those who are house bound, call Mert Ober, chairman of the Tax Assistance Committee, 729-0114.

Anyone for checkers?

Each Wednesday from 1 to 4 p.m., a group of Winchester seniors gathers in the downstairs lobby at the Jenks Center to play various card and board games. Both men and women are involved in the various games, which include cribbage, cards, scrabble, chess and Rummikub. The search is on now for checker players. Come to the Wednesday afternoon Games Day at the Center.

Marcia Wood, Council on Aging Vice President, who arranged for a program for seniors recently, at the Jenks Senior Center, on tax abatements and exemptions for eligible Winchester seniors. Also shown is Dan McGurl, Winchester director of Assessments, who was the speaker.

Home health care program

A presentation will be made by Kimberly Quality Care Representatives on several aspects of medical assistance for individuals in their homes who formerly might have required hospitalization. Sylvia Usmari, business manager, will lead the group, and Pilar Von Lazar will describe various types of care and coverage by Medicare, insurance or private funds, while Liz Hartnett will speak about the aides themselves who actually perform the different kinds of treatments.

This program, sponsored by the WSA Education Committee, will be presented on Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 10:30 a.m., at the Jenks Center, All are welcome. There is no charge for admission, and no prior registration is necessary.

Schedule for "Grandpals 93"

The "Grandpals" program is getting underway and now is the time for seniors to sign up as Grandpals to the fourth and fifth graders at the Lynch School. It is important that the "matching up" process involving seniors and students be completed as soon as possible, if the event is to be the success this year as it has been in the past. The proposed schedule for the program is: March 12, first letter to senior from child with picture; March 26, senior response letter to Lynch student; April 8: second letter to seniors, survey enclosed, invitation to Brown Bag Lunch; April 28: RSVP regarding Brown Bag Lunch from seniors; May 13: Brown Bag Lunch at Lynch school, bring survey; lunch and afternoon program, Grandpals and students meet face to face for the first time; Friday, May 28: Jenks Senior Center reception and finale.

Remember, February is the month for sign-ups, and there are 76 fourth and fifth graders to be matched to the same number of seniors. Sign up, participate, and be assured of a memorable and most gratifying experience.

Call the Jenks Senior Center at 721-7136 and leave your name with the Desk Receptionist.

Creative writing

If you have not already signed up for Terry Marotta's course in Creative Writing, it is not too late to do so. The first meeting of the group this season was held on Monday, Feb. 8, and the sessions will continue on the second Monday of each month, through June, at 1:30 p.m., at the Jenks Senior Center.

Members of last year's group, as well as newcomers, are cordially invited to join. There will be exercises in the use of figurative language, sustaining a narrative style, and emphasis on tone. If you are interested, sign up at the Reception Desk.

Medicaid liens and recovery of expenses

The following update has been prepared by the Senior Citizens' Law Project of Cambridge and Somerville Legal Services, to help keep seniors aware of issues affecting them.

Medicaid is a government program which covers the medical expenses, including nursing home care, of people with few assets and low income. Elders thinking about long term care and their families are concerned about losing their homes because of a belief that the state will "take their homes" to pay for nursing home care. This article will explain when the state is entitled to be reimbursed for Medicaid coverage and how it can recover the money.

The state cannot "take" the home of a Medicaid recipient, even if the recipient is a resident in a nursing home. Medicaid recipients are permitted to keep their homes if they are their primary place of residence. In order to be eligible for Medicaid, the recipient's assets cannot exceed $2,000. The primary place of residence is not counted as an asset and is exempted from this rule.

However, the state, under specific conditions, can place a lien on the home of a Medicaid recipient who is in a nursing home so that the state is notified when someone attempts to transfer or sell the home. The state can recover only costs incurred for nursing home care or for medical assistance provided after the recipient reaches age 65. The state uses liens as a way to ensure that it will be able to recover these expenses. Even if a lien is in place, the state cannot force a sale of the house until after the Medicaid recipient passes away and the estate has gone through probate procedures.

When a person enters a nursing home or other medical institution, the Department of Public Welfare (the agency that administers the Medicaid program) may require a statement regarding whether she intends to return home. If the recipient does intend to return home, she may be asked by the Welfare Department to submit a signed statement of her intentions. This statement is based on the recipient's subjective intent. All that matters is that the nursing home resident believes she will return home, even if this belief is not realistic. The statement must set forth when and why the resident left home and can be submitted by the resident or her representative. If the existing medical evidence supports this belief, the house continues to be considered the primary residence, no lien can be placed on the home, and the recipient would continue to receive Medicaid coverage.

A "notice" lien can be placed on the home when there is medical evidence (such as a doctor's opinion) that shows that even though the resident intends to return home, she cannot reasonably be expected to so. This lien requires that the state be given notice if someone attempts to sell or transfer the home. If the recipient is discharged from the nursing home, the lien is dissolved. A lien cannot be placed on the home if the recipient's spouse, blind or disabled child, or child under 21 is living in the home or if a sibling is living in the home who has an equity interest in the home and has resided there for at least one year prior to the resident being placed in a nursing home or medical institution.

If the resident states that she does not intend to return home, the house becomes a countable asset for Medicaid purposes. The resident would then become ineligible for Medicaid and be required to sell her home or liquidate the assets in the home to pay for medical care. There is a nine-month grace period during which the recipient must attempt to sell the house at fair market value while maintaining her Medicaid coverage. After that, the resident must make a good faith effort to sell the house for a reasonable amount (at least ⅔ of fair market value). Once this income is spent on medical care or other permissible expenses, the resident would become eligible for Medicaid coverage.

After a Medicaid recipient passes away, the state is entitled to recover the costs incurred while she was in the long-term care facility after she reached the age of 65. The recipient's estate may become liable for all of the expenses which Medicare incurred during this time. In this case, the home might have to be sold to pay these expenses.

The state cannot do anything to recover expenses long as there is a surviving spouse or child who is blind, disabled, or under the age of 21 residing in the home. In addition, Medicaid lien and recovery rules do not apply if the recipient had long-term care insurance that complied with Massachusetts regulations when she entered the nursing home.

In short, the state cannot force a sale of a Medicaid recipient's home while the recipient is alive unless she is in a nursing home and states that she intends to stay there permanently. Otherwise, the state can make a claim against a Medicaid recipient's estate but cannot collect on that claim until the recipient passes away.

ABOUT TOWN

Housing corporation holds lottery for buyers

The Winchester Interfaith Housing Corporation held a lottery on Friday, Jan. 29, to select participants in its first-time home buyers program. Two Winchester families were selected, each to become owners of a three bedroom unit in a two family house. The cost of the purchase and rehab work, including removal of lead paint, will be covered by a lower interest mortgage, available through MHFA (the Massachusetts Housing and Finance Agency), and a local bank. In addition to the mortgage, WIHC will be assisting with the closing costs, legal counsel, and supervision of the rehab work.

After these families move into their new homes, WIHC hopes to provide similar opportunities for other first-time home buyers. If interested, contact WIHC at 729-5600.

Recalling the trials of the Blizzard of '78

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Fifteen Februaries ago the biggest snowstorm of the century -- the Blizzard of '78 — hit Winchester and closed schools for a week, damaged hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property, and led to the death of two youths.

The snow started falling on Winchester in the afternoon of Monday, Feb. 6 and didn't stop until 33 inches had fallen. Snow drifts were as high as 10 feet.

The heaviest cost of the 33 inches of snow that fell between Feb. 6 and 8 was the loss of two lives on Feb. 7. The two youths entered a vehicle and started the engine. The exhaust pipe was blocked by snow, and the youths were rendered unconscious by the carbon monoxide fumes in the vehicle. About 45 minutes later, the youths were found and taken to the hospital where they died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

In financial cost, Winchester reported $250,000 in storm-related damage to the state in an attempt to receive some disaster relief. The cost of damage to town property — totaling $98,000 — was staggering. Twenty hydrants were damaged by plows and 14 DPW vehicles were stranded at the height of the storm. The schools suffered $20,000 in damage.

The storm also did a job on the town's budget. In the middle of the storm week, the DPW had to call upon the Finance Committee for $13,000 from the town's reserve fund. The total cost of snow removal was $182,000 -- $60,000 in personnel and $122,000 in rented equipment and sand. Police and fire overtime cost $8,000.

That cost was on top of what had already been a difficult and expensive winter, which would total 105 inches of snow by its end. Before the first snow flake of the blizzard even fell, Winchester had spent $100,000 on other snowstorms that winter.

For Winchester residents, the Blizzard of '78 was a mix of enjoyment and inconvenience. Fortunately, Winchester had no major fires and, unlike almost everywhere else in the state, had no reports of lost power.

Residents skied, sledded, and rode horses through town, as the streets were unusable for cars (Boston banned driving). When motor vehicles finally made it back on the streets, the Board of Selectmen instituted a 15 m.p.h. speed limit.

"The next morning (Tuesday) I expected to go to work. Then I walked out the door and saw that I was up to my waist in snow. I realized I wouldn't be going to work, so I just decided to enjoy the day off," said Winchester resident Robert Frank, who was then the School Committee chairman.

Many people remember it as a unique week when people accepted that time would be standing still for awhile and relaxed and enjoyed themselves. "It was a holiday atmosphere," said Frank. The circumstances of the storm brought out the neighborliness and generosity of residents. Then Town Manager Thomas Groux, said he remembers residents housing servicemen from the army who were in town to assist with snow removal.

Nobody enjoyed the snow more than students, who had six days off from school. Long after the snow had stopped falling, children could not make it to school, in part, because the school parking lots were not plowed. On Feb. 10 the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers rolled into town to help with the plowing along with four mammoth loaders from New Hampshire, secured by then-state Representative Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh. "I remember thinking it was frustrating that you could get around town but not open the schools," said Frank.

When the town returned to normalcy, the School Committee had to figure out how to make up the numerous missed school days that winter. In March the School Committee finally decided to cancel all early release days and add fifteen minutes before and after each school day.

Some Winchester residents, who worked in Boston, don't remember what Winchester was like that week because they never made it home. John Sullivan, town moderator then and now, worked late that Monday night at his office in the Prudential building and as a result didn't get home until Friday. Sullivan and several co-workers were put up at the Lenox Hotel by his company. By Friday, Sullivan was able to take the commuter rail back to Winchester but had to leave his car in town.

One person who didn't get any time off from work was Groux, who caught a ride to Town Hall on a snow plow. Groux, who is now the town manager of Duxbury, said he would work on the town budget during the day and would check with the DPW operations at night. "Not only did I not miss a day, but I put in a fair amount of time ... The snow gave me a chance to work on the budget at Town Hall without a lot of interruptions."

Participants wanted for walk-a-thon

Among the walkers in training for the "Big Steps for Little People" Walk-a-thon, are many of the families of the thousands of babies born and cared for in the Winchester Hospital Childbirth Center and Level II Special Care Nursery. The 6.2 mile walk-a-thon, to be held Sunday, May 23, will start at Winchester High School, proceed to Woburn's Horn Pond, and return to Winchester. The route is ideal for family walking and pushing a stroller. For those who want a shorter distance, there will be a two to three mile route as well. All proceeds from the Walk-a-thon will be used to support the services of Winchester Hospital's Childbirth Center and the Level II Special Care Nursery.

Alan Fujii, M.D., neonatologist and director of the Special Care Nursery recently spoke to the Winchester Rotary Club, the lead sponsor of the Walk-a-thon. Fujii explained, "Winchester Hospital's Level II Special Care Nursery is affiliated with Boston's Joint Program in Neonatology. We offer 24-hour on-site pediatric specialists and are associated with the leading obstetric hospital north of Boston." Fujii is an honorary chair of the Walk-a-thon, sharing the honors with Mike Lynch (Channel 5 sportscaster) and his wife, Mary Ellen Lynch, whose three daughters were born at Winchester Hospital.

Judie Muggia, "Big Steps for Little People" Walk-a-thon co chair says, "Participation in the fund raising walk is a special way to show commitment to the good health of children. It's also an opportunity for friends, families school groups and coworkers to join together to form a team of walkers and enjoy the pleasure of an active afternoon in Spring weather. With the help of volunteers at all levels the event will accomplish its goals."

For more information, call Winchester Hospital at 756-2156.

WINCHESTER KERNELS

Colonel William P. Winchester

Over the dam

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

It is difficult now to comprehend the dichotomy which saw the town purchase and remove the Whitney Mill complex, at one end of Mill Pond, and at the same time bear silent witness to the advent of Winchester's first skyscraper at the opposite of that same pond.

The skyscraper, of course, was the new concrete and brick Winchester Laundry building, and its adjacent power house which rose above Mill Pond in 1910. The building stands today in a much-altered state as the "Mill Pond Building."

A January 1910 advertisement in The Star chided; "That dozen collars you got at Christmas should now be sent to The Winchester Laundry, Telephone Win., 390."

Winchester resident Arthur T. Downer founded the business in a complex of old wooden buildings on Converse Place in 1898.

As much a "swell" as a good businessman, Downer delighted in raising dust (and havoc) along Winchester streets in his flashy brass trimmed automobiles. He lived to see his business flourish and amalgamate into the New England Laundries.

For years the steam issuing from the power house, and its thumping and booming across the Mill Pond were an integral part of a trip downtown to feed the ducks.

The great silver and black smokestack — forever belching thick acid smoke above the pond — rivalled Town Hall tower as the premier central landmark.

In the early 1920s as the Winchester Methodists moved out of their Mount Vernon Street building, the laundry purchased the structure. It was used as an employee recreation center — and former Star editor Jim Penaligan once recalled that the 50-piece Laundry Orchestra, directed by T. Parker Clarke, used to practice in the upper hall.

Toward the end, the fledgling Aberjona Post 3719, Veterans of Foreign Wars met there along with a recreation center for the young people of Winchester. The Observer can remember sitting on the worn wooden steps of that dusky building in the late 1940s hoping an alarm would bring the engines roaring out of the fire station across the street.

Ultimately — in October of 1957 — the ancient building was razed and the site has been vacant since that time.

At the other end of the pond, the Whitney Mill had completely vanished by 1912. The Whitney business was relocated to the site occupied by the Winchester Theater and now by Winchester Savings Bank. Its early site — between Main Street and the present post office — became the final link in the lovely waterway connecting the Mystic Lakes with Whitney's Mill Pond in Winchester Square.

The old spillway to the mill was filled in with coal ash from town buildings and the ancient rolling dam was finally removed when the beautiful circular waterfall was built at Main Street bridge in 1915.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 20 — Report No. 2
Massachusetts House
Feb. 5, 1993

THE HOUSE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on six roll calls from the recent debate on the education bill. There were no roll calls in the House last week.

EDUCATION PACKAGE (H 801) — House 125-27, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate the lengthy bill designed to overhaul the state's public schools. The key provision is the measure's controversial funding formula designed to force all communities to bring their spending levels up to about $5,600 per student at the end of the seven years. The measure calls for big state and local spending increases and new statewide student standards and assessment. Supporters said this major reform bill will insure equal opportunity and education for each public school student in the state. Opponents said the bill is an unfunded state mandate which violates Proposition 2½ and will force communities to cut back drastically in other areas in order to meet the standards.

A Yes vote is for the education bill. A No vote is against it.

Rep. Paul Casey voted yes.

TEACHERS (H 801) — House 121-35, approved an amendment providing that teachers generally, rather than "annually" maintain the development of skills and knowledge of their certified subject area. Amendment supporters said the annual requirement is unfair and would be too expensive for teachers. Opponents said an annual requirement is reasonable and will insure that teachers continue to keep pace in their fields.

A Yes vote is against requiring annual maintenance. A No vote is for requiring annual maintenance.

Casey voted no.

PRINCIPALS (H 801) — House 149-4, rejected an amendment revoking all current school principal appointments. Amendment supporters said that since the bill gives principals new powers, all principals should have to reapply for their jobs. Opponents said principals are

V-Day's coming, romance is on the rise

TERRY MAROTTA
COLUMNIST

When I think of Valentine's Day, I think of a scene that took place two springs back in the romantic comedy I call my marriage. It was out in the back yard late one afternoon:

I stood in a hole, up to my knees grappling about in the dirt for the small nub of wood the fancy nursery had shipped me the year before with the promise that, buried deep enough, it would turn into not just a peony BUSH, mind you, but into an entire TREE, with blossoms the size of your head. I'd planted it; I'd waited the requisite year. Nothing. Zipola. Not even a sprig came up out of all that fertile muck. So now I was going in after it.

Just then, tires crunched in the driveway and my spouse crossed the lawn toward me. "Hi!" I yelled, still digging fixedly. "I'm looking for that peony thing I planted last year! Remember? Looked like a little chicken bone?" "The one that cost $50?," he asked. "Yup. And see what a nice deep hole I've made?!" He walked closer. "Nice hole," he said dryly. "Now get in it and lie down."

It was typical marriage talk, the standard rib-and-tease variety. It comes to mind now, because right around V-Day, as all the advertisers all tell us, Romance is on the Rise.

My kids come home from school on the big day draped like race horses with posies from fans of both sexes. I eye them jealously, as I help fill out valentines for Teacher. For Grandma. For the U.P.S. man, practically. Ah, for the old days, I sometimes think, when there was so much Get in a holiday, and fairly little Give. Ah for Cupids cavorting like fat bumblebees and aimed in my direction. Alas, they are not in my future.

My spouse and I are different, to say the least. When we go out to eat, for example, I go dressed like a bridesmaid, he like the Daryll-and-Daryll brothers from the old Bob Newhart Show. So too, where I am all activity, he is all rest. Early in our marriage, I bought, refinished and reupholstered 20 pieces of used furniture over the space of two years; I very nearly reupholstered the baby. Over the space of two years, he read all the Tarzan books again and took over 600 naps.

And our gift-giving mirrors this difference. Over time I've given him topcoats; fancy light-up globes-on-a-stand; entire recliners, even. In return he has given me jumper cables; a roll of insulation for the hot water heater; a wrench set; tennis balls, though I don't actually PLAY tennis; OK, some nice jewelry; a book of Chinese love poems (in Chinese); and, the Valentine's Day before we were married, two quarts of prune juice. And 25 years of diaries bear me out here.

Because the apple doesn't fall far from the tree, my kids tend to give oddly too, on Valentine's Day or any day. Once for Christmas they gave me a little satin angel on a swing. Once for a birthday present, my then-five-year-old put her small hands on my face and called me "Little Beauty Cheeks". In the meantime, I give them on Valentine's Day what most moms end up giving: cards; stuffed animals; and enough chocolate to keep an elementary school kid awake and yodelling 'til the turn of the century. Two years ago they asked for blank tapes; one said, "Hey, I know. How about money; like a couple of twenties, say?"

And now the big day is here again. What will it bring us all this year, I wonder?

I can only imagine. But suddenly another story comes back to me from out in the yard:

It was last fall and the Spouse and I were both working there, about a hundred feet apart and faced in opposite directions. "Remember that time you tried to bury me alive last year?" I called to him. "Mmmmmm," came his response. "But you'd miss me though, wouldn't you, if I were gone?" Another Nmmmmmm." "Because you do love me, don't you?" I added in a small plaintive voice. He said something then which I didn't quite catch. "What?" I asked from my dirt pile, turning to face him and steeled against more marriage wit. "I said, 'You're the light of my life,'" he repeated. I looked over. He was smiling shyly, the way you do when you give someone a really great present.

Oh, Daryll-and-Daryll, I think now: After all this time, you still surprise me. And who knows? Maybe next year even the peony tree will put in an appearance.

ON THE RECORD

There seems to be little doubt that rabid raccoons are either here in Winchester or on their way. Lexington now joins Arlington and Belmont as communities that have submitted raccoons to the state that have tested positive for rabies. Lexington Health Director George Smith said that a raccoon, killed in a fight with a dog, tested positive for rabies earlier this week. Smith said the incident took place about a half-mile from the Winchester border. The dog, which did have its vaccination shots, must undergo quarantine for three months. "This incident points out the problem," said Smith. "Some people have been taking the subject lackadaisically. It's sure to start appearing in other towns."

The next major project for the School Department will be an evaluation of the special education system. School administrators are currently interviewing possible candidates to be a part of the evaluation team. "I do think we have to get moving on this," said School Committee member Constance Makhoul.

The well-publicized disagreements between the town manager and the School Committee are minor when compared to the battles going on among the School Committee members. When committee member James Evans read a section of a memo from Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer stating that recertifying free cash was a "quick-fix accounting gimmick", School Committee Chairman Mark Lombardi became upset. Lombardi, who is in favor of recertifying free cash to fund the School Department budget, said, "It's curious to me how a School Committee member can read a report by the town manager and that's gospel ... If I put that report together, it would be hogwash." When the committee members got into an argument over how the town's budget process worked, Lombardi corrected Evans saying, "It's not a disagreement, it's not correct what you're saying." At another point in the meeting, Evans said he was offended by a quip that member Edward O'Connell had made, which prompted Lombardi to say what many viewers would most certainly agree with: "We're going to have to lighten up."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resident questions new fees at Savings Bank

To the editor:

Winchester Savings Bank announces new fees. Ha! They need a new name too. Winchester Fee Bank!

Imagine charging fifty cents per month for their service if you only have under $250 in there.

I can remember good old "Bank Day" years ago when kids banked pennies each week and watched them earn interest.

Now the interest won't even cover those "fee" costs.

Come on Savings Bank. You're robbing newspaper boys and babysitters with this dumb fee!

But then again — there are other banks in town that don't charge such sums!

Robert Horne

Taxpayers' Assoc. question budget increases for FY'94

To the editor:

The Winchester Taxpayers' Association is livid about the projected FY'94 budgets by both the municipal and school departments. Both departments must curtail unnecessary spending and get their budgets within the constraints of Proposition 2½. An increase of 9.63 percent in the school budget is simply uncontrolled spending. The total cost of teacher salaries is projected to increase by 7.1 percent while the average salary increase in the private sector amounts to a mere 0.5 percent.

The economy is in a total free-fall with huge layoffs being announced almost daily. The Clinton administration appears to have no clue as to how to deal with the economy except to increase taxes and to take away from our senior citizens.

Our Winchester home values are declining sharply while we can expect huge increases in our water charges due to a mandated filtration system. The MWRA is still out of control in its water and sewer rates. In view of all these added burdens to the Winchester taxpayers, why do our elected officials refuse to even make the smallest effort to contain costs?

Mary A. Meader
Vice chairman, WTA

Chess Club invites new players and thanks supporters

To the editor:

On Friday, Jan. 29, Steve Freimar, an expert chess player from Lexington, did a simultaneous chess display similar to that done by Tom Richardson on Jan. 22. Freimar took on 12 opponents winning nine games, losing two and drawing one. The players were, Steven Attardo, Julius Perl, Joe Perl, Peter Attardo, Cross Delairre, Andrew Maggio, Cengizkhan Pamir, Farbod Khaghani, Alex Hayden, John Shawcross, David Maggio, and Frances Shawcross. Julius Perl recorded a win in his first visit to the club and Cengiz, who had given Richardson some difficulty the previous week, also won his game. DeLairre got the draw.

In addition to the exhibition, Freimar gave away copies of Massachusetts Chess Associations magazine "Chess Horizons" and gave a short talk on how to get involved in club chess. Winchester Chess Club is also fortunate to have as a member Zakhar Frumes, who is an immigrant from Russia and does not speak much English yet, but who is certainly teaching us the language of chess.

covered by collective bargaining and argued the bill outlines how existing principals can be removed for cause.

A Yes vote is for firing all existing principals. A No vote is against firing all existing principals.

Casey voted no.

LAW SUIT (H 801) —House 99-55, rejected an amendment eliminating a provision allowing the attorney general or any 10 local citizens to bring suit against a community which does not spend the mandated amount of money for education. Amendment supporters said this provision goes too far and enforcement provision is better than the other option of punishing the students by denying state aid to communities which do not comply.

A Yes vote is against allowing the attorney general to bring suit. A No vote is for allowing them to bring suit.

Casey voted yes.

STRIKE FORMULA (H 801) — House 109-42, rejected an amendment striking the entire funding formula and mandated local spending section. Amendment supporters said the mandated spending will have a drastic impact on local communities and argued eliminating these provisions will give members more time to develop alternatives. Opponents said these sections are the keys to the reform package which is designed to require increased state and local spending to insure equal education opportunity for every child.

A Yes vote is against the funding and mandates. A No vote is for the funding and mandates.

Casey voted no.

THE SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on four roll calls from the week of Feb. 1 through 5.

The first two roll calls are on proposed amendments to the bill allowing the construction of a new $160 million Boston Garden. The bill itself was given near final approval on a voice vote and sent to the House.

REVIEW BOARD (S 1492) — Senate 27-7, rejected an amendment eliminating a section of the Garden Bill creating a three member review board to determine whether the developer is paying the state enough in the deal for the New Boston Garden project. The board consists of the Attorney General, Inspector General and State Auditor. Amendment supporters said the creation of this partisan Democratic board continues to send an anti-business message and will result in legislative micromanaging which could delay or derail the project. Opponents said the board will protect the interests of the state while still allowing the project to continue.

A Yes vote is for eliminating the board. A No vote is for creation of the board.

Sen Charles Shannon voted yes.

PARKING (S 1492) — Senate 27-8, rejected an amendment eliminating a section requiring the Garden to pay a 15 percent surcharge to the MBTA to reserve 900 spaces in the parking garage for luxury boxholders. The amendment would also debate a provision restricting premium ticketholders' parking to only weekends and after 6 p.m. weekdays. Amendment supporters said the surcharge and restriction could jeopardize the developer's contracts with premium seatholders whose purchases are an integral factor in making the finances of the deal work. Opponents said the surcharge and restriction protects the state and noted this is a public garage which should remain available to the public during weekday work hours.

A Yes vote is against the surcharge and against the parking restriction. A No vote is for the surcharge and the parking restriction.

Shannon voted yes.

Young Performers concert is delight

To the editor:

On Sunday, Feb. 7, a large audience gathered at Town Hall for the Young Performers Concert sponsored by the Winchester Concert Series. This unique community musical event brought together performing musicians from Winchester High School, private studios, and the Winchester Community Music School to present music from Bach and Haydn to contemporary classical and popular works. The audience included families and friends of performers, teachers, and townspeople of all ages who came to hear and applaud the young people of Winchester.

I am writing to thank Stephen Andre, artistic director, for his leadership of the Winchester Concert Series, and for his coordination of this concert. Thanks are also due Ellen Knight, assistant artistic director, and the Board of Directors of WCS for including the Young Performers Concert in their series of professional concerts. The series is an asset to the life of Winchester, and the Young Performers Concert provides a special goal provides a special goal for students and a framework for enjoyable, collaborative music-making.

Open letter to the residents of Winchester

I would like to declare next week as "Put Numbers on Your House Week." I feel this is the most important and inexpensive protection anyone could have on their home. The main reason is your home would be easier to find in case of an emergency. Time spent looking for your house could cost you your life or the lives of your family. Many times, minutes and seconds count. It's very inexpensive insurance. Put numbers on your home that are large and clear so they can be seen from the street day or night. Please take the time. Remember, if your number is down; your number could be up.

I would also like to address another danger that I've seen too often. This would be the dangerous act of vandalism perpetrated by some of the youths of this town and by others. This act is that of taking off the catch basin covers. The vandals don't seem to realize that by doing this their own family and friends could be killed or injured by this foolish and senseless act. People and pets could fall into these holes which are deep and filled with water. Cars hitting these holes could be thrown out of control and cause death or serious injury.

Please make your children and their friends aware of the hazard of this act of kids being kids. It's not funny, it's sad.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

THE FIRST PART OF THE BODY THAT MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY AFFECTS.

It's hard to smile when you lose the ability to walk. To play. To draw pictures. To climb a tree.

But that's what happens when a child has muscular dystrophy.

"Muscular dystrophy" is the name for a group of diseases that weaken and destroy the muscles. The disorders are progressive, so things get worse over time. The muscle loss can't be stopped. And it can't be reversed.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is striving to cure muscular dystrophy. And on Christmas Eve of 1987, MDA researchers announced a landmark advance: discovery of the cause of the most terrible form of muscular dystrophy, Duchenne.

Now a giant step toward curing these dread diseases has been taken. And MDA researchers are forging ahead, racing to save the children stricken today.

MDA receives no government grants or fees for services — its work is funded entirely by private donations. You can help MDA fight muscular dystrophy and dozens of other muscle diseases by sending a tax-deductible contribution today.

Don't wait until a child's smile reminds you of all the children who have stopped smiling. Please send your donation today.

Use of free cash studied

ing what money ends up as "free cash" at the end of the fiscal planning process. According to Maurer, the free cash number is determined by calculating leftover funds on accounts such as snow removal, adding excess revenue and subtracting any uncollected real estate taxes.

And free cash is the hot item as the budget process picks up speed heading into Spring Town Meeting. If it's possible to bring more money into the pipeline faster, some school officials have argued vehemently against trimming $500,000 from their projected budget for 1994.

One argument advanced by recertification proponents is that collecting taxes then calculating the free cash more often than once a year, will generate more cash. All monies generated after July 1 currently end up in the free cash kitty for the next fiscal year. According to Maurer, recertification has never been done by the town, and was not possible until several years ago.

"I would counsel against that (option), what we'd be using would be tomorrow's money today, like the federal government, to solve a problem," said Maurer.

As the budget knives sharpen, with an eye towards submission on Feb. 14 to the Finance Committee, some concern was expressed over a runaway figure of uncollected taxes. According to Maurer, more than $1,500,000 in delinquent taxes for fiscal 1992 demand a closer look.

"There has been concern raised on the increase of $700,000 (from 1989) in uncollected taxes," said Maurer. Although some said signs are that the delinquencies are abating, selectman Gerard Polcari noted that no clear data or trend will be detectable until the third quarter tax payments are collected.

Selectmen asked that details on key accounts where reversions and shortfalls are expected be made available at the next meeting. Key among the big ticket line items are the potential for reversions in the snow removal and water and sewer budgets and a North East Solid Waste Consortium (NESWC) shortfall.

Selectman Peter VanAken added some final words on the free cash question, "My conclusion is that in terms of using cash that isn't there, at this point it doesn't look attractive."

Selectman Stephen Powers disagreed, "I still do not understand why we want to keep presenting the worst case numbers." Powers pointed out that the board had worked on some of the budget items and won some battles to obtain reversions.

"I think it's premature to act on it tonight," said selectman William O'Leary. He said the budget would be worked on by the School Committee for the next four months and offered a conciliatory word for recent battles on the budget. "There is a strong willingness on the part of this selectman to work with any of the town committees to have a balanced budget.

Search for the new superintendent is put on hold

Committee's decision Fitzgerald, who was not present during the School Committee's debate, told the Star that he was not going to accept the offer by the School Committee. "I'm going to withdraw my candidacy at this point," said Fitzgerald. "I'm not comfortable with the process as it has evolved." Fitzgerald said he did not want the position if it was going to divide the School Committee and the school community, referring to the acrimonious debate that preceded the decision to interview him.

An interview between the School Committee and Fitzgerald had been posted for the evening of Feb. 11 before Fitzgerald declined.

Fitzgerald said that if a consultant was called in to take over the search, he would consider seeking the position, but he said he would not go through a screening committee process again.

The School Committee was forced into revisiting the subject after the two finalists for the superintendency both withdrew following their interviews. Dr. Eileen Williams, superintendent of Raynham, withdrew on Jan. 26, saying she did not wish to relocate to Winchester. Two days later, Dr. Donald Kennedy, superintendent of Duxbury, accepted a job as superintendent in Maynard.

Reached at his office, Kennedy said he would have accepted the superintendency if it had been offered on Jan. 26 as was originally scheduled, but when it was postponed, he was offered and accepted the Maynard position two days later. "Winchester knew that the Maynard was meeting and that I was one of three finalists, and I was chosen. I had to make a decision," said Kennedy. "I told both School Committees I would accept the position if offered, and I received an offer from Maynard and not Winchester."

Lombardi and members Edward O'Connell and Constance Makhoul had said they felt five names, not two, should have been forwarded to the School Committee originally. They also reasoned that Fitzgerald would have been among those five names. "I was discouraged that he was not put into the final fold. Here we have a person who served the community well for 20 years and to whom we entrusted the stewardship of our School Department ... The two candidates put forward are not head and shoulders above Mr. Fitzgerald," said O'Connell.

All three members said Fitzgerald deserved the consideration of an interview because of his position and service to the school system. "We have an in-house candidate who is worthy of discussion," said Makhoul.

Members Jerilyn Heinold and James Evans said singling out Fitzgerald for an interview would mean disregarding and circumventing the Search Committee process and, by extension, the public, who gave input to the Search Committee. "I'm really kind of confused as to what the purpose of the entire Search Committee was if we now go back and rethink all the work they did," said Heinold.

Makhoul said the committee was not ignoring the public but that the Search Committee erred in not forwarding Fitzgerald's name and that interviewing him would be no different than interviewing Williams and Kennedy. "In preempting our direction and bringing forward only two, the screening committee inhibited our ability to look at a spectrum of qualified candidates ... We're finishing a process the screening committee didn't allow us to do," said Makhoul.

Heinold and Evans said the process should be reopened and a whole new field of candidates should be considered. Both added that Fitzgerald would be welcome to resubmit his name. "If a better candidate can be found, I'd like to find him," said Evans.

"Mrs. Makhoul was very strong about having more than two candidates and now we're in a situation where we only have one finalist," said Heinold.

Those who supported giving Fitzgerald an interview said the issue of his qualifications for the position should be decided now before a whole new search is reopened. Lombardi said even not hiring Fitzgerald would save him from going through another six-month process.

"I would like to see us resolve this issue as expeditiously as possible. Months have gone by, thousands of dollars have been spent, and I say 'no mas, no mas,'" said O'Connell.

Search Committee member Martha Tucker, who came to the meeting after watching the debate unfold on television, said the committee was making a "travesty of that search. It is incredibly unfair if you override the decision of that committee."

There was some suggestion at the meeting that the committee examine all eight semifinalists who did not make the final cut. There was also some discussion of using a firm to assist with the search process if it was reopened.

The search continues...

JUNE 23, 1992 After a week of pervasive rumors, School Committee Chairman Mark Lombardi announces at a committee meeting the resignation of Superintendent Dr. Charles Mitsakos, effective Sept. 4. The committee accepts Mitsakos' resignation by a 4-0 vote and agrees to pay him through June '93. Although no public statement is made on why Mitsakos, superintendent for eight years, was resigning, individual committee members say budget shortfalls and trouble with redistricting numbers were two of the main reasons.

JULY 21, 1992 Assistant Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald is chosen as acting superintendent until a new superintendent is selected.

SEPT. 7, 1992 Fitzgerald tells the Star that he will likely submit his name for the position of superintendent.

SEPT. 8, 1992 The School Committee announces it will form a Search Committee consisting of eleven members: four educators, one teacher from the high school, middle school, and elementary school and a principal; five residents, one picked by each member; and two at-large positions, "consensus picks" among the School Committee members.

SEPT. 22, 1992 School Committee members, by a 3-0 vote, select the members for the 11-member Search Committee that will begin interviewing candidates for the superintendency. Committee members Jerilyn Heinold and James Evans refuse to participate in the vote, saying that their choices for the Search Committee were not given fair consideration.

DEC. 1, 1992 The School Committee sets a $8,800 budget for the Search Committee: $3,800 on advertisements and $5,000 on travel expenses.

JAN. 12, 1993 The Search Committee forwards two names to the School Committee: Dr. Donald Kennedy, superintendent from Duxbury, and Dr. Eileen Williams, superintendent from Raynham. Fitzgerald does not make the final cut.

JAN. 20, 1993 The School Committee interviews the two candidates and sets its next meeting as the day to make the decision on who the new superintendent will be.

JAN. 26, 1993 Hours before the School Committee is slated to pick a new superintendent, Williams tells Lombardi she is no longer interested in the position because she does not wish to relocate. The committee postpones any decision until its next meeting.

FEB. 9, 1993 The School Committee announces that the last finalist for the superintendency, Kennedy, has accepted a job in another community. The committee, by a 3-2 vote, decided to interview Fitzgerald for the position, who declined the next day.

The Winton Club has maintained a tradition of cabaret production for 72 years in Winchester with the successful presentation of "Fascinating Rhythms" in January. Proceeds from the annual cabaret go directly to benefit patient care services at Winchester Hospital.

The board of The Winton Club salutes the dedicated leadership of Cabaret Chairman and Producer Phyllis R. Gleason for her yearlong commitment to bringing the cabaret to life. REAL ESTATE UPDATE

ANN BLACKHAM, CRB, CRS

FINANCING DECISION

QUESTION: I plan to buy a home in the near future. When should I decide on whether to select a fixed or variable mortgage?

ANSWER: Actually, this should be a last-minute decision. The financing market changes often enough so that the best financing mode one month may not be the best the next month. If you expect to live in the house for a long time and you feel that interest rates will increase, you may lean toward a fixed rate. An equally sound case can be made for the lower initial interest offered on variable rate mortgages. If you don't expect to live in the home for a very long time, the variable rate mortgage would be the answer.

DECIDING BETWEEN a fixed or variable mortgage should be a last-minute decision.

Pazyrus participates in Bread of Life

Bread of Life, an organization dedicated to providing meals to the needy, recently honored Steven Pazyrus, owner of La Patisserie Bakery, 30 Church St., for his "charitable contributions" to their program.

Bread of Life, begun at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Malden, provides home-cooked dinners, four nights a week, to approximately 100-130 people. This organization was conceived 11 years ago when several strangers "happened into" a potluck supper at St. Paul's and asked for food. They were not turned away and the next week they returned and brought friends and the word traveled. Although the number of hungry people kept growing, the church was always able to meet their needs. Today, volunteers from over 27 area churches, temples and schools from six different cities participate regularly to provide the meals to anyone in need.

Pazyrus became involved with Bread of Life six years ago, when "we were looking for a place to donate our leftover food because we knew a lot of people needed it," he said. Pazyrus began donating supplies of day-old muffins, bread, croissants, etc., from his bakeries to Bread of Life every week and his contributions have become a vital part of the feeding program. Pazyrus, when asked why he had decided to become a part of Bread of Life, replied that, "We have a good business and we wanted to give something back to people in return, and we wanted to give something directly to the people who need it."

In addition to La Patisserie in Winchester, Pazyrus and his family own and operate bakeries in Woburn and Andover and also contribute food regularly to the Lazarus House feeding program in North Andover.

Although Bread of Life was supported during the holiday season, Program Coordinator Tom Feagley stressed that its resources will be greatly strained in the coming months and he urges people to keep remembering those in need.

Any individuals, businesses or organizations that would like to make a food or monetary donation or participate with Bread of Life can do so by contacting Feagley at 397-0404 or mailing or bringing donations to the Bread of Life office at 511 Main St., Malden, MA 02148. All contributions will be appreciated and are tax-deductible.

Florida Anyone?

Ann Blackham and Company, a continual leader in presenting quality real estate with unmatched professional services, has announced their association as exclusive local representative for Lely Resorts of Naples, Florida.

Lely Resorts is a 2,900 acre country club community, with three signature golf courses, multiple homesites and an extensive lake system hosting a generous selection of homesites and homes by some of the finest and most respected Gulf Coast builders.

Century-21 named service leader by homeowners

When it comes to providing quality real estate services, U.S. homeowners think the Century 21 system can do the best job, according to a new nationwide survey conducted by The Wirthlin Group, one of the nation's most respected independent research firms. The Century 21 system, led by significant margins over all national competitors in all 12 of the survey's categories, announced Steve Owren, president of Century 21 Winchester Realty, in disclosing results of the survey. When asked, 16 percent of the homeowners said they felt Century 21 sales associates provide the best service, compared to 3percent who selected another national organization.

Tim Garvey, Manager of Century 21 Winchester Realty added, "We are very pleased that this poll confirmed what we've known for a long time ... at homeowners recognize the Century 21 organization as the service leader in the real estate industry."

The survey results also indicated that most homeowners would prefer to list their homes for sale with Century 21 sales associates. In addition, 31 percent of homeowners polled consider the Century 21 system the leader in real estate, compared to 4 percent who selected the nearest competitor.

The Wirthlin Group randomly polled 1,541 homeowners nationwide, by telephone, in October of 1992. The results for this survey have a 95 percent confidence interval of /-2.5 percent. Complete survey results are available at Century 21 Winchester Realty, 40 Church St.

WHS track teams shine at Class C

Boys finish second, girls take sixth

SPORTS WRITER

The Winchester High track teams made the long ride to Wheaton College in Norton on Saturday for the annual State Class C Relays, but the bus weighed a little bit more on the return trip because of all the awards the Sachems and Sachemettes won.

Winchester High School
ROUNDUP

The boys team scored 32 points in placing second overall to fellow Middlesex League entrant Stoneham (35), while the girls squad took sixth place. According to Sachem coach Tom Kline, the all-relay format played right into Winchester's strength.

"That was definitely our kind of meet," said Kline. "We have so many kids who are good in the middle distances and sprints that we were able to spread them around a little."

Winchester placed in every event it entered, and picked up third and fifth in the 4x200 relay. Winchester's "A" team of Brian Lindmark, Rob Donlon, Shaun Oliver and Ben Albiani was third, in a time of 1 minute, 37.9 seconds, while the "B" team of Ron Hall, Jason McFarland, Darin Byrne and Rolando Oyola was just behind in fifth, at 1:39.0.

The "A" team was also third in the 4x400, coming in at 3:34.6, which wiped out the unit's previous-best by over five seconds.

Winchester's Ben Simeone, Brian Mannett, Steve McCrae and Matt Tavares teamed up to take fourth in the shuttle hurdles (29.9), while the shuttle dash team of Hall, Mike Manzo, Simeone and Byrne won the event in a blazing time of 23.2.

The distance events have plagued the Sachems all season, but Ray Regan, Brandon Smith, Bill Doherty and Alain Toussaint were able to pick up fourth place in the 4x800, coming in at 9:02.

"It was a great day," said Kline. "We won the dash — I didn't expect that. We almost won the whole thing. The kids (Winchester's 4x400 squad) ran a great race. They just got beat by two excellent teams. Our kids did real well. We did it with some kids who hadn't got the chance all year."

Girls coach Joe Cantillon was equally thrilled with his team's performance. All five relay teams placed, with every runner who made the trip getting involved.

"It's a real high point of the season for us," said Cantillon. "It's something I was looking forward to since the beginning of the season."

The Sachemettes' top showing came in the 4x200, where Diana Grande, Maile Bushnell, Nicole Malouf and Colleen Campbell combined for a second-place time of 1:54.4. Winchester also took a third, as Sara Stevens, Kyle Ambrose, Kristin Robbat and Grande clocked in at 30.7 in the shuttle hurdles.

Winchester took fifth in the 4x800, with Kristina Racek, Jessica Porter, Elodie Kayulu and Keira Powers coming in at 10:57. Sarah Bonnell, Laura Aleo, Betsy Kean and Deidre Murdock took sixth in the distance medley (14:04). The Sachemettes' shuttle dash unit of Bushnell, Kristine Arian, Zareen Poonen and Campbell also earned a sixth, in 27.2.

"It really worked out well," said Cantillon. "It hopefully will give the team some goals and confidence for the last two meets."

Sachems do slow burn vs. Woburn

WHS grapplers end dual meet slate with loss to Tanners, win over Belmont

SPORTS WRITER

A 2-0 week would have been the perfect way for the Winchester High wrestling season to end its dual meet schedule. Confident of pinning a big loss on an inexperienced Belmont squad in the season finale later in the week, Winchester was hoping to sneak past rival Woburn High.

WRESTLING

The Tanners, however, ruined the Sachems' upset hopes with a 37-30 win at the Winchester High gym on Wednesday, Feb. 3. It might have taken a lot more than Woburn expected, but the Tanners got the job done.

"I think we surprised them with how quickly we got a young team together," said Winchester coach Larry Tremblay. "We almost stole one."

Winchester did earn a split for the week, running its final mark to 13-4 with a 66-15 thrashing of Belmont on Saturday afternoon at Winchester. The Sachems' 5-2 league mark left them third in the Middlesex League standings.

The final week of the season was a chance for Tremblay to test his team's mettle. And for the most part, the Sachems responded.

"We really didn't wrestle that bad," said Tremblay of the Woburn meet. "There were a few times (in individual matches and the meet as a whole) that we could have quit, but we didn't. It was good to see."

Winchester fell into a quick 16-6 hole after Woburn captain Gary Leighton pinned Winchester's Tucker Bradford at 125. But Jon Worthen raised his season mark to 14-2 by stopping Woburn's Marco Patelano late in the third period, cutting the Woburn lead to 16-12. After another Woburn pin, Sachem Wes Matthews gave the team hope with a come-from-behind win at 140.

"That was really a key point in the match," said Tremblay. "The Woburn kid (Joe Lisaki) had Wes in a good headlock, but Wes didn't give up."

Matthews eventually earned a 12-4 victory, as Winchester again nar-

Gymnasts floored all expectations

The season is over now. The daily routine of pulling out the balance beams, floor mats and cushions, piecing together the parallel bars and arranging the springboard for the vault is no more.

Jim McKenzie

The Winchester High School gymnasium is a little bit quieter now, and the best season in the history of Winchester High School gymnastics has ended.

Third-year head coach Mim Quine led her merry band of gymnasts over an all-too-short two-month season in which the Sachemettes reached heights no one expected. With co-captains Kim Ciano and Rachel Gallery providing the leadership and with a core of underclassmen supplying much of the talent, Winchester raised its average score by nearly six points over last season, setting new team and individual records along the way.

And the whole time, the WHS gymnastics team kept a smile on its collective face.

"Every day something happened that we'd all end up laughing about," said Quine. "It's a great group of kids who knew when to be serious and knew when to have a good time. It was a great, great season."

The season started with a visit to Wakefield, where an equally improved Lady Warrior squad slipped past Winchester. When Winchester's final score — 119.8 — came in, observers thought the scores might have been a little high, since it was the first meet of the season for the judges as well.

But the scores stayed high. Led by sophomore Megan Foley and freshman Marisa McCarthy, Winchester turned in a remarkably consistent string of point totals. First there was 121.55 in a win at Reading, then came powerhouse Melrose. Winchester lost the match, but rose to the competition by turning in a solid 118.9.

Then, on Friday, Jan. 15, in front of a huge crowd and against the defending champions from Stoneham High, Winchester set an all-time WHS record by scoring 122.35 points.

People took notice. They saw the leadership of seniors Andrea DeStefano, Jeanette Cross and Cheri Frost. They saw the steady improvement of junior Margaret Boettcher, who could have been an all-around if it wasn't for the ease with which McCarthy, the freshman, adapted to varsity competition.

They saw Foley, one of the up-and-coming gymnasts in the Middlesex League, turning in scores to rival the best Stoneham and Melrose could offer. They saw perseverance, dedication and a daily pursuit of improved routines and scores.

"It was really an incredibly close team," said Quine. "It was like a little family out there. They were helping each other every day. Nobody was concerned with who did what events. They wanted what was best for the team."

And it was the team approach

Winchester hoops rebounds for splits

Boys, girls post wins over Watertown

SPORTS WRITER

Tuesday night at Winchester High School, the boys basketball team had a must-win game. The opponent was Watertown, which had humiliated the Sachems in their first meeting, in what coach Quinton Dale called "Winchester's worst game of the season."

Winchester High School
BASKETBALL

Things looked pretty bleak for the Sachems this time around as well, with Winchester trailing by nine at halftime. But a strong second-half effort, led by the inspired play of juniors Sean Furey and Brian Keefe, was enough for Winchester to defeat the Raiders, 57-52.

"It's very important to win at home in this league," said Dale. "When I went (into the locker room) at the half, I talked about defense. Offense isn't going to get us back. We needed defense."

The Sachems responded. After trailing 36-27 at the break, Winchester allowed just 16 points while scoring 30 in a second-half exhibition which showed how good the team can be. After fighting back to a two-point deficit with 7:30 left, a pair of Furey free throws tied the score at 50-50. Moments later, a spectacular offensive rebound and follow-up hoop by Furey after a Keefe miss gave Winchester a lead it would never surrender.

Furey, who did not score in the first 16 minutes, finished with 11 points, including seven straight that cut the Raider lead to four, at 40-36. Down the stretch, the 6-foot-3-inch center took over the boards, corralling several key rebounds.

"Sean had a good game," said Dale. "He's been on the verge of having one of these games for a while. They tried to take the ball away from Brian. Someone had to pick it up."

After suffering through flu-like symptoms for the better part of the previous 24 hours, Furey agreed that it was his best all-around effort of the season.

"It just came to me," said Furey. "I haven't really been able to play my game all season. Coach and I worked hard in practice on my defense, and I was able to stay out of foul trouble."

Keefe, Winchester's junior captain, was the game-high scorer with 19 points, but it was his defense in the waning moments that stood out. Keefe had three blocked shots, one steal and an altered shot (which turned into an air ball) in a tremendous series over the last two minutes.

Winchester's Mark Morrison also had a fine game, scoring 14 of his 17 points in the first half, when the rest of the Sachems were struggling.

Winchester dropped a tough game last Friday night at Melrose. The ball simply wasn't dropping for the Sachems in the second half, and Melrose went on to a 56-43 victory.

"(Melrose) picked up the defensive pressure," said Dale. "We had open opportunities, but we didn't capitalize on the shots we had. If you don't hit the open shots, you aren't going to win."

Winchester hosts curling

Senior men's bonspeil draws 20 teams from region

The Grand National Curling Club of America held its 11th annual Senior Men's Bonspiel Feb. 4-7 at the Winchester Country Club.

Twenty teams from the Northeast competed in the prestigious Bonspiel, which was started in 1980 at the Nutmeg Curling Club in Connecticut.

The General Chairman for the event was Dr. James Gibbons Jr. of Winchester, who was the skip on Winchester's Bartlett Medal-winning squad. The remainder of the Winchester team was comprised of vice-skip Dick Osgood, second Paul Knouse and lead Bob Grainger.

Other event winners were: First Event — The Nutmeg Stone: Schenectady; Third Event — The Ardsley Shield: Nutmeg.

A welcome banquet was held on Saturday evening at the Winchester Country Club. Honored were senior curlers who played an important role in establishing curling in the area, including Malcolm "Buzz" Burroughs and Stanley Neill, both of Winchester.

rowed the lead, to 22-16. When Dan Boffo stuck Woburn's Mark Alshie at 145, Winchester had erased the deficit.

However, Woburn's Rob Connors, Dave Connors and Paul Quattrocchi ripped off consecutive wins to ice the meet for the Tanners. Sachem victories by Mike Marino (189) and Jeff Edmands (heavyweight) narrowed the final score to 37-30.

With an undermanned Belmont squad in town on Saturday, Winchester closed out the dual meet season by thumping the visitors by over 40 points. Winchester received forfeits in six weight classes.

There was, however, some drama when Winchester freshman Jay Glennon (125) won his first varsity match. Glennon, who joined the team a bit late, was losing by eight points when he turned Belmont's Dan Brecher and pinned him at 3:45.

"He's a hell of a competitor," Tremblay said of the rookie grappler. "He works as hard as anyone to make himself better. It was good to see him get a win."

In the day's featured match, Worthen knocked off Belmont's Greg Hartunian at 130. Hartunian, a top-six finisher in the state meet last season, bumped up one weight class to go against Winchester's superb sophomore. In a tight match, Worthen was able to pin Hartunian at 3:36.

Belmont's lone win came at 140, where Jeremy Riley knocked off Matthews with a buzzer-beating two-point maneuver. In the remaining matches which weren't forfeited, Boffo (145) pinned Marauder Mike Dattoli and Dave Drazen (152) stopped John Hartunian.

Winchester's next competition comes at the league meet, scheduled for Saturday at Melrose High. Sachems expected to receive high seeds are Nathaniel Haskell, Bradford, Worthen, Boffo, Marino and Edmands.

Oliver earns All-New England

Stoneham Arena on Wednesday, Feb. 3, and the Sachems made them pay.

With a late shorthanded goal by Matt Breuer, Winchester skated off with a 4-4 tie, much to the dismay of the Wakefield faithful. Freshman Steve Cuccinati was Winchester's big gun, upstaging Wakefield's much talked-about freshman Mike Souza, by scoring twice and adding an assist.

Winchester wasn't as lucky against Melrose on Saturday at O'Brien Rink when the Raiders pinned a 5-2 loss on the Sachems. Sophomore Paul McGowan had both Winchester goals, while Breuer notched a pair of assists.

Oliver selected for All-New England soccer

Winchester High's Shaun Oliver was the only Middlesex League soccer player named to the All-New England soccer team, which was announced Sunday at the Eastern Mass Soccer Coaches Association annual banquet.

Teammate Jeff Tahnk was selected along with Oliver to the Eastern Mass All-Star squad. Winchester was the only Middlesex League team with two Eastern Mass stars.

Oliver, who scored 10 goals with 19 assists as a senior, finished his high school career with 27 goals and 34 assists. He was also nominated for All-America status.

The WHS senior has narrowed his collegiate choices to the University of Vermont and Brandeis University.

Winchester coach Gene Bouley picked up an award for the team, which was voted one of the top 20 high school squads in the state.

Gymnasts on beam all season

which carried the Sachemettes through their most difficult hours, when first Foley, then Boettcher, were felled by injuries midway through the season. The traditional non-league meet with neighboring Arlington was coming up, and on one day's notice, Ciano came up with a dynamic floor routine that very nearly won the meet for Winchester.

It got better. With Boettcher back, but Foley still unable to compete due to a severe ankle injury, Winchester traveled to Burlington for a Friday night meet on Jan. 22. Nearly every Winchester competitor turned in a career-high in at least one event as the Sachemettes set a new school record with a 122.65.

"That was when the depth of their character really showed itself," said Quine. "To come together and turn in such a high score with two of the best gymnasts injured was incredible."

It was during the week of the injuries that freshmen like Sarah Bond, Jennifer Clark, Kristine Leavitt and Debby Gallery really came into their own. It was a team where the seniors pushed the freshmen, and the freshmen pushed the seniors. Every single gymnast set personal-highs this season.

"You know, these kids really worked hard to get where they are," Quine said. "They just kept outdoing themselves. I always told them that if they just kept outdoing themselves, the scores would take care of themselves."

Of course, the story wouldn't be complete without the requisite dramatic ending. Yes, Winchester did beat Woburn in the season-ending clash. And yes, Winchester did break the team record one more time. In fact, Woburn turned in a 122.7, which edged the previous Winchester best by .05. Fittingly, Winchester raised the mark to 122.9, in a storybook ending to a storybook season.

Winchester cagers forge splits

Winchester kept it close throughout the first half, coming back from a five-point deficit (13-8) to tie the game at 15-all. A spectacular Dave Middleton-to-Keefe alley-oop play tied it again at 19-19, and Winchester eventually took a 25-23 lead. But Melrose regained the advantage for good on a conventional three-point play from senior captain Chris Buttimer with one second left in the half.

Winchester was unable to score over the first 4:41 of the second half, as Melrose played suffocating defense and opened a 34-25 lead.

"We haven't been playing that well defensively," said Melrose coach Nick Papas. "We did a real nice job. We talked (at halftime) about the importance of setting the (second-half) tempo. The first two or three minutes of the second half makes a big difference."

Winchester was led once again by Keefe, who was harassed by special defenses all day but somehow managed to score 19 points. He tried to lead Winchester back into it midway through the half, hitting a stupendous, spinning, off-the-glass lay-in with 7:22 remaining to cut the Melrose lead to 42-38. But his long 3-pointer from the top of the key rimmed out with 6:40 left, and Melrose responded with a nine-point run to seal the win.

"I don't know what Keefe had," said Papas, "but he earned them."

Despite the poor shooting, the Sachems turned in a solid effort and Dale felt the team defense was as good as it's been this season.

"The kids worked their butts off on defense," Dale acknowledged. "We had the rotation, and guys like Frank (Frisoli) and Dave (Middleton) came off the bench and gave us good minutes. We just abandoned the things we were doing well in the first half."

Sachemettes split pair

After suffering a crushing 37-24 to Melrose last Friday at Daffinee Gymnasium, the Sachemettes bounced back with a win against Watertown Tuesday night at Watertown High. Led by freshman Corrine Imperatore and sophomore Julie Russo, Winchester got back in the win column with a 48-32 decision.

Winchester held an 18-16 lead at the break, then exploded out of the gate in the second half. Winchester put Imperatore at the point and shifted Russo to off-guard in an attempt to get her some open shots. The strategy worked, as Russo was much fresher and was able to pressure the ball defensively throughout the half.

"We really broke it open over the first five or six minutes of the second half," said coach Joe DiSarcina. "Corrine did a fine job running the point, which allowed Julie to save her energy. Julie had an excellent game, especially on defense."

Winchester got balanced scoring throughout its lineup. Julie Russo had 10, Jenna DeSimone nine, Amanda Armstrong eight, Imperatore seven and Esme Baker five. Watertown was led by sophomore Kerry Lessard, who scored a game-high 20 on 10-for-10 shooting.

At Melrose, the Lady Raiders nearly shut the Sachemettes out in the first half, but an Armstrong free throw with 59 seconds remaining before the break gave the team its lone point of the half and Melrose an 18-1 lead.

Winchester showed a lot of heart in the second half, however, outscoring the talented Melrose squad 23-19, behind four points each from Baker, Anna Betcher, Jenn Russo and Julie Russo.

Wrestling Boosters seek contributions

The Winchester High School Wrestling Boosters Club, like the wrestling team, faces a season of rebuilding. The boosters are rebuilding the club's bank account.

The huge success of the last few years' teams proved costly. Costs such as team trophies, awards and tournament expenses have left the boosters in the red this year and seeking any contributions, large or small.

A contribution will assist in the purchase of athletic shoes and other equipment for those unable to buy their own. The boosters provide wrestling camp scholarships for deserving wrestlers. They pay fees for the fall wrestling instruction offered through the recreation department for the community. In addition, the boosters hold an annual banquet to recognize the team's achievements.

Checks should be made payable to Winchester Wrestling Boosters Club and mailed to John and Kate Edmands, 12 Winthrop St., Winchester, MA, 01890, or Larry and Erna Worthen, 15 Hancock St., Winchester, MA, 01890.

New England Mariners baseball seeks players

The New England Mariners Baseball Club is currently recruiting potential players to compete in the 1993 AAU/Junior Olympics.

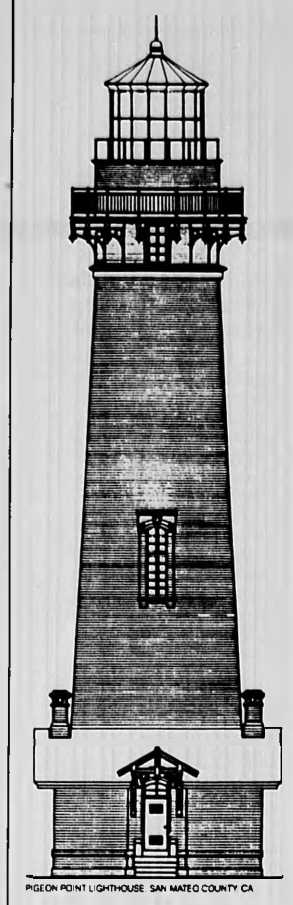

The club is an organization governed by the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) of the United States. The AAU/USA Junior Olympics, founded in 1948, has consistently been one of the largest and most successful programs of its kind in the world of amateur athletics.

The program consists of over 20 Olympic sports with several age classifications, allowing America's youth the opportunity to compete in regional and national tournaments. The Junior Olympics program teaches youngsters the importance of setting goals and striving to achieve and exceed those goals.

In 1992, the New England Mariners 14-year-old baseball team won the gold medal at the national championships, held in Minneapolis. The 13-year-old team placed 17th in the nationals held in Des Moines, Iowa.

The organization is currently accepting applications for coaching positions. These positions are on a volunteer basis, with some expenses paid from the general fund. All travel expenses to the national championships are paid in full.

All player and coaching inquiries should be addressed to: New England Mariners, Inc., 12 Cornell Road, Beverly, Mass., 01915.

Host families needed for French students during spring break

Host families are needed for 25 French students who will be visiting Winchester for two weeks during spring vacation, April 17 through April 30. The students are sponsored by FIVE, a nonprofit organization based in Nice, France. The students are between the ages of 13 and 15 and are visiting the United States in order to take part in American family life and improve their English language skills. Seventeen boys and seven girls will need homes. If interested in hosting a student, call Carol Henderson at 729-1971, as soon as possible.

Host families needed for German students: July 1993

Host families are needed for 35 German students who will be visiting Massachusetts, for the first time, in July 1993. The students are sponsored by International Education Forum, a nonprofit organization based in the United States. The students are between the ages of 14 and 18 and will take part in a homestay immersion program, staying with a host family for four to five weeks. The students are visiting Massachusetts in order to participate in American family life and to improve their English language skills.

If you are interested in hosting a German student, call Carol Henderson at 729-1971 as soon as possible.

Alzheimer's support group at church

An Alzheimer's support group will meet the second and fourth Tuesday of every month at St. Eulalia's Church beginning Feb. 9. The meeting provides peer support to families, friends, and caregivers. The meeting is held at the church's conference road on 50 Ridge Road. For information call 729-8220.

Casey to hold office hours for constituents

Rep. Paul Casey (D-Winchester) will be holding office hours at Winchester Town Hall on the first and third Fridays of each month from 9 — 11 a.m.

Beaux Arts Ball 1993

The Winchester Art Association, Friends of Art, invites you to join us on Saturday, Feb. 27, from 8 p.m. until midnight at the Winchester Town Hall Auditorium for Beaux Arts Ball III — Midnight in Moscow.

The Beaux Arts Ball tradition began as a joyous celebration of the arts and Winchester has adopted this festive practice as our own and we are delighted to offer another evening of live music, delicious refreshments and charming company. "Midnight in Moscow" invites you in from the cold. Start with a review of our silent auction — donated works of art and other items to test our party-goers' bidding skills. Sample an array of tasty tidbits fit for the table of the tsar...and dance to the music of the Jerry and Jack Davis Band. In past years, many guests have embraced the spirit of Mardi Gras by wearing costumes and/or masks. We encourage such creative expression.

All proceeds raised support the extra-budgetary projects of the Winchester School Art Department, grades K-12 and to defray the costs of this event. Tickets remain $25 per person, including refreshments. Wine and beer are available at cost. This is a 21-and-over event. Seating is limited. For information call Margaret Reuland, 721-0751, or Susan Haskell, 729-6327.

Energy Connection offers free workshop

The Energy Connection Fitness Programs will offer a workshop titled "Bodyfat: How Much is Too Much?". ARTS UMBRELLA

Latinision reception

A reception was held for Carolyn D. Latinision, Winchester Art & Frame's first "Artist of the Month," recently at the gallery and frame shop at 47 Church St. As "Artist of the Month," her work will be featured throughout the month of February. The public is invited to the reception but for those who cannot make it, her work will remain on display throughout the month and all are invited to view it anytime from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Latinision is a Winchester resident and maintains a studio in Woburn where she works and teaches watercolor classes. The subjects of her paintings include still life, landscapes and seascapes.

Latinision's work is represented in 25 corporate collections here and in Japan, as well as in many private collections in the United States, Europe, Japan and Australia.

Latanision has won numerous awards in regional and national competitions. In 1989 she was a "Top 100" winner in the National Arts for the Parks competition, having been chosen from over 2,400 entrants. Her painting of the Woburn Public Library, a national historic landmark, toured museums throughout the country for one year. In 1990 she was a top 200 semi-finalist in the same competition.

This past October she won the fourth place medal and prize in the Pennsylvania Watercolor Society National Juried Exhibition. During the same month she was invited to become a juried member of the Catharine Lorillard Wolfe Art Club in New York City while also exhibiting in their 96th Annual Open Exhibition at the National Arts Club.

This month she will be exhibiting in two New York national juried exhibits, the Audubon Artists and the National Society of Casein and Acrylic Painters.

Latanision was recently commissioned to paint "Secret Garden II" as a basis for a limited edition of 435. This courtyard retreat on Beacon Hill was done as a six color lithograph. During the reception she had a limited number of Artist's Proofs and signed them for those who purchased one.

The Players announce auditions

The Winchester Players announce auditions for Anton Chekhov's classic "Three Sisters" translated by Michael Frayn directed by Ken Harvey produced by Ann Guilderson and Carolynn Frueh.

Auditions will be held Tuesday, Feb. 9, at 7:30 in Metcalf Hall of the Winchester Unitarian Church, 478 Main St. If you cannot make this time, individual auditions can be arranged at an earlier date (snow date, Feb. 11). The rehearsals will be Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday, beginning Feb. 28. Performances are, April 30, May 1, 2 and May 7, 8. Please call Harvey, 484-6089, with any questions. Scripts on reserve at Winchester Library.

Artists to be featured

Starting in February, Winchester Art and Frame will feature one of their regular artists each month. Owners Dave and Ethel Smith said they had been considering this for some time and it has been enthusiastically endorsed by the artists. "Not only is it a way of promoting original art, but it enables the public to become better acquainted with each of the individual artists," the Smiths said. "While some of our customers may have several pieces by an artist, they may not know them personally. This will provide that opportunity."

Artists scheduled for the first three months are Winchester's own Carolyn Latanision in February and Ann Bannister in March followed by Carol and John Collette in April. Other artists to follow are Diane Urwin, David Olson, Frank Kaczmarek and Bill Maloney. Discussions are underway with several others from the States and Canada.

A reception will be held on the first Thursday of each month with the artist in attendance. Refreshments will be served and the informal atmosphere should provide the opportunity for everyone to talk at some length with the artist.

Friends of Art work for schools

Often, after a fundraising event, patrons are left wondering "Where does the money go?" For the past three years, the fund-raising committee of the Winchester Art Association, the FRIENDS OF ART, have enjoyed loyal support from the citizens of Winchester. The Friends of Art were organized to provide for some of the extra-budgetary needs of the Winchester School Art Program — Grades K - 12. Through this time, the word gets passed to our 100 plus members directly and in bits and pieces to the general public. So, this is an effort to present in one article some of the big-ticket items that have been donated as a result of your generosity.

Some items were financed in concert with other support groups in town, usually individual school parent-teacher organizations. At Ambrose, funds helped purchase a ceramic kiln. The exhibit "See Me, Share My World," a multicultural display of art work that toured all of Winchester's schools and was on view at the public library, was also, in part, funded with FOA funds. When Katie Oman, a McCall eighth grader, won the highest award at the national level for the Scholastic Art Awards (Globe show), she and her teacher were invited to attend the awards ceremony in Philadelphia. Funds from the FOA helped art teacher, Laurie Schmidt, accept in person the award as well as afford Miss Schmidt the opportunity to share information with art teachers from other nationally recognized programs.

Some items are directed to the needs of a particular school. When a second-hand studio printing press became available, FOA funds bought the press for use at the high school. When Terrence Lannon, McCall art teacher, invested hours of personal time improving the McCall art space, FOA funds paid for room dividers that double as display areas. When art teacher Barbara Gagel puts on her end of year art shows of student work at both Ambrose and Vinson Owen schools, she uses the portable display panels purchased with FOA monies. Marguerite Maserian, WHS art teacher, when art teacher at McCall, requested FOA purchase an expensive drying rack system that would help answer the space needs for students' work in grades 6-8. The increasing popularity of art courses at the high school led to two requests answered with FOA funding. For one month, a visiting artist shared his professional experience with high school students. And a slide-view light table, extremely time-saving for editing presentations made in many departments, was given to the art department through FOA support.

Members do more than raise money. Each year, on Town Day, student art work from every school in Winchester is displayed for the public in the Winchester Town Hall Auditorium. Most adults dream a little in the viewing — our teachers have given students another way of expression, another way to understand and communicate in an increasingly complicated world.

Music club holds meeting in January

Winchester Music Club held its January meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Perrault, Winchester Road, Arlington. Music students from grades seven through 12 performed a varied program of piano and vocal music.

Jan Huppi began the program with Gretchaninoff's Frightening Story. She was joined by her mother, Susan, in a Mozart duet. Emily Tournier then presented the Prelude in E Minor by Chopin, followed by Sudip Stacke, playing the Allegro from Clementi's C Major Sonatina.

Next, Elizabeth Brewer performed another Chopin work, Mazurka, Op. 7 no. 1, and Johathan Harvey, Beethoven's famous Moonlight Sonata.

A change of pace was provided with two selections, Greenfinch and Linnbird from Steven Sondheim's Sweeny Todd, sung by Anne McIndoe and accompanied by Yokiko Shamazak. Leaves of the Seine, a new age piece by David Last, was played by Marie Beauchamp; and then returning to an earlier composer, Taho Lim offered Scharlatti's Sonata in G Major.

Zareen Poonan interpreted the E Minor Nocturne of Chopin. Movements one and two of a modern work, Sonatina no. 3, by Denis Agay, was presented by Beth Goeke, followed by Lauren Esposito, playing Dr. Gradus and Parnassum from the Childrens' Suite by impressionist composer, Claude Debussy. Concluding the program was a performance of Bela Bartok's Roumanian Folk Dances by Clifford Swap. Refreshments followed.

Teachers of the performing students were John Willis, Carol Fieleke and Anne Franciose Perrault. The next Music Club meeting will be held on March 7.

AROUND TOWN

'Winchester, Today and Yesterday'

Winchester, 100 years ago

One hundred years ago Winchester Center was a sleepy village catering to Boston commuters and owners of factories in Winchester and Woburn. A drive around town shows little of the Winchester of yesterday. Photographs must pique imaginations and kindle some memories of stories heard in the past.

The town's photographic history is stored at the Henry Simonds Memorial Archives of the town of Winchester, located in the town hall. Responsibility for the care and keeping of the documents lies with the Winchester Historical Commission. Recently, commission members pored through the photograph collection to choose images for a newspaper article. What evolved has become an occasional series of photographs entitled, "Winchester, Today and Yesterday." The archives also welcomes the public's older photographs, which can be copied or donated. Contact the Archival Center at 721-7146 with comments or additions.

Thompson's Block, Old Post Office and Store, Main Street, opposite Thompson Street

This early photograph provides a glimpse of Main Street 100 years ago. On the left is the site of the old post office and the home of the Winchester Printing Company, which published one of Winchester's first early newspapers, "The Winchester Press." The paper was short-lived, its competition being "The Winchester Star," which is in its 112th year of print.

The Thompson Block is the two-story building on the right. Benjamin Thompson built it around 1840 and moved from his first house on the corner of Main and Thompson streets. The building housed first-floor shops and a second-floor residence for Thompson and his family.

Thompson's leather tannery was originally adjacent to Whitney's Machine Shop (approximately the corner of Waterfield Road and Mystic Valley Parkway). As he expanded, he moved to larger quarters, buying the Waldemeyer Tannery on what is now Manchester Field. According to Nathaniel Richardson's 'Reminiscences of Winchester' ("Winchester Star," Jan. 25 1886), "Benjamin Thompson was largely instrumental in separating the town from Woburn. He was zealous for the incorporation in 1850...truly one of Winchester's town fathers."

Healing racial prejudice

"Healing prejudice through prayer" is the current focus of the Christian Science Reading Room in Winchester. The public is invited to visit the Reading Room to pray and find new insights into healing discrimination. A special issue magazine, "The Healing of Prejudice and its Wounds," is available featuring articles such as "Healing the Wounds of Prejudice" and "Learning How to Defeat Prejudice." Other study resources are also available. The Reading Room is an activity of First Church of Christ, Scientist, 4 Mt. Vernon St. The room is open weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. For information call 729-5856.

New readers elected for services at First Church

The members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, recently elected two new Readers to preside at services. The readers began their three-year terms of office Jan. 17.

Ronald Barton of Leslie Road was elected First Reader, and Julia Fellows of Kenwin Road is now Second Reader.

Mr. Barton is employed in the Treasurer's office at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, while on leave from CSC Index, a management consulting firm headquartered in Cambridge. His wife, Dorothy Leonard-Barton, is a professor at Harvard Business School. Gavin and Michelle, their two children, are graduates of Winchester High School.

Fellows, formerly of Duxbury, is supervising Editor of Science at Prentice Hall in Needham (part of Simon & Schuster). A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, she holds a Master's degree in Ecology from the University of Utah.

As First Reader, Barton conducts the principal part of Sunday services, which begin at 10:30 a.m. His duties also include preparing his own selections of readings for Wednesday evening meetings at 8:00 p.m., which he reads at the beginning of the hour. Then individuals have the opportunity to stand and give testimony to the healing power of God, as they have proven it in their daily lives.

The church is a branch of the Mother Church (The First Church of Christ Scientist) in Boston. Branch churches democratically elect their church officers from within their own lay membership. These include Readers, an Executive Board, a President, a Treasurer and a clerk. There is regular rotation in office.

The Pastor Emeritus, Mary Baker Eddy, ordained the Bible (King James Version) and her textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, as Pastor for all Churches of Christ, Scientist. Each Sunday sermon, as outlined in the Christian Science Quarterly, is comprised of correlative readings from both books. Also known as the "Lesson - Sermon", it is studied daily by students of Christian Science prior to its being heard at services.

Ambrose students participate in performing arts

Students at the Ambrose School will participate in an educational performing arts program, "Tribal Rhythms," presented by Young Audiences of Massachusetts on Wednesday, Feb. 24. Young Audiences is a nonprofit organization which brings live professional dance, theater and music education programs to schools.

The "Tribal Rhythms Celebration" has been presented to more than 250,000 people since 1970 and was featured in the "Arts in Education" symposium of the "Harvard Educational Review" in 1991. In this highly participatory program, students become part of the dramatic stories, create spontaneous music on handmade musical instruments, and move together in "the dance of the mysterious creature." "Tribal Rhythms" is designed to build community spirit, foster multicultural understanding, and promote cooperation, respect, creativity and critical thinking.

Programs are funded in part by the Massachusetts Multicultural Council, a state agency. Interested parents, educators and arts program sponsors should call Young Audiences, at 577-0570 for information about this and other programs.

Neighborhood exchanges pictures with Saint Germain-en-Laye

Jackie Dee's class at the Neighborhood Cooperative School received this drawing from 5-year-old Alex Elliard who attends the Maternelle Bonnenfant School in Saint-Germain en Laye, France, (Winchester's Sister City). Mrs. Dee's class was introduced to our Twin City by Judy Muggia. The class then sent pictures of castles to France along with a letter. The French Schoolchildren responded with approximately 23 drawings and a letter signed by the 5-year-olds. They are interested in receiving information regarding, McDonald's, Mickey Mouse, Native Americans and skyscrapers.

Ambrose offers multicultural education

In January, Ambrose Elementary School offered several programs on multicultural education for parents, teachers, and others. On Jan. 7, the fourth and fifth grade teachers from Ambrose organized a reading workshop designed to enhance the use of multicultural literature in Winchester school libraries and classrooms.

More than 30 librarians, parents, administrators and teachers attended the workshop. Led by Gail Willet of Savanna Books in Cambridge, the workshop included a list of books chosen for their multicultural themes, as well as books whose authors and illustrators were people of color.

The workshop participants, each of whom had read at least one book from the list, explored methods of presenting the characters and themes of such books to their students. The workshop was sponsored by a grant from the Winchester Foundation for Educational Excellence.

On Tuesday, Jan. 26, the Ambrose Parents Association and the Winchester Multicultural Network sponsored a second workshop at Ambrose School for parents and teachers on how to help children deal with differences. The workshop, led by Visions Inc., a nonprofit organization, included a role-playing exercise which dramatized the difficulties parents face in aiding the victims of discrimination, as well as dealing with the offenders. A group discussion followed. The result of the workshop was the development of a set of guidelines for relating to others with differences of all kinds, such as differences in culture, race, ethnicity, or sex.

Althea Smith and Barbara Bond, the "Vision" workshop leaders, suggested that one of the more important guidelines in aiding the victims of discrimination is to identify and acknowledge their feelings. In dealing with the offenders, the participants were encouraged to ask hard questions concerning the reasons for the offender's behavior and emotions, in addition to establishing clear guidelines as to what is acceptable and what is not.

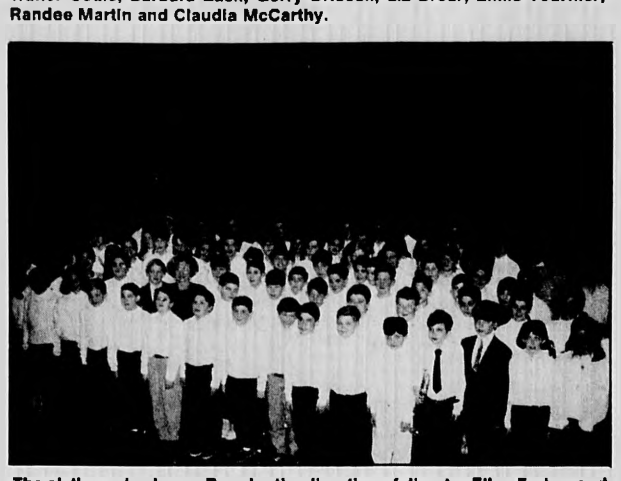

"Multicultural education" was defined by Smith and Bond as the three-step process of identifying understanding, and appreciating differences. Parents and teachers were urged not to expect a "quick fix" but rather to understand that the solution to problems of discrimination and prejudice involved an ongoing process that develops one step at a time. Participants were urged to continually engage in this process themselves as well as to help others do the same.

The sixth grade chorus B under the direction of director Ellen Farber and accompanists Lori and David Lerman performed Thursday, Jan. 21 at the McCall Middle School. The compositions were Doris Nobis Pacem, a seventeenth C Latin Hymn, The Rose, a popular ballad, DeColores, a Spanish song with student Mariachi Band and over the Rainbow from the Wizard of Oz.

Sukanya Lahiri and Alicia Franke attended a national conference on how to teach elementary children about racial intolerance.

Two students attend conference to teach tolerance

Two Winchester High School students, Sukanya Lahiri and Alicia Franke, have been trained by the National Conference of Christians and Jews (NCCJ) to go into their local elementary schools and teach issues of tolerance and understanding to second and third grade students. They have been trained in the Green Circle program, which focuses on giving young students the understanding and practical knowledge to make decisions about who they will choose to include and exclude from their circle of "caring and sharing." The training took place during the weekend of Jan. 8,9,10, at the 4-H Center in Ashland. The highly intensive weekend focused on values clarification, child development, facilitation skills, as well as a better understanding of issues around inclusiveness in our society. The students left the training with enthusiasm and a vigor to perform the Green Circle program at their local elementary schools. Furthermore, each student felt a sense of pride in their opportunity to be "teachers and leaders" to young children in their communities.

The high school teens will be doing this project as a part of a federal "ServeAmerica" grant that was awarded to the state to help involve young leaders in community service programs. A portion of the Massachusetts' grant was awarded to the National Conference of Christians and Jews(NCCJ) for the Into the Circle program. NCCJ is a nonprofit, nonsectarian human relations organization providing educational programming around issues of prejudice. NCCJ will help supervise the high school youth throughout this process. Each teen will provide 12 hours of classroom training to an elementary school in their town sometime between January and June. Those involved in this project include: Beverly, Brookline, Gloucester, Milton Academy, Norwell, Stoughton, Waltham, Wellesley, Weymouth, and Winchester.

Susan Musinsky, NCCJ associate director and supervisor of the project states, "I believe that this program will give high school teens a real opportunity to teach prejudice reduction skills to young students in their communities. It will offer a wonderful learning experience in tolerance and understanding for both the teens and the elementary school students who are involved."

NCNS to hold open house on Feb. 25

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, 21 Church St., will hold its annual open house on Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. Programs for children ages 2.9 to 5 years old are available for the 1993-1994 school session. Interested parents are invited to meet the teachers, visit the classrooms and learn the school's philosophy of child development. Membership in the 'cooperative' enables parents to have an integral, involved part in the child's first school experience. New applications will be accepted, beginning Feb. 1 and admissions will be processed Feb. 26. For further information call Jan DiPerna, the director, at 729-8081.

Achtung!

The Winchester High School German Club is gearing up for their biannual exchange with the Albert Einstein Gymnasium in Munich, Germany. This year the German visitors will arrive March 25 and depart April 15. Approximately 15 students from Winchester will return the visit in June.

The club has been working hard to sell candy to support the activities for these visitors to local excursions. They are preparing applications and trying to find host families for the additional students and the two teachers who will serve as chaperones. Anyone who can host a male or female visitor for three weeks or even part of that time is asked to inform the club. The man does smoke, but is willing to do so outdoors.

Additionally, volunteers are needed for time, energy or ideas concerning local excursions for the visitors. The club would appreciate any help possible. For more information, or to volunteer, call the school at 721-7020 and ask for Pat Smith.

Jonathon D. Hall, M.D.

Hall achieves board certification

Jonathon D. Hall, M.D., a surgeon affiliated with Winchester Hospital who practices hand, cosmetic and plastic surgery, recently completed all requirements for board certification in plastic and reconstructive surgery. This is a rigorous process which requires the applicant to successfully complete an approved residency which begins after medical school, in an area such as general surgery, for a minimum of three to five years. This is followed by a plastic surgery fellowship of two to three years. If the applicant is then recommended by the plastic surgery program director, he or she must successfully complete a seven-hour written examination, be in practice for two years, and submit a list of all surgeries performed in a consecutive 12-month period. If this is judged satisfactory by the Board of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, the applicant must then undergo a two-hour oral examination.

Hall attended medical school at Washington University in St. Louis and completed his residency in general surgery and then plastic and reconstructive surgery at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. He has also completed a fellowship training in craniomaxillofacial and pediatric plastic surgery at the International Craniofacial Institute in Dallas. Hall is the author of many articles within the fields of plastic and reconstructive and craniomaxillofacial surgery and has been published in the "Annals of Plastic Surgery," the "British Journal of Plastic Surgery," the "Journal of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery," the "Journal of Craniofacial Surgery" and "Breast Disease." His offices are located in the Russell Hill building at 955 Main St., Winchester, and at 300 Quannapowitt Parkway in Wakefield.

Hospital offers support group for the chronically ill

For people with chronic illnesses seeking support and guidance, Winchester Hospital offers 'New Day — New Hope.'

This free support group offers counseling, information and resources for people with chronic illnesses such as multiple sclerosis, lupus, arthritis, Parkinson's disease, chronic obstructive lung disease, heart disease, diabetes, cancer and strokes.

'New Day — New Hope' meets the third Tuesday of every month from noon to 2 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. The next meeting is Feb. 16. For information call Winchester Hospital's Social Services Department at 756-2634.

Geriatric services a priority

The numbers tell us that senior citizens make up the fastest growing segment of the U.S. population. In fact, it's estimated that by the year 2000, 13 percent of Americans will be over the age of 65, and our average life expectancy now stands at 72 years for men and 79 years for women.

Along with Americans' increasing life expectancy comes an increasing need for certain healthcare resources. Winchester Hospital is responding to that need in the communities it serves with an array of special services just for seniors.

The hospital's commitment to the elderly community begins with a staff specially trained in geriatrics. This staff is comprised of a physician who specializes in geriatric medicine; three nurses with advanced education and training as clinical specialists in geriatrics; a remotivation therapist; and a social worker with geriatric expertise.

"Our commitment to the senior community goes far beyond just treating them as patients when they're hospitalized," says Paula Koppel, R.N. "Our goal is to help as many seniors as possible stay as independent and self-sufficient for as long as possible, and to provide the support services that they and their families need to achieve that goal."

In addition to consultative services for both inpatients and outpatients at Winchester Hospital as well as social service counseling and referral, these resources include:

• The Recuperative Program. This innovative program was designed to maintain and restore patients' health, independence and strength during their hospital stay. The program is free of charge to inpatients at Winchester Hospital and aims to speed patients' recovery so that they can return home as quickly as possible.

• Lifeline. Winchester Hospital has offered this well-known personal monitoring and response service for eight years; today nearly 300 local subscribers take advantage of its 24-hour-a-day coverage.

"Lifeline gives people a sense of security and independence," says Joanne Artiano, the Lifeline program coordinator at Winchester Hospital who, along with eight volunteers, staffs the service.

"It's like an insurance policy, giving people an immediate connection to the outside world just in case something happens," she continues. "And it alleviates stress for caregivers, such as the child of an elderly parent, who simply can't be available around the clock."

• Family Caregiver Program. This program is designed to help family members with a parent, spouse, sibling or friend who needs home care. Small group meetings with a registered nurse who specializes in geriatric medicine provide practical advice and compassionate support.

The hospital also offers an information and support group called "You and Your Aging Relative" which addresses the issues faced by the adult child of an aging parent, and provides information on community resources.

• Home healthcare services. Winchester Hospital offers comprehensive home healthcare services through visiting nurse and health care, and Winchester Home Health. These services include nursing, health aides, physical, speech and occupational therapy, and home health supplies and equipment.

A relatively new offering is the Senior Health Days at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center in Woburn. Each month, a day-long program of lectures, workshops and screenings on a specific health topic is provided to interested seniors at no charge. Lunch is included. Recent topics have addressed diabetes, eye health and healthy heart living.

In addition, Dinner Dates is an employee volunteer program at Winchester Hospital designed to help elderly patients by giving them encouragement and companionship at mealtimes.

"Our volunteers have found that personal contact and sharing experiences with an older person is not only rewarding for the patient, but also very fulfilling for the volunteer," says Koppel.

The Geriatric Consult Services at Winchester Hospital provides consultation on the medical care of seniors in the hospital as well as in the community. Inpatient and outpatient evaluations are provided by a geriatric team which is composed of a geriatrician, geriatric social worker and geriatric nurse specialist.

For more information on the senior services offered by Winchester Hospital call 756-2297.

Quitters in motion at Winchester Hospital

Ex-smokers often need extra support and encouragement to adjust to a new way of life once they have given up smoking. Many people find it hard to be around family and friends who are smokers, others look for advice from someone who has successfully quit.

"Quitters in Motion," offered by Winchester Hospital, is an ongoing support group for those who have quit or are trying to quit smoking. This group may be used in conjunction with the nicotine patch as a patch advantage program.

The group will meet from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday evenings at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center, and costs $7 at the door. For information call 932-8200.

Training course for nurses aides

For nurses aides, or those interested in becoming a nurses aide, Winchester Hospital now offers a nurses aides training course, which meets the needs of state requirements for certification.

The course includes learning about activities of daily living, understanding residents and residents rights, infection control, safety procedures, nutrition and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

The course will run from Feb. 1 through 17, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center at 23 Warren Ave. in Woburn.

For price information contact Winchester Hospital at 756-2220.

Care of the newborn

The first few days and weeks at home after the birth of a baby are exhilarating and they may also raise many questions.

"Care of The Newborn," a workshop which gives parents the latest information about the physical and psychological needs of the newborn, is now offered by Winchester Hospital. Some topics for discussion include: newborn appearance and reflexes, choosing a pediatrician, safety issues, feeding.

"Care of the Newborn" is held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for two consecutive Mondays every month. Call Winchester Hospital more information at 756-2220.

Presidents' Day

Tradition has roots in Boston

BY MICHAEL BERGER
HARTE-HANKS CORRESPONDENT

New England has many home grown traditions: clam bakes, corn chowder, and Patriots Day, and of course, President's Day car sales.

According to several dealers, the tradition seems to have started many years ago as a way to get the spring selling season moving.

According to Jerry Chase, general manager at Framingham Ford, the sale began in Boston.

"What it was, was, Alvan Fuller — Governor Fuller — owned Fuller Cadillac on Commonwealth Avenue and Fuller Packard," Chase said.

Chase said there was an "auto row" of dealerships on Commonwealth Avenue in Boston.

"They were trying to figure out a time of year when winter came into spring and that was Washington's birthday," said Chase. That, he said, was back in the 1940s or 1950s.

The idea behind the sale was that people would nurse their car through winter and get a shiny new car for spring and summer, he said.

"To this day it's a great selling weekend," Chase added.

According to dealers, the sale begins on Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12, and is strongest through the weekend and, of course, on Washington's birthday, which is celebrated Feb. 15.

But many dealers continue the sale through the week and some through the entire month of February.

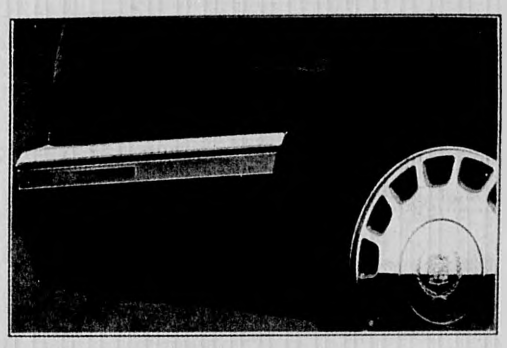

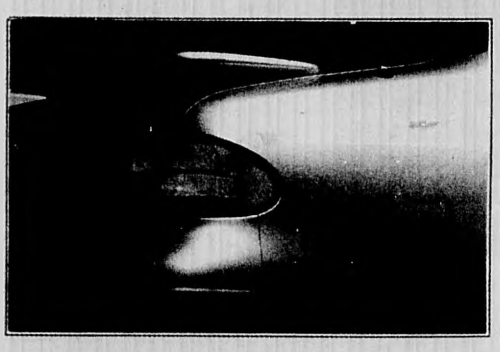

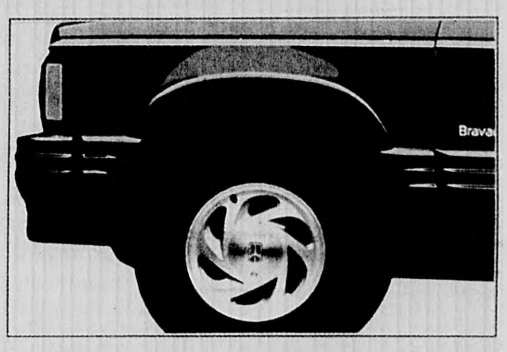

John Fashjian, president and owner of Framingham Chrysler Plymouth and Framingham Oldsmobile, said he will continue the President's sale "right through the end of the month."

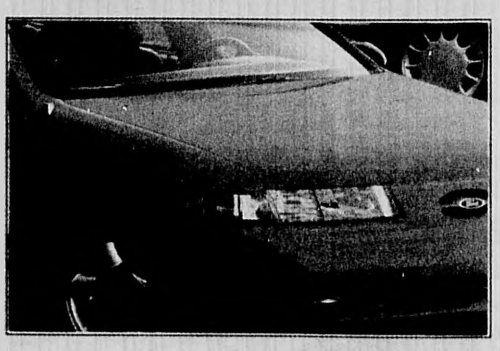

Fashjian said in addition to Chrysler's renowned minivans, Chrysler now offers its new mid-size LH sedans, the Chrysler Concorde, Dodge Intrepid and Eagle Vision, which com-

Chevrolet Caprice Classic LTZ

Big car with powerful engine

If you want to make a big impression on your neighbors, drive home in a 1993 Chevrolet Caprice Classic LTZ. This car is big from the word go.

KEANE ON WHEELS

By Tom Keane

Notice that I put emphasis on the words big and go; they are the essence of this report. This full-size sedan, that easily seats six people, will go anywhere — with power to spare.

The LTZ has a 5.7-liter V-8 engine that produces 300 pounds-foot of torque. That puts it in a class of its own. It has plenty of horsepower, too. Six people could put their luggage in the trunk, hitch a trailer to the rear and take off for the mountains. The engine can tow 5,000 pounds, which has an above average towing capability.

The down side is in miles per gallon. It is rated 16 city and 25 highway. Another drawback to city driving is getting in and out of traffic or negotiating a parking space. I tried to park it by a curb between two other cars and gave up because I couldn't see what I was doing.

It reminds me of cars of years ago. The instrument panel and hood are massive. The same thing applies to the front seat. The 6040 bench seat is extra large allowing plenty of room for a third person in the front seat. For the lack of a third person, a center armrest pulls down to add to the driving comfort. Even that is exceptionally large. The rear seat also has a pull-down center armrest, and everyone has plenty of head and leg room — even the sixth passenger seated in the front. The LTZ I drove had leather seats, an option that gave the interior a wealthy appearance, and reading lamps that added a touch of class.

There are storage areas on the doors, and in keeping with the current trend, it has a cup and coin holder. Naturally, it has all the power equipment you'd expect of a car in this price category. The windows,

Pontiac Grand Prix

LE sedan is true to Pontiac signature with 'thoughtful' features

Pontiac designers are a breed apart. Although each model is different, every car is distinctly a Pontiac. The 1993 Grand Prix LE sedan is no exception.

KEANE ON WHEELS
By Tom Keane

I'm unable to decipher the Pontiac signature or explain what it is. It may be the grooved cladding running down the side rocker panels, or the low front end, or the design of the headlamps, or the overall profile. Whatever, a Pontiac is easy to recognize.

Although the Grand Prix has a few new features for 1993, this model has been around a few years and the Pontiac people are quick to brag of its past performance. Last year, for example, it had the highest rating in J.D. Power and Associates Initial Quality Survey. That means Grand Prix buyers had fewer problems compared to those buying other cars.

Pontiac people tout the Grand Prix LE sedan for its competitive price advantage. The car I drove cost $17,943, including $3,000 in options. They also boast that the Grand Prix did not increase its price this year.

The options include anti-lock brakes for an extra $450 — a worthwhile investment. On the other hand, I question the need to pay an extra $200 for a four-speed transmission. Most cars today include a four-speed transmission as standard equipment.

Another feature on some other cars in this price category is an airbag, which allows use of a more sensible seat belt. Fortunately, the Grand Prix has a passive three-point belt restraint that is fastened to the door, which is better than a motorized belt. Unfortunately, the strap rubbed my neck.

The doors on the Grand Prix lock when the transmission is engaged — a thoughtful safety feature. However, instead of the doors unlocking when the transmission is disengaged, it

Volkswagen Passat

Power, sophistication added to VR-6 engine

AUBURN HILLS, MICH. — With the intent of taking dead aim at some of the world's best V-6 powered mid-size sedans, Volkswagen has unleashed its second high-powered, six-cylinder offering in the U.S. — the 1993 Passat GLX.

The Passat GLX, which follows on the heels of the highly acclaimed Corrado SLC, is the latest Volkswagen model to come equipped with the German automaker's award-winning VR engine. Last year, Volkswagen received a POPULAR SCIENCE magazine "Best of What's New" award for the development of the VR6 engine, in recognition of its revolutionary design breakthrough that allows a six-cylinder to fit into virtually the same space as a standard four-cylinder.

The Passat GLX is our flagship vehicle and as such represents everything Volkswagen stands for in the marketplace: quality, innovative design, advanced engineering, spirited European driving performance, safety and superior value," said Bill Young, president and CEO, Volkswagen of America.

The Passat GLX's new 2.8-liter VR6 engine produces 172 horsepower and, unlike standard V-6 engines where cylinder banks are 60 or 90 degrees apart, is set in a zigzag fashion at 15 degrees under one cylinder head. This new-found power is mated with a five-speed manual or electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission designed for smoother shifting and a quieter ride.

The GLX becomes the fastest sedan ever offered by Volkswagen with an electronically limited top-speed of 130 mph and 0-to-60 acceleration performance of just 7.9 seconds. Later this fall, Volkswagen will also offer the Passat GLX in a wagon configuration.

Because of its innovative use of space, development of the Passat's VR6 engine took Volkswagen nearly a decade of research, design and engineering. The result was more power in less space, a feature that allows the GLX to maintain every cubic inch of the Passat's renowned interior spaciousness. With 97 cubic feet of passenger space, the Passat GLX has more room than any Volvo, BMW 5 series or Mercedes 300 series.

"Our intent with the Passat model line-up has always been the same — to show consumers that a true European performance sedan doesn't have to come with a stylish price tag," Young said. The GLX, a family-sized sedan that will stir the heart of any true driver enthusiast, makes this statement even more profoundly."

Young said that by offering consumers the look and feel of a German sports sedan, the GLX fills the void between Asian entries like the Maxima SE and Toyota Camry LE V6 and less affordable European models.

"For the driving enthusiast with sedan needs, the GLX is the only alternative to offer genuine Autobahn driving capabilities with exceptional room and advanced ergonomics at a realistic price," he said.

A fully refined version of the Passat theme, the GLX's sporty performance is also enhanced by a modified "Plus Axle" suspension system, an innovation designed to accommodate the VR6's powertrain and significantly reduce torque steer.

This new suspension system, which is also used on the Corrado SLC, additionally helps soften the GLX's ride for more comfort. The new geometry of the front suspension in combination with 215/50R15V all-season radial tires provides an increased negative steering radius, offsetting most torque steer characteristics and providing directional control out of turns.

To further ensure that this new-found brawn is spent wisely, Volkswagen also equipped the GLX with its new electronically controlled traction control system, which helps prevent wheel spin during quick or slippery starts. By monitoring an then adjusting front wheel spin and speed, this system works in conjunction with the ABS function, allowing more power to be transmitted from the vehicle to the road surface where it is needed.

Other performance features that help tame the VR6 powertrain include four-wheel state-of-the-art ABS brakes (standard equipment) and power rack-and-pinion steering.

All Passat models offer four-wheel independent suspension, with the front suspension system employing a wishbone lower control arm, stabilizer bar and MacPherson struts. The rear suspension in the GLX uses torsion-beam-linked trailing arms, gas shock absorbers an and integrated stabilizer bar. The suspension's unique track-correcting bushings enhance handling and driver control.

A DIFFERENT KIND of COMPANY.
A DIFFERENT KIND of CAR.

Is your car really ready for winter?

Winter's a difficult time for your car, but let's assume you've taken care of seasonal services — you've serviced the cooling system with proper antifreeze protection. You've had the engine tuned up, changed the oil and checked out the battery and electrical system.

What can you do on the day before the arrival of that cold Canadian air? Consider these suggestions from the Car Care Council:

– Park in a location protected from the wind. If you have no garage or carport, park with the rear of the vehicle toward the wind.

– Place a 75 watt light bulb near the battery to prevent freezing. Mount it securely, so it cannot touch anything.

– Fill the gas tank and pour in a bottle of fuel line antifreeze as an added precaution. Condensation in the tank and gas lines can freeze up, blocking fuel flow.

– If you've been doing a lot of stop-and-go driving with lights, heater and other accessories turned on, hook up your battery charger, if you have one. A battery may lose half or more of its power when the temperature takes a severe dip.

– Have some lock defroster and a good scraper handy.

– Do your windshield wipers and washers work properly? Do you have adequate windshield washer antifreeze solvent? (Consider installing winter wiper blades that resist becoming encrusted with ice and snow.)

– Check tire inflation. For every 10 degree drop in temperature, tires lose one pound of pressure. If the thermometer read 80 degrees the last time you checked them, your tires would be underinflated by 5 pounds or more when the temperature falls below freezing.

The council offers an informative pamphlet entitled "Are you sure you and your car are ready for winter?" Providing detailed preventive maintenance tips, the illustrated brochure includes a handy 36-point bumper-to-bumper check list plus suggestions for a blizzard emergency kit.

It's free. Send a stamped, self-addressed #10 envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. W, One Grande Lake Dr., Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Oldsmobile Eighty Eight Royale

Fully reengineered in 1992, the Oldsmobile Eighty Eight models feature several refinements and improvements for the new model year. These high-value, full-sized contemporary family sedans were thoroughly updated for excellent performance and satisfaction through the 1990s.

Common to both Eighty Eight models is a roomy four-door sedan bodystyle with smart exterior design and spacious five- or six-passenger accommodation. ABS brakes are standard on all Eighty Eight Royale models in 1993.

Power is supplied by a modern 3800 V-6 engine with sequential port-type electronic fuel injection, a tuned-length intake manifold, distributorless ignition, single serpentine belt accessory drive, counter-rotating balance shaft, and roller-type hydraulic valve lifters.

For 1993, this engine benefits from a higher compression ratio, new injectors, and revised emission controls. The net result is more torque — up from 22 to 225 lb-ft, better fuel economy and a cleaner exhaust. Acceleration performance is also improved.

1993 Oldsmobile Eighty Eight Royale LSS

Oldsmobile's value-leading full-sized sedan is fully equipped with a driver's-side air bag, air conditioning, tilt steering wheel, a 55/45 split-bench front seat, an AM/FM stereo radio, Pass Key anti-theft system and all-season radial tires. One noteworthy change for 1993 is that accident-preventing ABS is now standard, rather than optional on the Royale.

The Royale LS edition of the Oldsmobile Eighty Eight adds several functions and features to that available in the Eighty Eight Royale. Cruise control, power mirrors, a cassette player, and rear-seat climate-control outlets are some of the important additions.

Options — both free-standing and in convenient packages — permit the LS buyer to upgrade this car with leather upholstery, a CD player, 16-inch aluminum wheels, touring suspension with variable assist steering and electronic instrumentation with a driver information center.

A special package introduced during the 1992 model year has been especially successful in thwarting West coast import sales. Identified as the Royale LSS, this leading edge Oldsmobile is the sport sedan of the Eighty Eight line. The following equipment is included in one easy-to-order package: bucket seats with power adjustments on the drives side, full instrumentation, center console with storage, touring suspension, automatic leveling, 16-inch aluminum wheels, 60-series radial touring tires, and a driver's information center.

The power of intelligent engineering is clearly visible in these leading edge high value, full-sized family sedans. The Eighty Eight Royale models are well equipped with the most prized safety features — ABS, driver's-side air bag, and front-wheel drive — to give today's family the ultimate combination of contemporary design, comfort and advanced engineering at an attractive price.

1993 Mitsubishi Diamante

For many, the term "luxury car" conjures up thoughts of a vehicle that offers a plush, spacious cabin with an array of interior comfort amenities and an elegant exterior. And until recently, references to such performance features as multi-valve combustion chamber technology and dual-stage induction systems were limited mostly to sports cars

However, with the emergence of increasingly discerning and demanding luxury car buyers, along with the evolution of automotive engineering, a more contemporary automobile category called "luxury performance sedan" has developed. Buyers of these cars appreciate the traditional qualities of comfort and elegance, but never at the expense of brisk power and sure-footed handling.

Mitsubishi Diamante ES

Mitsubishi's Diamante ES and Diamante LS luxury performance sedans include ideal counterparts for their refined interiors and upscale looks with the combination of a strong 3.0-liter fuel-injected V6 engine coupled to an electronically-controlled four-speed automatic overdrive transmission.

Both Diamante SOHC and DOHC engines incorporate several performance enhancing engineering features such as: roller rocker arms to lower valve stem friction and increase low speed torque; auto lash adjusters to lower valve operation noise; ECI-Multipoint fuel injection for efficient fuel management and good drivability; and Mitsubishi's Variable Induction Control System (MVIC) for a flat torque curve — all successfully proven in Mitsubishi's newest generation of vehicles.

A system called ECI-Multi fuel injection on the Diamante engines incorporates a microprocessor control unit that continually calculates air volume, intake air temperature, coolant temperature and barometric pressure to determine optimum fuel injection delivery requirements.

The ECI-Multi system contributes to better combustion efficiency, throttle response and fuel economy through optimal regulation of the timing and duration of each individual fuel injector.

Additionally, to better disperse fuel to the two intake valves on the DOHC engine, twin-spray fuel injectors are utilized. This advanced design ensures uniform fuel-air distribution and overcomes fuel lag during acceleration.

Maximum intake efficiency has been improved substantially by the MVIC system switching gradually from the long (low rpm) port to the short (high rpm) port to correspond with engine speed. The MVIC system benefits engine performance by eliminating flat spots during acceleration and increasing low and mid-range torque by nearly 10 percent over conventional 3.0-liter V6 induction systems.

Another technological feature of the DOHC engine is the knock control system. A 16-bit/32 byte microprocessor calculates engine conditions and regulates the ignition system timing to prevent knocking and allow peak engine efficiency under all driving conditions.

Diamante models are equipped with a 4-speed automatic transmission which utilizes advanced electronics to deliver exceptionally smooth shifting characteristics in both "economy" and "power" modes.

Subaru Impreza

All-new subcompact and sedan introduced

Subaru of America will add the Impreza series of subcompact front and all-wheel drive sedans and wagons to its 1993 lineup, according to the firms and its parent company, Fuji Heavy Industries, Ltd. in Japan.

For rust perforation coverage, the limited warranty is five years with unlimited mileage.

The Impreza, which will carry the same name in the U.S. and Japanese markets, aims to establish a class-leading balance of performance, comfort and safety while also offering trademark Subaru value and durability. The Impreza sedans and wagons will arrive in U.S. dealer showrooms this month, and will be sold alongside the Justy, Loyale, Legacy and SVX.

According to Chuck Worrell, Subaru executive vice president, lessons learned in designing the Legacy and the flagship SVX coupe played an important role in the development of the Impreza.

"By borrowing the outstanding Legacy platform and many of the technological advances implemented in the SVX, the Impreza will compete in the subcompact segment armed with class-leading levels of performance, value, quietness and safety," Worrell said.

Impreza sedans and wagons will be offered in L and LS trim levels, in front and all-wheel drive and with five-speed manual and four-speed electronic automatic transmissions.

Superior traction is achieved through a host of design considerations coupled with either of the front-wheel (FWD) or two all-wheel drive (AWD) systems. Both FWD and AWD Impreza models benefit from the horizontally-opposed engine's low center of gravity, a lock at first gear for slipper roads, the unique four-speed electronic automatic transmission and on LS models, four-wheel disc brakes with ABS.

In addition to its superior traction and structural integrity, safety features include standard driver's-side airbag, adjustable three-point manual seat belts and the unique Subaru hill holder which affords manual transmission-equipped models easy first gear starts on steep inclines.

1993 Subaru Impreza sedan

The Impreza is powered by a 1.8-liter, 110 hp, four-valve, SOHC, horizontally-opposed aluminum four-cylinder engine with multi-point fuel injection. The engine system was designed for superior low-end power for daily driving and ease of maintenance and serviceability for low cost ownership.

To achieve leading levels of ride comfort, handling and control, the Impreza features a four-wheel independent suspension, power rack and pinion steering and power brakes. Impreza L models are equipped with disc front and drum rear brakes while LS models incorporate four-wheel disc brakes with four-channel ABS.

The suspension's negative scrub and anti-drive and anti-squat geometry help give both the front and all-wheel drive equipped models excellent stability.

Crucial in the subcompact segment is utilization of available interior space, and the Impreza excels in that department, with class-leading front legroom and headroom and total EPA Interior Volume.

All Subaru automobile, including the Impreza, are sold and serviced by the nearly 740 dealers nationwide and are covered by a three-year, 36,000-mile limited warranty. For rust perforation coverage, the limited warranty is five years with unlimited mileage.

Lincoln Mark VIII

All-New 1993 Lincoln Mark VIII is years ahead of its time

Mark December 26 on your calendar as Mark VIII Day. That's when Lincoln introduces a new luxury coupe that will drive right into the next century.

KEANE ON WHEELS
By Tom Keane

The reason is that this car is as good as it gets; they don't make them any better. What I like most about the Mark VIII is that it is a luxurious coupe with definite sports-car handling characteristics. The Mark VII was somewhat a luxury car with sporty features, but it didn't excel in either area. This new car, with its great handling and strong engine, makes driving fun.

This is the eighth in a series of Mark cars that began back in 1940. The first car had a spare tire housing on the trunk lid and the identifying tradition continued through the years. The 1993 version, however, is hardly noticeable.

The new Mark has long, sleek lines. The overall length is longer than the Mark VII and the wheelbase is five-inches longer, too. But it handles easier and doesn't seem as big. I suspect the ease in handling is the result of better visibility. The instrument panel and hood seem lower and the drivers seat higher — even though this model has a lower roof line compared to the Mark VII. How Lincoln accomplished this, I don't know.

There are numerous ingenious designs in the new Mark. The curb weight is lighter than the Mark VII, but the ride feels heavier and more solid. The trunk lid is lower than the lid on the old Mark, but has more usable storage space. However, it still has limited storage capacity. The back seat is easier to get into, too, but I'd recommend it only in emergency.

The bucket-type front seats are delightful. They are covered with leather that matches the surroundings. Although the entire interior

1993 Geo Prizm LSi

All-new Geo Prizm: luxury car features with a compact price tag

Comparing the new Geo Prizm to last year's model is like comparing apples with oranges. The 1993 Prizm is completely different.

By Tom Keane

As soon as I laid eyes on this beauty, I could see the difference. The entire body has new sheet metal, and the overall design is more attractive and stylish. Both the door handles and windows are flush, and it has eye-catching alloy wheels. It's a bit longer, too.

What impressed me most is that it is much quieter. After my initial ride, I asked a Geo representative, "How did you get rid of the noise?" His confusing explanation had something to do with a redesigned A-pillar, and the isolation of the passenger compartment from the engine compartment. The design allows the wind to flow over the windshield and around the door, reducing the interior noise level to a hush.

Luxurious treatment is demanded by buyers of the Toyota Camry or the Lexus 400, but on a thrifty little Prizm? No way. That is why not hearing the air rush and engine noise on this compact is a pleasant surprise. I suspect Toyota designers had a lot to do with this design. The Geo Prizm is a General Motors-Toyota joint venture that is built in Fremont, California.

I was so impressed with the quiet ride, I purposely played with the power-control windows by opening and closing them just to listen to the difference in sound. I did the same thing with the sun roof. When closed, you can't hear a whisper coming from the ceiling. Open it, and you can't hear yourself think.

Obviously, I'm impressed with the quiet ride, but there is much more. It has an airbag as standard equipment, and anti-lock brakes are an option. The airbag allows the use of the more sensible three-point safety belt. Even rear seat passengers have shoulder safety belts.

Change oil, filter to help car last longer

BY BOB SIKORSKY
FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Dear Bob: I have a 1974 Datsun with 45,000 miles. I have not driven it hard, averaging only 3,000 miles per year.

I cannot afford to buy a newer car. The speedometer needs fixing ($100), and it needs a new paint job ($250). The last one lasted three years.

My son-in-law advises me not to put any more money into the car. The mechanic says, "Well, it's transportation."

What do you think? Maybe other senior citizens are having this problem. — H.D., Spokane, Wash.

Dear H.D.: I receive a lot of letters from seniors living on a fixed income and unable to purchase a newer vehicle.

I agree with both your son-in-law and your mechanic; if that sounds contradictory, let me explain.

You only drive about 3,000 miles a year, so all you need is, as your mechanic says, "transportation."

Your son-in-law advises not putting any more money into the car. You can get by without fresh paint and, if it's legal in Washington, even without a speedometer, although I would consider it a necessity for safety reasons.

Your car is a babe in the woods mileage-wise. But don't be deluded into thinking you are not driving it hard because you put only 3,000 miles a year on it.

You should put some money into it in the form of oil and filter changes and a lube every three months (forget about how few miles you have gone). This will help keep those big-ticket items such as a rebuilt engine at bay.

Don't forget to treat the cooling system and transmission to periodic fluid changes also. These small monetary investments — and investments they are — will keep your car going.

New paint won't do a thing to help the car run better or last longer.

Dear Bob: I read your recent article on Teflon-type oil additives that could clog oil passages in the engine and am concerned because I have added one of these products to my oil.

Any information you can give me on what to do, if anything, will be appreciated. — J.R., St. Petersburg, Fla.

Dear J.R.: I wouldn't be too concerned about adding a single can of this type of engine treatment, but here is a rule of thumb to use when considering any type of oil supplement or engine treatment: If the container says "Shake well before using," I'd steer clear of that particular product.

Why be concerned about this? If you have to shake the container first, the active ingredient isn't suspended properly and has more than likely settled to the bottom of the container. If it settles out in the container, chances are good that it will probably settle in your engine where it will do no good and will add to sludge buildup.

A few PTFE (a Teflon-type substance) products are properly suspended. If you choose to use a PTFE treatment in your engine, be certain it is one you don't have to shake, rattle and roll before using.

Dear Bob: Please tell me how long a car should be warmed up before driving it on cold winter mornings? Is there a difference in the warm-up times of automatic- and standard-transmission cars?

Also, how much gas does a warm-up use? — J.R., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear J.R.: Although I have addressed this question a number of times in the past, it is important enough to deserve a yearly review.

With much of the country socked into harsh weather, cold winter morning starts are, unfortunately, a reality many of us have to deal with daily. But whether you live in New York or Florida, the following advice applies.

Ideally, a car should be started, idled only until sufficient oil pressure is established (the oil light goes out or the oil-pressure gauge reads normal), then moved. If the engine is tuned properly, this procedure should take about 15 seconds.

If the car protests being put into gear so soon, then use the minimum amount of cold-engine idling sufficient to allow the car to be driven without bucking or stalling. There should be no difference in the warm-up times of automatic and standard-transmission cars.

Cold-engine idling on winter mornings is one of the most severe modes of engine operation. Extended cold idling causes rapid contaminant buildup in the oil and deposit buildup on internal engine parts. It also allows rust-producing moisture to invade the engine and it wastes copious amounts of gasoline.

In addition, the unburned gasoline will dilute the oil, making it much less effective. A car that gets 25 mpg when warm may get only 2 or 3 mpg under initial cold-engine operation. That same car might use a gallon of gasoline for every 15 minutes it cold-idles.

The idea is to get the car moving at moderate speeds as soon as possible. The engine and other parts will warm faster, operate more efficiently and experience less wear and use less gasoline than if it were to sit and idle.

And most of us never realize that the catalytic converter and other emissions-control parts don't operate until they are warmed up. Until that time, the car is pouring toxic wastes into the atmosphere.

The sooner we warm the engine, the less pollution we cause. Cold-idling is a nasty thing to do to the environment.

Buick Park Avenue Series

'Best American car value' is now even better

FLINT, Mich. — Park Avenue, Buick's front-wheel-drive luxury sedan that was rated "best overall American car value" in 1992 in an independent study, features an enhanced 3800 V-6 engine and other technical and design refinements for the 1993 model year.

Park Avenue Ultra again is equipped with a 205-horsepower supercharged 3800 V-6. Both Park Avenue and Park Avenue Ultra again offer an electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission with overdrive.

The naturally aspirated 3800 V-6 with tuned port injection in Park Avenue has been redesigned for quieter, more responsive performance, while also meeting stricter emission standards in California.

The graceful and aerodynamic styling of both models is retained with a number of enhancements. Park Avenue and Ultra have new — and different — grilles, both modified versions of the vertical-bar design that has long been associated with luxury Buicks. There is a new tail lamp lens design on Park Avenue and new tail lamps on Ultra.

1993 Buick Park Avenue Ultra

Both models again have many safety features including driver air bag and anti-lock brakes.

New for '93: the optional automatic ride control adjusts ride and handling depending on road conditions. There are three levels of damping — comfort, normal and firm. The system will automatically maintain the correct damping for road and driving conditions. Lift, dive and roll are more controlled compared to handling with a standard suspension.

ComforTemp is an automatic dual climate control system which allows the driver and front passenger to set their own interior climates. Rear-seat ComforTemp (standard on Ultra, available on Park Avenue) allows rear passengers to direct air flow up and down and side to side or to shut it o. The rear-seat temperature is selected by the driver.

An automatic day/night mirror system, again optional on both models, darkens the lenses of inside and driver outside rear-view mirrors as cars with headlamps on approach from the rear.

Optional programmable automatic door locks allow the driver to select whether the doors will remain locked when the gear selector is shifted from drive to park, or will automatically unlock. Remote keyless entry is also optional.

Besides anti-lock brakes and driver air bag, other key features that are retained include: brake/transmission interlock to prevent shifting out of "park" without applying the brakes; personalized automatic security system that disables the engine starting and fuel systems if a non-matching ignition key is used; engine oil-life monitor and oil-level warning light.

The oil-life monitor, indicating when to change oil, uses engine sensors to measure engine coolant temperature, engine rpm and vehicle speed, and then calculates the oil life remaining based on actual driving conditions and flush-mounted Solar-Ray glass to further reduce wind noise and significantly screen out harmful sun rays.

Additional standard features include air conditioning, power door locks and power windows with driver's "express down" feature, The standard entertainment system includes an AM/FM stereo radio with seek, scan and cassette player.

Presidents' Day

Tradition has roots in Boston

pete equally with vehicles in their class in quality and price.

Jim Farrell, owner of Farrell Volvo on Route 9 in Southboro, said, "I'm certainly not going to turn away a deal."

Although he plans to advertise for roughly a 10-day period, Farrell said he will continue to talk turkey after the period ends. Farrell said dealers plan to sell a lot of cars at a smaller profit margin and make it up in volume.

"Everybody builds up their inventory for this time of year. They're hoping to increase to volume," Farrell said.

Farrell said the sale has become so big in New England that he sees more advertising sales representatives prior to it, all offering to run his President's Day ads.

"We use some outside financing as well and they lower their rates during this period," Farrell said.

Farrell is very optimistic about this season. He has a hot new product, the Volvo 850, which is the Swedish manufacturer's first front-wheel drive car to be sold in America.

"There has been a tremendous amount of interest in that car," Farrell said.

Farrell said the 850 adds to an already strong product line well-known in New England for its safety and durability.

"I would say 65 percent of our sales is station wagons," he said, adding that almost all of those buyers are women who appreciate Volvo's safety and size.

Chase is very happy to be selling Fords.

"We are particularly fortunate, we have five out of the 10 best sellers," Chase said.

He said the Ford F-150 pickup series was the number one selling vehicle last year, Ford Taurus was number three, Ford Explorer number five, Ford Mustang number seven and Ford Ranger number 10.

And R.H. Long on Route 9 in Framingham, a Cadillac, Pontiac and GMC Truck dealership, is "busting at the seems" with inventory, according to general sales manager Bill Leland.

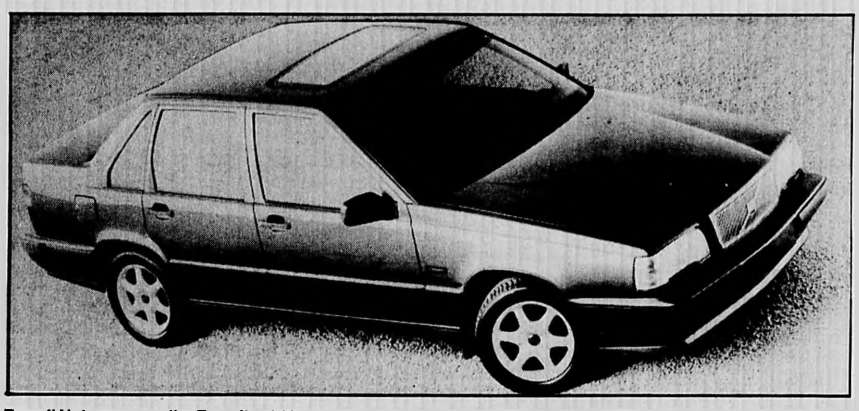

The dealership has "over 500 new and used cars in stock ready for immediate delivery," Leland said. While R.H. Long's cars will basically be on sale for the whole month, Leland said this weekend is the by far the busiest.

"All four days are crazy (for us). I'm sure we're going to have 100 people a day. It's like this place turns into Spags: cash and carry," Leland said.

Leland said some '92 model Cadillacs will be discounted as much as $8,000 and Pontiac Grand Ams will be offered with $1,000 rebates or 4.9 percent financing.

According to Framingham Oldsmobile owner John Fashjian, in addition to Chrysler's renowned minivans, Chrysler now offers its new mid-size LH sedans, the Chrysler Concorde (pictured above), Dodge Intrepid and Eagle Vision, which compete equally with vehicles in their class in quality and price.

Farrell Volvo owner Jim Farrell said he is very optimistic about this season. He has a hot new product, the Volvo 850 (pictured above), which is the Swedish manufacturer's first front-wheel drive car to be sold in America.

Mitsubishi 3000GTs

World class engineering meets small-town pricing

During the past decade, Mitsubishi Motors has rapidly emerged in the automotive marketplace as a company that delivers stylish and high-quality products packed with "affordable technology." This can be seen throughout the company's product line, but is most prominently represented in such flagship models as the 3000GT grand touring sports car.

Since its introduction, the 3000GT model line has been touted by enthusiasts and auto critics alike as a breakthrough automobile. Mitsubishi Motors engineers knew they had hit the mark when, shortly after its debut, the top-line 3000GT VR-4 model won Motor Trend magazine's coveted 1991 "Import Car Of The Year" title.

For 1993, 3000GT and the mid-line 3000GT SL continue to deliver a luxurious and exciting grand touring sports car package with new refinements, features and options. A number of features that were previously optional on 3000GT are now included as standard equipment.

1993 Mitsubishi 3000GT SL

All 3000GT models feature a new audio system anti-theft feature and an optional cargo area-mounted compact disc auto changer that holds up to six discs.

At the heart of 3000GT and 3000GT SL is one of the most advanced powerplants ever built by Mitsubishi. The normally aspirated 3.0-liter, 24-valve, double overhead-cam (DOHC) V-6 engine produces 222 bhp at 6,000 rpm and 201 ft.lbs. of torque at 4,500 rpm.

3000GT and 3000GT SL offer a choice of a five-speed manual gearbox or four-speed automatic transmission. The automatic transmission includes a dual program shifting feature that allows the driver to select either "power" or "economy" modes.

The front suspension utilizes dual-damped MacPherson struts with concentric shock absorbers and negative offset steering geometry for increased stability. The rear suspension is an independent multi-link assembly with one upper and two lower lateral links, a trailing arm and coil springs concentric with the shock absorbers. Standard front and rear stabilizer bars enhance overall handling and minimize body roll during hard cornering.

3000GT and 3000GT SL utilize four-wheel power disc brakes that feature ventilated rotors for rapid heat dissipation and minimum brake fade during severe braking. Both models feature large 10.8-inch rotors in front and 10.4-inch rotors in the rear.

Mitsubishi's anti-lock braking system (ABS) is standard on 3000GT SL. Wheel speed sensors that work in conjunction with a central microprocessor actuate brake hydraulics to help prevent wheel lock-up during emergency braking.

A driver's side air bag is now standard on all 3000GT models.

1993 Cadillac Sixty Special

New features add distinction to this luxury car

Comprehensively equipped for unexcelled executive-class comfort and luxury, the Sixty Special Sedan reflects Cadillac's continuing technological advancements and new interior appointments.

The 1993 Sixty Special, already equipped with traction control and speed sensitive suspension, now has added new speed sensitive steering as standard equipment. Other new features for 1993 include a new seat design, revised front-end styling, a new generation alternator and new interior and exterior color choices.

Cadillac Sixty Special

The Sixty Special Sedan is powered by Cadillac's 4.9-liter, sequential port fuel injected aluminum V8 engine. Noted for its smooth, quiet operation and broad power band, the powerplant delivers 200 horsepower at 4,100 rpm and maximum torque of 275 lbs-ft at 3,000 rpm. It powers the Sixty Special models to a 0-to-60 mph time of 9.1 seconds and a top speed of 115 mph.

Another new feature for 1993 is the 140-amp Generation II CS 144 alternator. The alternator incorporates a self-cooling design for consistent, reliable power output.

Fuel economy is EPA-rated at 16 mpg city/25 mpg highway. Unleaded premium fuel, with a minimum rating of 91 octane, is required.

Engine functions are controlled by an on-board computer, Cadillac's GMP4 Powertrain Control Module (PCM). Unnoticed by the driver, the 64-kilobyte PCM senses vital operating conditions and continuously works to maintain optimum performance and efficiency.

The 4T60-E four-speed automatic transaxle also is controlled by the PCM, allowing the transmission and engine to operate as an integrated unit. The 4T60-E transaxle has been engineered with Cadillac's exclusive viscous converter clutch for smoother shifting and increased torque capability. One-way roller clutches assure shifting that is virtually imperceptible to the driver.

The 1993 Sixty Special Sedan is equipped with Traction Control and new speed sensitive steering.Speed sensitive steering enhances the vehicle's standard power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering by varying the amount of steering effort required of the driver in proportion to the vehicle's speed.

At low speeds, minimal effort is needed for increased maneuverability and parking ease. As speeds increase, steering effort increases. At highway speeds, the driver experiences a heavier steering effort for maximum control and stability.

To inform the driver of the system's condition, a blue "traction active" light on the instrument panel is illuminated when the system is in use. An amber "traction off" light indicates that the system would normally be in operation, but has been temporarily disabled due to high brake or transmission temperature or extended use.

Speed sensitive suspension is another standard feature. At all operating speeds, the system automatically selects from three available suspension settings to provide optimal ride and handling characteristics.

Sixty Special features four-wheel independent suspension, with coil springs, MacPherson struts and a 30mm stabilizer bar in front. Components of the rear suspension include coil springs, 14mm stabilizer bar and Chapman struts with electronic level control.

Among Sixty Special's exterior and interior improvements for 1993 are a new grille design, newly styled seating appointments and new choices options and colors.

Mercury Villager LS

1993 model is slick and handsome

BY BOB SIKORSKY
FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

The Lincoln-Mercury Division of Ford Motor Company is flying high with the introduction of two all-new vehicles to the lineup for the 1993 model year: The Mercury Villager minivan and the Lincoln Mark VIII personal luxury car.

In fact, these two 1993 vehicles are the sixth and seventh all-new offerings from Lincoln-Mercury in the past three years.

The 1993 Mercury Villager is the first-ever minivan for Lincoln-Mercury. An exercise in aerodynamic styling (0.36 Cd), the front-wheel drive slickster is, along with the Mazda MPV, one of the smoothest, easiest and most carlike-riding minivans on today's market. Indeed, the Villager's taut handling and ride, somewhat on the soft side, approximate those of a fine, heavy sedan.

The front-wheel drive Villager is offered in two trim packages, the entry-level GS and the top-of-the-line LS. Both are powered by a 3.0-liter V-6 engine with an overhead camshaft, and are fed by sequential electronic fuel injection. Standard transmission for both models is a 4-speed, electronically controlled automatic.

The V-6 is rated at 151 horsepower at 4,800 rpm and has maximum torque of 174 foot pounds at 4,400 rpm. The engine rates an EPA estimate of 17 miles per gallon/city and 23 mpg/highway. We averaged 20.1 mpg for two weeks of mostly city driving.

A smooth and relatively quiet engine, the workhorse 3.0-liter V-6 endows the Villager with enough power to allow it to tow (with an optional towing package consisting of a heavy-duty battery, heavy-duty radiator and additional electrical wiring package) a gross trailer weight of 3,500 pounds with a maximum tongue load of 350 pounds. Standard towing capacity is 2,000 pounds with a 200-pound maximum tongue load.

We drove the loaded version LS model with its all-digital dash, trip computer, tilt and slide sunroof with shade, power seats with lumbar, power mirrors and locks and a host of other amenities.

The interior is handsome, comfortable and roomy. The four optional captain's chairs, along with the rear bench seat can accommodate seven passengers and the seats can be moved about in a variety of ways, or removed, depending on people/cargo requirements. It's a neat arrangement.

The back bench seat, for instance, can be folded and tucked against the back of the two mid-cabin captain's chairs or, with the two center captain seats removed, can be folded and tucked against the front seats to give a magnum of cargo space. With just the rear seats removed there are 126.4 cubic feet of available cargo space.

Besides the standard features on the lower-priced GS model, the LS gets standard power windows, locks and mirrors, front A/C, tilt, cruise, rear defroster and more.

Options include the four captain's chairs seating arrangement, leather, rear AC and radio controls, electronic instruments, compact disc player and electric tilt/slide sunroof. A handling package with rear stabilizer bar and larger tires is also an LS option.

The exterior, with its telltale light bar across the front — a carryover from the Mercury Sable — is slick, aerodynamic and handsome. All glass is flush-mounted and the single sliding door works with the flick of the wrist. The large back gate opens up, but not high enough for my 6 feet 2 inches to clear comfortably. I have to stoop over a bit when loading/unloading the back area.

No question the Villager is a minivan that has it all — at a price. The base GS model — much the better bargain, it appears — is offered at $17,044, while our LS model base-prices for $22,338. The tab for our LS as tested came to $24,900.

1993 Dodge Stealth

The 1993 Dodge Stealth sports coupe, an image and performance leader for Dodge, is an extraordinary example of advanced engineering, inside and out.

Four models are available—Base, Stealth ES, Stealth R/T and Stealth R/T Turbo—each with distinctive styling to satisfy the individual tastes and budgets of a wide range of buyers.

The ultimate model, Dodge Stealth R/T Turbo, has a standard 300 horsepower, 3.0-liter DOHC 24-valve MPI twin intercooled turbo V-6 engine. For 1993, this engine is further improved with a forged crankshaft and four-bolt main bearings.

It combines this with a five-speed manual overdrive transaxle, all-wheel-drive with center differential and viscous coupling, four-wheel hydraulic-assist steering that activates at speeds over 30 mph, four-wheel anti-lock brakes, driver-side air bag and three-point belts for all occupants.

The other three models — Base Stealth, Stealth ES and Stealth R/T — are offered with graduating mechanical and convenience sophistication and optional equipment availability.

The Base Stealth and step-up Stealth ES, for example, sport the same muscular exterior body contours, interior look and feel as the Stealth R/T and R/T Turbo — but with their own distinctive styling cues — and offer a majority of the same standard features, including driver-side air bag and three-point belts for all occupants, four-wheel high-performance power-assisted disc brakes that are vented front and rear and power-assisted rack and pinion steering.

The Base Stealth is powered by a naturally-aspirated 3.0-liter V-6 engine capable of a peak 164 horsepower at 5,500 rpm and 185 pound-feet of torque at 4,000 rpm, providing a performance potential that equals or exceeds any sports car in its price range.

Four models are available, each with distinctive styling to satisfy the individual tastes and budgets of a wide range of buyers.

Stealth ES and Stealth R/T are each equipped with a naturally-aspirated 3.0-liter 24-valve DOHC V-6 engine that will deliver 222 horsepower at 6,000 rpm and 201 pound-feet of torque at 4,500 rpm, and is coupled with a five-speed manual overdrive transaxle. A four-speed automatic transaxle is optional on Base Stealth, Stealth ES, and Stealth RT.

Stealth's other optional equipment on selected models includes AM/FM stereo radio with cassette (or compact disc) with four speakers; security alarm and — new for 1993 — remote keyless entry system; leather seats; tailgate wiper/washer; rear spoiler for Stealth and ES models, plus "SOFERA" styled, molded composite-face wheels.

1993 Geo Prizm LSi

You expect these features on a luxury car, but the standard Prizm has a base price of under $10,000. The upscale LSi model that I drove, loaded with options, only cost $15,649.

This car also had a better powerplant: 1.8-liter, 16-valve 4-cylinder engine linked to a four-speed automatic transmission. It has good get-up-and-go, yet very economical. The rating is 26 city, 33 highway.

I didn't crawl under the car to check out the components of the suspension system, but I'm told the shocks and struts, the spring rates and roll stiffness have been retuned. I didn't have to inspect these components; their effectiveness is obvious when driving the car as intended – it is a family sedan.

Because many Geo buyers are concerned about keeping the operating costs down, I took a quick look under the hood. It appears that the shade tree mechanic would have easy access for changing the oil and filters. The seat covers and carpets are treated with Scotchguard fabric protection.

Another feature worth noting is the visibility. A person of small stature would have no problem seeing the road. The seats are high and the instrument panel and hood are unobtrusive. Incidentally, the simplified instrumentation is easy to read at a quick glance.

Another feature worth noting is the visibility. A person of small stature would have no problem seeing the road. The seats are high and the instrument panel and hood are unobtrusive. Incidentally, the simplified instrumentation is easy to read at a quick glance.

The climate controls have the new rotary dials that allowed me to keep my eyes on the road while changing settings. Again, this treatment is expected on expensive cars but not economy vehicles.

This four-door sedan has a 60/40 split-folding rear seat for convenient pass-through of cargo that is too big for the trunk. Another plus: the trunk lid has the easy liftover design.

There are many other features that I have not mentioned, but I hope I have stirred your interested. The 1993 Prizm is worth a good hard look.

SPARE PARTS

SERVICE CONTRACTS: You don't have to buy a service contract at the time you purchase a new car as most contract companies allow either 12 month or 12,000 miles, which will allow you to make up your mind.

According to Checkbook magazine, by waiting a few months, it will give you an opportunity to see how reliable the car seems to be. If it has defects, it may prod you into purchasing a contract.

However, if you definitely intend to purchase a contract, do it when you buy the car as the coverage period begins when the car is purchased, not the contract.

AIRBAGS AND ABS: As many as 200 different 1993 model cars are equipped with airbags (some include a passenger-side airbag), according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. In addition, there are 150 new models that have anti-lock brakes either as standard or optional equipment.

NUMBER ONE: The retail sales of the Dodge Ram Cummins Diesel pickup increased over 40 percent in the last model year, making it the best seller in the class of one-ton pickups.

WINTERIZE NOW: Help your battery get through the winter by cleaning the terminals. A corrosion buildup prevents the alternator from keeping the battery fully charged.

isn't covered with leather, it looks and feels like it is. What rubs off is the feeling of wealth.

The ergonomics are perfect. All the instrumentation is just where you'd expect it to be and easy to reach. I like the appearance of the instrument panel. It has a circular design that runs from one door post to the other with clean, uncluttered lines. The area in the center contains the controls for the automatic heating/air conditioning system and sound system.

I appreciate the location of the radio. Even though it requires more design ingenuity to place the sound system above the climate control system (because of the air ducts) Ford Motor Company engineers and designers found a way to do it.

That thoughtfulness can be found throughout this car, such as sentinel lighting, rearview mirror dimmer, trunk lid lockout, keyless entry, finger-tip speed controls. Of course it has all the latest safety features including dual airbags and anti-lock brakes. It's worth the $37,000 or whatever the final price will be.

I've been saving the best features for last: the engine and the handling. This car has an all-aluminum V-8 engine. It has 32 valves that produce 280 horsepower and 285 pounds-foot of torque. That's tremendous power.

On the other hand, I wonder why there is no express down button on the driver's side power window, and why the horn toots so loud when the security system is armed through the button on the key ring.

I've been saving the best features for last: the engine and the handling. This car has an all-aluminum V-8 engine. It has 32 valves that produce 280 horsepower and 285 pounds-foot of torque. That's tremendous power.

The torque makes the car surge ahead at the demand of a heavy foot. It's a little noisy under hard acceleration, but the sound adds to the thrill.

A quick lane change in this car is a piece of cake. The handling compares with the best of sports cars, yet the ride is medium-firm and comfortable.

If you're busy on Dec. 26, don't fret, this car will be in your dealer's showroom — for many years to come. It's a winner.

SPARE PARTS

SMART DUMMIES: General Motors conducts most of its crash testing using the advanced Hybrid III family of dummies. These dummies represent real people better than older models. They are capable of making more sophisticated measurements of what happens in a crash.

The additional data helps GM formulate strict internal guideline for crash-worthiness of its cars and trucks.

SOLVING PROBLEMS: The American Automobile Association has a third-party arbitration service called Autosolve. It offers car owners and manufacturers and alternate to costly and protracted legal action in a dispute, with decisions binding only on the manufacturer.

Since 1985, the program has settled more than 10,000 cases in the ten states it has arbitration agreements. It is used by Toyota, Lexus, Hyundai, Subaru and Porsche.

BRAKE FIRST: Should you encounter slick or icy roads, always do your braking on the straightaway before you enter the curve. Coast around the curve and steer smoothly. Accelerate when you are coming out of the curve.

LOOK AGAIN: When a dealer makes an overly generous trade-in allowance, take a hard look at the other terms of the agreement to see where the money is coming from.

1993 Ford Ranger Supercab STX

BY BOB SIKORSKY
FOR SPECIAL FEATURES

The best-selling compact pickup truck for the past six years has gotten even better for 1993 and, from the looks of it, could well continue its skein for another half dozen.

The handsome, all-new, very aerodynamic 1993 Ford Ranger looks and acts like another winner for Ford Motor Co. Here's a super-tough truck that can take it and dish it out, all within the confines of slick modern but rugged styling and, in the case of the Supercab Ranger, very sedanlike comfort.

This is a totally new Ranger: From its new hood, headlamps, grille, bumper, optional front valence panel with round driving lights, increased windshield angle and flush side-window glass, the aero-styled exterior is both slick and wind-shedding and very robust. There's totally new sheet metal from bumper to bumper.

We drove the Supercab version of the top-of-the-line Ranger STX 4X2 and did some time in the regular cab STX 4X4.

I'm impressed by the Supercab Ranger. With brilliant blue metallic paint covering its new sheet metal and STX logos, it got a lot of looks.

Even over the roughest ground you won't hear a rattle. Much of this solidity, I'm certain, is because of the Twin-I-Beam front suspension on the 4X2 and the Twin-Traction Beam front suspension on the 4X4. The new styling includes — on the 4X4 model — very spiffy integrated round driving lights in the optional front valence panel.

There was plenty of room in the Supercab Ranger. Indeed, if you are anywhere near normal height and width I heartily recommend this version of the pickup. Why? Because the one problem I had with the Ranger wasn't with the 4X2 model with the Supercab version, but with the regular cab 4X4 Ranger. There isn't any room to speak of in the regular cab.

But the Supercab was great. Our Ranger STX Supercab was equipped with the optional ($179) and very powerful 4.0-liter V-6 engine. It's rated at 160 horsepower at 4,200 rpm and has an incredible 230 foot pounds of torque at 2,400 rpm. This is the engine you'd want for heavy-duty hauling or pulling. EPA estimated fuel economy is 17 mpg/city and 22 mpg/highway. We averaged 18.6 mpg in combined driving for the test week.

Standard engine for the Ranger is a rather anemic (compared to the optional 4.0-liter) 100 horsepower, 2.3-liter, 4-cylinder. The standard engine on the STX model is a midrange 145 horsepower, 3.0-liter, V-6.

The 4X4 STX flaunted Ford's "Touch Drive" electric shift. You can operate the 4-wheel drive with the push of a button. While I still prefer a transfer case shifter — you know the vehicle is in 4-wheel drive — there's no question but that the electronic pushbutton feature is a driver-pleaser.

I've never been a fan of pickup sliding rear windows. While it's nice to open and get that fresh air, it makes the truck too easy to break into. What good are locks on the doors when a screwdriver can easily pry open the sliding window?

Base price for the Ranger 4X2 Supercab STX is $12,964. As-tested our version came to $17,354. This included STX trim package at $1,064, the optional 4.0-liter engine, automatic overdrive transmission ($990), limited slip axle ($252), power window/lock group (367), A/C ($780), power mirrors ($140), sliding rear window ($113), flip pivoting quarter windows ($43) and $460 destination. Subtract a $350 discount for the final total.

Comments by my wife Rogga: The other day some loony on talk radio was expounding his theory that we are all going to be reincarnated as inanimate objects — you know, rocks and stuff. But — just in case — I've decided I'm coming back as a Ford truck. Someone else can be a hunk of Mt. Rushmore.

Is there anything more typically all-American than a pickup? Now take the new Ranger. Not only is it solid, hardworking and practical, but it's also comfortable, easy to handle and a blast to drive.

In fact, I might just return as this Ranger. It's — believe it or not — a head-turner.

Goodbye gasoline, hello clean air

Gasoline is probably the most efficient medium for storing energy that nature ever invented. And gasoline has been a dependable and cheap source of fuel for automobiles almost since their invention slightly more than a century ago.

However, gasoline emissions from cars are among the main contributors to smog and global warming. Government agencies, petroleum and auto companies and universities have been testing new, cleaner-burning fuels for cars for decades. Among the candidates to replace gasoline are ethanol and methanol alcohols, compressed natural gas (CNG), liquid petroleum gas (LPG) and electric power. All of these spew far fewer emissions into the air, but each of the clean-burning fuels have drawbacks.

The time has come for taking the alternate fuels out of the laboratory and allowing the marketplace to decide which will possibly replace gasoline. Auto companies have been testing cars that burn alternate fuels in selected fleets for years. Now the general public will have access to cars and light trucks that run on alcohol and natural gas.

Some of America's most popular mid-size cars from Detroit will be available early in 1993 with engines that burn a fuel mixture of 85 percent methanol and 15 percent gasoline (typically known as M85). The Ford Taurus, Chevrolet Lumina, Dodge Spirit and Plymouth Acclaim will be available with new flexible fuel engines designed to run on almost any percent of methanol and gasoline.

The trick is that flexible fuel vehicles (FFVs) come equipped with a fuel sensor that can instantly detect what kind of fuel is in the gas tank. Then the sensor transmits an electronic message with this information to the engine's computerized controller. The controller resets the engine timing and spark gap for the optimum performance and lowest amount of emissions for any fuel mix.

If you can't find a station that sells M85 (there are only about 75 stations in the country that carry the fuel), don't worry. You can drive the car just as well on straight unleaded gasoline. What you may notice with M85, is more powerful performance. That's because methanol has a higher octane than gasoline. Offsetting that is methanol has only about 60 percent of the calories in gasoline. That translates into about 40 percent less driving range with M85. To compensate, the auto companies are installing bigger fuel tanks in FFVs.

Emissions from FFVs running on M85 are 30 to 50 percent cleaner than from gasoline-fueled cars. Virtually all of the smog causing emissions are lower, as well as gases that are suspected of causing the so-called greenhouse effect in which the earths average temperature would gradually rise.

Most of the FFVs will be offered in California where emissions laws are toughest. But all the FFV makers will sell the cars to anyone who might want one. There's virtually no difference in price between an FFV and a conventional gasoline-burning car, although cars that burn methanol must have special corrosion-resistant fuel lines, fuel injectors and fuel tank, among other things. Alcohol is far more corrosive than gasoline and would destroy conventional fuel tanks and plumbing lines.

Other alternate fuel vehicles are also available. Chevrolet offers its full-sized C/K pickups with engines that burn compressed natural gas. CNG is in abundant supply in the U.S. and is claimed to cost only 84 percent as much as gasoline. Emissions that cause smog and global warming from CNG vehicles are also lower than from either gasoline or diesel engines.

Ford has been testing its full-size Crown Victoria models with CNG engines, but has not yet decided on when to offer them to retail customers. However, Ford does sell a medium duty commercial truck that uses liquefied petroleum gas (LPG). This is the same fuel more commonly known as propane and used for heating and cooking in many homes. It is the first emission-certified LPG truck offered by any manufacturer.

Detroit's Big Three are also testing electric cars extensively. However, the introduction of EVs to the general public is probably at least four or five years away. Chrysler and Ford will produce test fleets of electric-powered vans and have them on the road in early 1993. These battery-powered vans are the ultimate in low emission vehicles — officially qualifying as zero emission models under the most stringent California standards. But the lack of advanced high energy density batteries are holding up their availability to the general public.

Eventually even more exotic low-emission fuels may become available for general use. The most important of these is hydrogen gas, but there are substantial drawbacks to the use of hydrogen. Chief among these is the expense of creating hydrogen.

However, the pressure on auto companies to produce cleaner burning vehicles is increasing. In turn, consumers can expect to be driving cars with cleaner emissions within the next few years.

Pontiac Grand Prix

requires using the power switch to unlock the door before touching the door handle. When I forgot, an attempted to open the door before unlocking it, frequently required unlocking, locking and unlocking before the door would open.

End of barbs; let's sing its praise. The engine is wonderful. It has a 3.1-liter V-6 engine that makes driving both enjoyable and exciting. The response to a heavy foot is quick; I felt like I was driving a sports car, and the leather-wrapped steering wheel adds to that illusion. In spite of the powerful engine, it produces good highway gas mileage: rated 19 city and 30 highway.

Included in an option package are 16-inch aluminum wheels with an attractive five-blade design. The wheels have touring tires supporting a permanently lubricated suspension system. When driving over twisting roads at sport-car speeds, the Grand Prix LE handles like a dream.

The response to a heavy foot is quick; I felt like I was driving a sports car, and the leather-wrapped steering wheel adds to that illusion. In spite of the powerful engine, it produces good highway gas mileage: rated 19 city and 30 highway.

The suspension system is firm, but not harsh. I drove a few hundred miles on the highway and was quite comfortable in this five-passenger sedan. It is reasonably roomy, and the four doors make it easy getting in and out — both front and back. The trunk has more than adequate storage space. Another advantage to this mid-size sedan is that it is easy to handle and park.

I appreciate a device connected with the turn signals. When playing the radio loud, I've been guilty of not shutting the turn signals off many miles after making a turn. In the Grand Prix, after a mile and a half of turn-signal blinking, the car recognizes that driver has fallen asleep and sets off a chime as a wake-up call. A very thoughtful feature.

The Grand Prix has many thoughtful features. It has a tilt steering wheel, cruise control, rally gauges, door courtesy lights, reading lamps; the list goes on. Come to think of it, maybe the Pontiac's signature has something to do with making thoughtful cars.

SPARE PARTS

Wild Mustangs: A car that is expected to give the Chevrolet Corvette a run for the money is the 1994 Ford Mustang.

The tame model of this rear-wheel drive sport coupe will have a 3.5-liter V-6 engine.

A faster version will have a 5-liter V-8 engine. The wild one has a V-8 engine that is said to develop 330 horsepower.

Something Special: Infiniti now has a Geoff Brabham Special Edition Q45, which was created by Brabham and fellow race driver Steve Millen.

It is a blend of two cars, the full-active Q45 and a traction control model for more comfort and better driver control. The car also has larger brakes, and tire and wheel upgrades.

Take A Deep Breath: Most car manufacturers have modified their painting methods to reduce the number of coats required. This results in less volatile organic compounds being emitted into the atmosphere.

Now Exhale: The American Lung Association is fighting air pollution caused by exhaust from poorly maintained cars and trucks.

They are offering two brochures — Car Care and Clean Air and Get a Checkup for Your Car — to those who write: American Lung Association, GPO Box 596, New York, N.Y. 10116-0596.

Lights on, slow down at dusk

There's no question about increased dangers of driving after dark: nearly 40 percent of fatal accidents last year occurred between the hours of 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., according to a U.S. Department of Transportation report.

Care Care Council reminds drivers to check all vehicle lights and slow down at dusk.

Big car with powerful engine

seats, mirrors and door locks are moved with a touch of a button. Even the key ring has a remote lock control.

The trunk is large, too. Even with the spare tire, there is enough room to store the luggage of six passengers. The trunk lid has the low lift-over design, which is helpful when loading packages, but to utilize the full depth of the trunk you almost have to crawl into it.

The base price for a Caprice LS is $19,995, which has the standard 5-liter engine. The LTZ package has the 5.7-liter engine plus a sport suspension and a heavier frame, bigger brakes and tires and on and on. This package costs $1,075. The power equipment is part of another package, and the sound equipment is extra. In other words, a luxurious six-passenger sedan is $24,434.

The LTZ isn't the only package offered by Chevrolet, the Caprice has taxi and police packages, too. The Caprice is a big market for Chevy, but when the car was introduced, it looked too much like an armadillo. Now there are modifications; the wheels and tires are bigger, the wheel well is larger, giving the current model more eye appeal.

The trunk is large, too. Even with the spare tire, there is enough room to store the luggage of six passengers. The trunk lid has the low lift-over design, which is helpful when loading packages ...

All the Caprice sedans have airbags and anti-lock brakes as standard equipment. The design of the seat-belt clasp makes it exceptionally easy to buckle up.

The LTZ has a full frame and coil suspension. Although it handles reasonably well on winding roads, it is on the highway where the ride is most enjoyable. The only problem with highway driving is that the ride is so smooth, frequently I didn't realize how fast I was traveling — in spite of a speedometer with large digital numerals right in front of me. I had to rely on cruise control, rather than self control.

The Caprice is an exceptionally comfortable car. I'm impressed — and so are my neighbors.

SPARE PARTS

TELL IT LIKE IT IS: Chrysler's minivans have a 63 percent owner loyalty rate, the highest of any vehicle sold in the United States. This figure is higher than Mercedes Benz, GM trucks and Honda Accord, vehicles that usually have high owner loyalty. As a result, Chrysler's new minivan advertising campaign will let owners tell their own story.

WASH AND DRY: The Chamois Council reports that 50 percent of Americans wash their own car. They also say some dry the vehicle with towels and cloths that can hold dirt, which can cause scratches and streaks.

The council claims the most gentle and absorbent product for drying a car is a chamois, a product that has been around for more than 100 years. Pronounced "shamee," the cod-oiled tanned sheepskin can absorb four times its weight in water.

SUN SPEED: Toyota's experimental RaRa 10 solar-powered racing car uses mono-crystalline silicon cells and nickle-zinc battery power to attain speeds of 75 mph. The name RaRa 10 is derived from the ancient Egyptian sun god Ra.

NO TRESPASSING: In flooded areas, never attempt to drive through water on the road. Floodwaters can be deeper than expected because the current can quickly erode the road beneath it.

■ Budget forum

The Community School Association will sponsor a budget forum on Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Social Studies Open Area of Winchester High School. Chad Maurer, the town manager, Tom Schmitt, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and Mark Lombardi, chairman of the School Committee, will all be in attendance to explain the budgeting process in detail and to answer any questions the public may have as to how budgets are prepared, the fiscal outlook for the town and how the various town committees and boards work together to prepare the town of Winchester for the fiscal year ahead.

■ Host families

Host families are needed for 25 French students who will be visiting Winchester for two weeks during spring vacation, April 17 through April 30. The students are sponsored by FIVE, a nonprofit organization based in Nice, France. If interested in hosting a student, call Carol Henderson at 729-1971, as soon as possible.

■ Names that hurt

Many parents in Winchester have expressed an interest in discussing how their children can deal with teasing and intolerance. Many have expressed a commitment to working within their families to help their children recognize, understand and appreciate diversity. Parent to Parent is offering a three-session workshop so that these issues can be discussed in depth. The focus will be on parenting strategies.

Dr. Hillary Turkewitz, a clinical psychologist who conducts parenting groups, will lead the workshop, which is scheduled for Tuesdays, March 16, 23 and 30, from 8 to 9:30 p.m. Interested parents should call her at 729-7945 to preregister. This workshop is offered free of charge; funding has been provided by the En Ka Society.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer contemplates the town's financial future outside the Winchester Town Hall. This week marks the official passage of the budget from the manager's hands to the Finance Committee and the Board of Selectmen.

The town faces myriad challenges as the fiscal year unfolds, but all are within reach with some hard work at the budget table, says one town official.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer spoke with the Star and shared his view of Winchester's financial picture in light of a slowly strengthening economy. Maurer released a balanced budget with an optimistic note to the Finance Committee and the Board of Selectmen on Feb. 15.

Facing the town over the next several years are burgeoning costs in trash disposal due to recent settlements in the trash consortium, capital costs from buildings that demand repair, and finally a federally mandated water treatment plant. Despite these unknown factors, Maurer is upbeat about the future.

"There are some real positive things that outweigh the nega-

Search is likely to be turned over to consultant

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

School Committee members are actively considering calling in a consultant to assist with the search for a new superintendent when the process starts back up.

Reached by the Star, the majority of the committee members said they favored turning the process over to a consultant. "I think it probably leans in that direction," said committee member Edward O'Connell.

Committee members say there are other options still open; however, those other options are receiving less than enthusiastic support from the members.

One option would be to review the resumes of the eight semi-finalists, who were not forwarded to the School Committee, but most members do not see that as the best method. "After someone is told they're not a finalist ... I wonder how they would react (to being told they were under consideration again)," said member James Evans.

Evans said he does not intend to review those resumes, unless another committee member puts forth a name. "The finalists forwarded (by the Search Committee) were the only two that were recommended with unanimous or near unanimous support," noted Evans.

> SCHOOL COMMITTEE

The other possibility would be to use a screening committee, either the existing one or a newly formed committee. Search Committee Co-Chairperson Sue Swapp said that although reconvening the committee is not an impossibility, she considers the committee's job done. The School Committee also does not seem to be leaning toward a citizen's committee. "The Search Committee has come to its natural conclusion. It's time to start a new process," said Evans.

Member Jerilyn Heinold said she would like to hire a consulting firm

Feelings remain high over search

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The reactions to acting Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald's decision to decline an interview for the superintendency may differ, but the feelings on both sides of the issue remain strong.

The School Committee members who had voted to interview Fitzgerald at their Feb. 9 meeting expressed dismay that Fitzgerald did not accept their offer. "Frankly, I'm disappointed that Bob saw fit not to push his candidacy forward at this time," said member Edward O'Connell.

O'Connell and School Committee Chairman Mark Lombardi said they realize that it isn't the acting superintendent's style to approach things that way. "I know that deep down he wanted to be superintendent, but he just doesn't like to be the cause of any controversy," said Lombardi.

Fitzgerald has said he refused the interview because he was "not comfortable with the process as it has evolved."

The two committee members who opposed interviewing Fitzgerald, Jerilyn Heinold and James Evans, said his decision to withdraw validated their opposition to that vote. "His decision not to participate in that type of process enforces my respect of Mr. Fitzgerald," said Evans. "He didn't want the job under those circumstances."

Evans and Heinold say it was the process and not the person they opposed. "I didn't have anything personal against him as much as the seeming disregard of the entire search process," said Heinold. "If any candidate from the semifinalists had been brought forward, it would have been unacceptable."

Lombardi defends budget

What is your analysis of how the search for a new superintendent has unfolded since it first began last June?

It was tough getting it started because, as you know, we had a lot of trouble coming up with the formula of who should be on the committee, and that was frustrating for me because I thought that should be the easiest part of the job ... But the good news after that was the Search Committee seemed to work very well together. The people I talked to informally on the committee were very happy with what had happened. The School Committee gave me feedback that they were very happy with the way things turned out with the Search Committee ... And we were also pretty much happy with the two finalists who were presented to us. They came very highly recommended. I think one was unanimously forwarded to us, and the other was almost unanimously forwarded to us, so we felt comfortable that such a diverse group of people on the screening committee could agree on two people. It started to fall apart when Dr. Williams withdrew and then Dr. Kennedy accepted the other job. The part that came back to haunt me was ... three of us felt that if the screening committee feels that strongly about just sending two forward, let's stick with that. And unfortunately they pulled out, and things kind of fell apart. When we had the meeting last week ... and we were at the point where we had to make a decision on what we were going to do in the future ... I thought it would be a good point in the process to give Bob Fitzgerald, the in-house candidate, the chance to at least to interview in front of us so we could give him an indication either pro

Bortman blasts opponent

What is your analysis of how the search for a new superintendent has unfolded since it first began last June?

Obviously, the search has failed in the sense that we don't have any candidates for the job. I think the problem with the search has been the leadership, or lack of leadership, from the School Committee, and the chairman of course has to take the blame for that. The Search Committee did, I think, an outstanding job ... They stood up to some pressure from the School Committee in holding to their notion that they would give only two finalists because they felt only two were worthy of being nominated. I think it reflects poorly on our school system. I would have thought that a school system like Winchester advertising for a superintendent would have gotten 200 resumes ... Something has happened in the last couple of years that we just don't have the reputation that brings out applicants for this job. Maybe it's because we have lost so many high-level administrators in the last three or four years ... The School Committee simply did not start the search off correctly. They didn't give the Search Committee a good charge. They didn't give them a good budget to start with. They didn't give them any outside help. And they certainly didn't give them any management oversight ...

Where would you advise the School Committee to go next?

I think they have to start all over. I think they need the advice of some outsiders .... Maybe the sole use of a couple of ads in the Globe and the (New York) Times is

Police received a call from the Boston Police Department reporting that they had found a motor vehicle that had been stolen from Winchester. The vehicle had been reported stolen by a Lexington man on Feb. 9. The owner told police the vehicle had been stolen from the parking lot of an indoor tennis complex on East Street. According to police, the vehicle, estimated at $10,000, had its ignition popped and sustained minor body damage.

7:17 p.m.
A man came into the police station to report that he had been involved in a minor motor vehicle accident in a Main Street parking lot. The operator of the vehicle, a 30-year-old Everett man, told police that someone had backed into his vehicle but had refused to exchange papers with him. The operator of the vehicle, a 26-year-old Billerica woman, told police that she was forced to swerve out of the way of a snow plow traveling in the opposite direction. Officer Steven Fields observed the operator of a motor vehicle on Church Street acting suspicious. After stopping the vehicle, the officer discovered that the operator, a 22-year-old Lowell man, had no license and the plates on the vehicle belonged to another vehicle. Police found a pry bar, a screw driver, and license plate in the vehicle. The officer placed the operator under arrest for operating without a license, operating an unregistered vehicle, and attaching plates. The three passengers in the vehicle were taken to the train station.

In search of 17th century ancestors

An occasional story about Winchester's history by Susan Keats, former town archivist and present chairman, Winchester Historical Commission. For further information about Winchester history, contact the Town Archives, 721-7146.

The phone call came early in the summer. Members of the Symmes family from Terra Cotta, Ontario, were planning a trip to Winchester to look up their family roots. What made this search so special was the fact that this family is directly descended from the original Rev. Zachariah Symmes (of Symmes Corner fame) and an offshoot of deacon John Symmes (sixth generation) who opted to go to Canada around 1816. John's son, Henry Richardson Symmes, was the first Canadian-born Symmes. Lorraine Symmes is 11 generations removed from Zachariah Symmes.

Lorraine Symmes, her brothers Rick and Rob, her mother, and Rob's daughter arrived one sunny fall day to see the original grant of land deeded to Zachariah Symmes in 1636. Symmes and her brothers were brought up on a farm in Ontario, having spent their childhood hearing tales of Henry Richardson Symmes and how he built the lumber industry and founded the town of Alymer. Eventually the family moved to Ontario and settled there.

Symmes family members followed Philomen Wright to Canada after the Revolution. Wright, a Charlestown native whose land was located on Ridge Street in Winchester, married into the Symmes family. He was probably a Loyalist, but the Symmes who followed him to Canada did so 16 years later, mainly for economic reasons. The names of Wright, Richardson and Converse all appear in the Symmes genealogy in Canada, so it is easy to trace their origins back to Winchester.

We started our Winchester tour at the archives, poring over original deeds of the land, reading 18th-century letters and putting family members into the proper context. We looked at 19th-century family photographs, and pondered over Colonial history to clarify points about the settlement of Charlestown. The Colonial history review was interesting as only one of the six of us was an American citizen. Our review covered many basics that most Americans take for granted.

In the afternoon we traveled all over the town, looking at the Philomen Wright plaque on Ridge Street, following old maps to review the early boundaries, and even poking around in Woburn to find Wright and Richardson ancestors buried in the old cemeteries. After our day of research, the family found the 20th-century Symmeses in Wildwood Cemetery, and found the 18th- and 19th-century members in the Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford.

The latest correspondence brought the following news: "We've been so inspired by the trip to Charlestown and the story of (John) Winthrop and the whole Puritan crowd down there, that we thought we'd do some desktop publishing on the family." Somehow, I don't think we've heard the last of the Canadian Symmes family.

In search of 17th century ancestors

An occasional story about Winchester's history by Susan Keats, former town archivist and present chairman, Winchester Historical Commission. For further information about Winchester history, contact the Town Archives, 721-7146.

The phone call came early in the summer. Members of the Symmes family from Terra Cotta, Ontario, were planning a trip to Winchester to look up their family roots. What made this search so special was the fact that this family is directly descended from the original Rev. Zachariah Symmes (of Symmes Corner fame) and an offshoot of deacon John Symmes (sixth generation) who opted to go to Canada around 1816. John's son, Henry Richardson Symmes, was the first Canadian-born Symmes. Lorraine Symmes is 11 generations removed from Zachariah Symmes.

Lorraine Symmes, her brothers Rick and Rob, her mother, and Rob's daughter arrived one sunny fall day to see the original grant of land deeded to Zachariah Symmes in 1636. Symmes and her brothers were brought up on a farm in Ontario, having spent their childhood hearing tales of Henry Richardson Symmes and how he built the lumber industry and founded the town of Alymer. Eventually the family moved to Ontario and settled there.

Symmes family members followed Philomen Wright to Canada after the Revolution. Wright, a Charlestown native whose land was located on Ridge Street in Winchester, married into the Symmes family. He was probably a Loyalist, but the Symmes who followed him to Canada did so 16 years later, mainly for economic reasons. The names of Wright, Richardson and Converse all appear in the Symmes genealogy in Canada, so it is easy to trace their origins back to Winchester.

We started our Winchester tour at the archives, poring over original deeds of the land, reading 18th-century letters and putting family members into the proper context. We looked at 19th-century family photographs, and pondered over Colonial history to clarify points about the settlement of Charlestown. The Colonial history review was interesting as only one of the six of us was an American citizen. Our review covered many basics that most Americans take for granted.

In the afternoon we traveled all over the town, looking at the Philomen Wright plaque on Ridge Street, following old maps to review the early boundaries, and even poking around in Woburn to find Wright and Richardson ancestors buried in the old cemeteries. After our day of research, the family found the 20th-century Symmeses in Wildwood Cemetery, and found the 18th- and 19th-century members in the Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford.

The latest correspondence brought the following news: "We've been so inspired by the trip to Charlestown and the story of (John) Winthrop and the whole Puritan crowd down there, that we thought we'd do some desktop publishing on the family." Somehow, I don't think we've heard the last of the Canadian Symmes family.

Search for a Lincoln principal to begin

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The School Department, hoping to fill the position by the start of the 1993-94 school year, has reopened the search for a new principal for the Lincoln Elementary School.

The School Department advertised the position in a Boston newspaper this past weekend and will soon begin formulating a Search Committee to chose a new principal.

The search for a new principal first began when then-Lincoln Principal Bruce MacDonald told the School Committee in late August that he had accepted a position with an elementary school in Belmont. The School Committee quickly formed a Search Committee by September to find a principal by October, when MacDonald was slated to leave.

However, the committee could not find a suitable candidate for the job. Acting Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald said the committee was not able find an acceptable candidate who could come to Lincoln in midyear. When the School Committee realized it would not be able to fill the post by the time MacDonald was leaving, it named third-grade teacher Paula Tranchita as interim for the remainder of the school year.

The composition of the new Search Committee will be the same as the previous committee: the assistant superintendent, an elementary principal, a K-12 director, two Lincoln teachers, and four Lincoln parents.

Lincoln parents and teachers have been notified that the School Department is looking for people for the committee. With the exception of the assistant superintendent, Thomas Budrewicz, the other spots may or may not be filled by the same people who sat on the original committee.

Budrewicz said that he, Tranchita, and Fitzgerald will probably decide the makeup of the Search Committee.

The Search Committee is slated to be picked by March 5 and, after reviewing resumes, will begin interviewing candidates on March 29.

The candidates selected by the Search Committee will go to the superintendent and his cabinet, who Budrewicz said would probably include himself; Shirley Potts, director of finance; and Frank Bianco, director of special education.

The School Committee is scheduled to receive the finalists on April 20 and will pick the principal on May 11.

Budrewicz said that Tranchita is not interested in filling the position on a permanent basis. "She's done an admirable job in the acting role, but at this point in her career she's interested in staying in the classroom," said Budrewicz.

The selection of a principal for Lincoln will probably receive additional scrutiny because of a desire to find an applicant with the intention of making a long-term commitment. Lincoln has had five principals in the last six years. When MacDonald left, the School Committee expressed anger that he was leaving after two years, despite telling the committee he intended to remain at Lincoln for awhile.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

ANN BLACKHAM, CRB, CRS

THAT BEAUTIFUL LEVERAGE

QUESTION: What is meant by the word "leverage" when used in conjunction with investing in real estate?

ANSWER: Leverage arises because ALL of the income and ALL of the appreciation belongs to the property holder regardless of the amount of the loan. To illustrate, assume a $100,000 property was purchased for only $10,000 cash and a $90,000 mortgage loan. Five years later, the same property is sold for $150,000 (a 50% gain in value). After paying off the $90,000 mortgage, the investor would realize, not a 50% gain, but rather a 500% gain on his initial cash investment because he only invested $10,000 for the property. That's leverage!

LEVERAGE is the key to multiplying profits from real estate.

Participants wanted for walk-a-thon

Among the walkers in training for the "Big Steps for Little People" Walk-a-thon, are many of the families of the thousands of babies born and cared for in the Winchester Hospital Childbirth Center and Level II Special Care Nursery. The 6.2 mile walk-a-thon, to be held Sunday, May 23, will start at Winchester High School, proceed to Woburn's Horn Pond, and return to Winchester. The route is ideal for family walking and pushing a stroller. For those who want a shorter distance, there will be a two to three mile route as well. All proceeds from the Walk-a-thon will be used to support the services of Winchester Hospital's Childbirth Center and the Level II Special Care Nursery.

Alan Fujii, M.D., neonatologist and director of the Special Care Nursery recently spoke to the Winchester Rotary Club, the lead sponsor of the Walk-a-thon. Fujii explained, "Winchester Hospital's Level II Special Care Nursery is affiliated with Boston's Joint Program in Neonatology. We offer 24-hour on-site pediatric specialists and are associated with the leading obstetric hospital north of Boston." Fujii is an honorary chair of the Walk-a-thon, sharing the honors with Mike Lynch (Channel 5 sportscaster) and his wife, Mary Ellen Lynch, whose three daughters were born at Winchester Hospital.

Judie Muggia, "Big Steps for Little People" Walk-a-thon co chair says, "Participation in the fund raising walk is a special way to show commitment to the good health of children. It's also an opportunity for friends, families school groups and co-workers to join together to form a team of walkers and enjoy the pleasure of an active afternoon in Spring weather. With the help of volunteers at all levels the event will accomplish its goals."

SENIOR NEWS

FROM THE
JENKS CENTER

By Mary Kelly
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Home health care program at Jenks

Sponsored by the Winchester Seniors Association's Education Committee, chaired by Dr. Robert Smith, representatives of Kimberly Quality Care will make a presentation to Winchester seniors on several aspects of medical assistance for individuals in their homes who formerly might have required hospitalization. Sylvia Usmari, business manager, will lead the group, and Pilar Von Lazar will describe various types of care and coverage by Medicare, insurance or private funds, while Liz Hartnett will speak about the aides themselves who actually perform the different kinds of treatments.

This informative and timely presentation, on a subject of special importance to will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 10:30 a.m., at the Jenks Center. There is no charge for admission, and no prior registration is necessary. All are welcome.

'Carnivale ed Scampio'

The theme of the Italian Culture Group meeting of Monday, Feb. 22, at 1:30 p.m., will be the pre-Lenten celebration of "Carnivale," its recipes and traditions.

The "Scampio" will be the exchanging of something you "love but love to give away," be it practical, funny, or basically useless. Just wrap it up and join in the fun of swapping.

Delectables will be served by the Refreshment Committee, headed by Victoria Capone and Frances Sellitto. For further information, please call Fran Covino at 729-3606.

"Have a Heart" and bring to the meeting items of non-perishable food and paper products to be given to the Food Pantry of the Woburn Council for Social Concern.

Reminder: tax assistance available

From now until April 8, assistance with preparation of tax returns is available to Winchester seniors. Each Tuesday and Thursday, from 9 to 11:30 a.m., trained senior aides are at the Jenks Senior Center to render assistance. Help is available on a walk-in basis, no appointment is necessary, and there is no charge. If you wish to avail yourself of this service, please be sure to bring with you your 1991 reports, all forms needed for completing 1992 returns, and all personal records and receipts required for completing the 1992 returns. Assistance is available for preparing both state and federal tax returns.

Where are those romantic pictures?

The committee planning intergenerational "Ageless Follies" continues to search for and seek out "romantic pictures" in keeping with the theme of this year's event, "Romance through the Years." They want to borrow your pictures, borrow them, copy and enlarge, and then return them to you. All pictures will be returned. Please take a few minutes and look back in your photo albums and share some of those romantic moments. Write your name and telephone number on the backs and drop them off at the Jenks Center, in care of Barbara Ciampa. Do it now, in order that the pictures may be prepared and enlarged in timely fashion.

Calling all 'Grandpals'

Winchester seniors are signing up for the "Grandpals '93" program but more are needed! If you have been putting this off, please sign up now and plan to participate in this great intergenerational program. Remember, there are 76 fourth and fifth graders at the Lynch School to be matched to the same number of seniors. You are urged to sign up now, participate, and be assured of a memorable and most gratifying experience.

Call the Jenks Senior Center, 721-7136, and leave your name with the desk receptionist.

Free drug programs

Joan Butler-West, executive director of Minuteman Home Care, in a monthly Question and Answer column, poses the following questions of interest to seniors:

Q. I take several expensive prescription medications which are not covered by Medicare, and I am not eligible for Medicaid. I've heard elders living on a limited income can be eligible for free prescription drugs. How does this program work?

A. You may have read, recently about "indigent patient programs" that offer free prescription drugs. There are more than 50 of these "indigent patient programs" offered by national brand name drug manufacturers. These programs offer free prescription drugs to elders and other adults who have limited resources and whose insurance does not cover their prescription drugs. There are thousands of elders in Massachusetts who fall into this category. With many drug costs increasing by 15 percent per year, it's no wonder that medications largest single health care cost elders pay for out of their own pocket.

Only nine percent of the elderly in America get their drugs paid for by Medicaid — a program that is really for the poorest of the poor. Nearly two-thirds of the prescription drug bills for elders are paid for out-of-pocket. That's why drug companies offer free drug programs, but very few consumers know about these programs, or how to make them work. All of these free drug programs start with your doctor. The drugs must be ordered by your doctor, and, in many cases, the drugs are sent directly to your doctor for you to pick up. In Massachusetts, this creates a problem, because doctors by law are not allowed to "dispense" medications in their office — except for "sample" medications and birth control pills. So, the first call you should make is to your state legislator to push for a change in state law to permit dispense medications as part of an "indigent patient program." A corrective bill has been filed that would open up all these free drug programs in Massachusetts.

Q. How do I find out if the drugs I am taking are available for free?

A. Call the ElderLine at 1-800-AGE-INFO, and ask for a free copy of the report "The Free Prescription Drug Programs for the Elderly." This report lists the 263 prescription drugs that are offered for free by the pharmaceutical companies. Take this list to your doctor, and ask him or her to contact the manufacturer directly. Because some programs offer vouchers or certificates, and therefore avoid the Massachusetts legal problem, ask your doctor to ask the company to issue a voucher instead of sending drugs to your doctor. Each program uses different guidelines, so have your doctor explain each program to you. If your drug is not on any list, have your doctor call the company anyway to see if the company has started a program.

Book Pins with a purpose on sale at Book Ends

Those looking for a unique gift item that also promotes a good cause should visit the display and sale of Book Pins at Book Ends, 559 Main St., Winchester Center, on Saturday, Feb. 27, from 10 a.m. to noon.

The pins — individually designed pieces of wearable art that show support for literacy, learning, and education — are being sold as a PTO fund raiser for the Lynch Elementary School. Since October, when parents began selling the $10 pins produced by Lucinda, Inc., in South Portland, Maine, more than 150 pins have been sold.

"People love them for themselves and as gifts," says Betty Stone, coordinator of the Book Pin fund raiser. "They also love giving a gift that is not only great looking but that also makes a statement supporting education and literacy."

The creator of Book Pins is Lucinda Yates, an artist who began designing and selling House Pins in 1989. With the sale of each House Pin, as well as her offshoot People Pins and Book Pins, Yates specifies that $4 of each $10 sale must go to support a worthy cause, such as a homeless shelter or literacy program. Yates's business has boomed; she now employs roughly 50 part-time and full-time employees and, to date, has sold more than 600,000 pins.

Town Hall chess action heats up

A speed chess tournament was held on Feb. 5, at the Winchester Town Hall. Fifteen players took part with Joe Perl winning in the under 16s and Howard Sard and Michael Gorenstein sharing first place overall.

Speed chess or "Blitz" is to normal chess what the 100-yard dash is to the Boston Marathon. In speed chess, a special timer with two clockfaces sits alongside the chess board. The hands of each clock are set at five minutes before the hour and after each move you tap a button which stops your clock and starts the clock of your opponent. Each player has only five minutes to make all the moves necessary to complete the game. You win either in the normal way for chess, by trapping your opponent's king in checkmate or, by the special rule for speed chess, by having your opponent run out of time as indicated on the timer by a red "flag" which drops down after all of the five minutes of thinking time have been used.

The element of time adds an extra strategic dimension to the already complex game of chess. Move fast and you put pressure on your opponent, move too fast and you may make a mistake and lose a piece if your opponent notices in the heat of battle. As the minute hand approaches 12 and as the flag teeters on the brink, speed chess lives up to its name with a flurry of moves often less than struggles to win before the flag drops.

Many games of speed chess can be played in an evening, and so it was on Friday at the Winchester Chess Club as 15 players completed 66 games in less than two hours. Chess expert Tom Richardson ran the tournament helped by Neil Akiyama. Richardson said he was pleased by how many played in the tournament.

The top three players in the under sixteen group were Joe Perl, Adam Grassi and Andrew Marder. Also taking part were Alex Hayden, David Maggio, Scooter Bellows, Lorraine Maggio, Trejeeve Martyn and Andrew Maggio. Both top players in the adult section came from out of town, Sard from Arlington and Gorenstein from Swampscott. But tournament organizer Richardson at the end of the evening regained honor for Winchester by taking two quick games from Gorenstein.

A number of other chess games continued all evening at a more sedate pace. The Winchester Chess Club meets every Friday in the town hall from 7 to 10 p.m. Players of all ages and instruction is available and although occasional special activities such as the speed chess tournament are planned, there are always plenty of people who just want to play a regular game of chess. Membership secretary Akiyama noted that the club continues to grow with new members joining at each meeting. For information call Akiyama at 729-0832.

Minuteman offers study skills course

Last minute and late-comer registration is being accepted for Students: Making the Grade With Study Skills offered at Minuteman Tech, in Lexington, beginning Wednesday, Feb. 10. The class meets from 7 to 9:30 p.m. for five sessions. This is an ideal course for students in grades 7 through 12 who need to develop efficient, time saving, study techniques for mastering school subjects. Students, learn strategies that improve listening, note taking, reading comprehension, memorizing, and test taking and much more.

Study skills are the great equalizer. They provide the missing link for bright capable learners whose potential is not reflected in school grades. Furthermore, they demystify the learning process thereby offering all students the means to become organized and confident learners.

Students learn how to make better use of time they spend studying and gain maximum understanding in and out of class. Efficient techniques lead to improved grades and enjoyment in academics. This is the road to increased motivation and academic success.

The instructor, Roberta Wolman, is a full time reading and learning disabilities specialist at Minuteman and a registered educational tutor with the Learning Disabilities Network in Rockland. She has been successful instructor of study skills for the past 17 years. In addition, Wolman is an expert in SAT preparation. She has served as a consultant and author in the field of education.

For your convenience, you may register by calling Minuteman Tech Community Education at 861-7150, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday. Telephone registration with credit card is also accepted. To obtain specific course information contact the instructor in the evening at 721-1065. The course fee is $84 (materials $6). # Consensus picks?

One could almost hear a collective sigh of dismay over the recent failed search for a superintendent.

The School Committee never reached a consensus over their "consensus picks" for the Search Committee, so perhaps, as some suggest, the process was doomed from the start. The point of contention arose over appointments to the Search Committee and could have set the tone for the eventual disaster that the search became.

The school community and residents alike told the Star the search process left them disheartened with the political maneuvering and unsure of what will happen next.

Putting aside the initial embarrassment over empty hands after a yearlong search, residents can't help but ask when the battles will end so that real progress within the School Department can begin.

Why can't the School Committee reach a consensus? Why has issue after issue, beginning with the town wide redistricting up to the recent argument over whether to re-interview acting Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald, ended with the town on the losing end. Members never seem to get past petty squabbling to solve the problem at hand.

In a recent budget fracas the Board of Selectmen were criticized for a lack of leadership. The same charge could now be leveled at the School Committee.

During a discussion on the Fiscal Year 1994 budget one selectman and the town manager noted they were willing to work to reach a consensus on the shortfall in the School Department's budget.

However, experience has shown when only one side comes to the table, the battle is a long one.

We would urge the School Committee to work long and hard on that budget. And as the search for a superintendent begins anew, we urge them to dig deeper and find some common ground upon which to build.

The future of the School Department may depend upon it.

Colonel William P. Winchester

Ducking the issue

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

This coming season will find our Mill Pond devoid of the White China Geese and Peking Ducks which have been a beloved Winchester trademark for nearly 70 years.

It may be remembered that the Mill Pond ducks were threatened with extinction three years ago as palliative for those who wanted the wild ducks and Canada Geese to leave fair Winchester — bag and baggage. At that time there was no documented evidence that the Canada Geese were active carriers of disease — and there is none now, according to the Board of Health.

Ultimately, in 1990, our ducks were given a reprieve, as they strutted across the pages of the Boston Globe, and a "no feed" law with penalties was enacted.

That law, obviously unworkable due to a 10-day warning clause, has never been enforced and local officials and citizens winked and turned away as the blizzard of bread crumbs and yesterday's dinner rolls continued at waterside.

Now three years later — due to lack of follow through — the problem is worse and a blue ribbon, ad hoc "Goose Committee" recently advised the selectmen to banish our white ducks and geese as part of yet another "best" plan to send the Canada Geese packing.

Three years ago, during the absence of our domestic ducks and geese, Mill Pond became overrun with wild waterfowl and the little island in the pond turned white from copious droppings of scores of sea gulls who moved in and took over the former roosts of the town ducks.

In fairness to those of us who count the domestic white ducks and geese dotting the pond behind Town Hall as part of our birthright, the "Goose Committee" and its ally the Board of Selectmen should first have addressed the problems inherent in the 1990 plan. Furthermore, constructive citizen input should have been encouraged — and welcomed.

If the white ducks and geese are not returned to Mill Pond this spring it doesn't take the sense of a politician to realize that they are gone forever.

There is no time frame for their return; no one concerned seems to know what is going to happen to them — and "room and board" for them does not come cheaply.

Most importantly there are no guarantees that removal of the town ducks is going to have any influence whatsoever on the Canada Geese population.

From earlier experience, the population will most probably increase — and there will be more variety of wild waterfowl choking up Mill Pond.

Sadly — for the child in all of us — our much loved white ducks and geese are headed once again into the political soup pot — feathers and all — and there isn't a thing you or I can do to stop it.

Kudos to our Board of Selectmen and its "Goose Committee."

No way to get ready for surprises

TERRY MAROTTA
COLUMNIST

What I like about life is its many surprises.

I was surprised about this exact time a decade ago, when my little girl came trailing down the stairs from her nap and climbed into my lap in the living room.

I was sitting in the wing chair, I remember, reading a novel about a heroine who gave out unforgettable man-destroying kisses (which turned out to BE so unforgettable largely because her teeth were false, and she popped 'em out as soon as the lights went down. It's the kind of thing you read when the tots nap and the whole house is covered in a crumb-like coating of toast parts and Cheerio bits.)

A friend had called the week before to say she couldn't come over, because HER little girl had developed a case of head lice. HEAD LICE! I wanted to shriek, only didn't, since she was weeping softly over the shame and horror of it all, she who kept a house so clean you could toss a salad in the toilet bowl.

My own little one crept up in my lap then, clutching her blanky and — scratching her head. YOU DON'T SUPPOSE!, I thought suddenly; lifted a length of hair — and saw a row of teensy eggs stitched like seed pearls along each wispy strand.

I almost called 911. I tried holding her at arm's length while bending her boneless limbs into a snowsuit, a task roughly equivalent to drinking a glass of water with both arms in wrist-to-shoulder casts. Then I raced to the doctor's.

"Fascinating!" he exclaimed, browsing through her scalp. "I've seen a thousand cases of nits — the lice's eggs, you know — but never an actual louse!" He gave me some nuclear shampoo. And when, once home, I washed her hair with it, the bathwater turned into a Yangtze River, bustling with the commerce — dead now — of a hundred actual and fascinating lice.

It was some little surprise, all right.

Other surprises I recall involve the time I picked up the uncapped bottle of vitamins, lifted it to my lips to toss down a few and found a live bat folded up like an elf's umbrella inside it; and the time in 10th grade when I lied about being sick to get out of taking an Algebra II test. I got dismissed from school, exulting inwardly; then immediately GOT sick: lay on the bathroom floor for a whole week thinking "Kill me now, God. Let them wrap me in bath mats and lay me out here in the tub."

I guess such surprises happen to us all.

My friend's cat Squeak got gum trouble and went in to have her teeth out (yes, you read right: next thing, they'll be having face lifts and tummy tucks.) While under the knife, she was found to have a tumor too, which the vet removed. But at home, toothless and convalescing, she kept opening her wound. The vet finally put her on Valium. She jumped up on things and missed; forgot how to blink; smiled a lot; and developed a weird appetite — for elastics and earrings and cigarette butts. "Never mind Squeak, give ME the Valium!" my friend begged the vet after a week of this.

Many surprises seem to involve the animal kingdom, come to think of it. One day, my sister's cat Shadow bit her on the toe. At 2 a.m. the lymph nodes in her groin had swollen. At 6 when she got to the Emergency Room, the doctors took 11 syringes of pus out of her foot and sent her home to bed with an Rx for Darvocet. "Looks like another allergy to painkillers," she said to me afterward. "Everything I saw was framed like a stained glass window. And the Space Shuttle kept landing in my room."

Once, the animal figuring in the surprise wasn't even my sister's: she came out to the garage one morning to find that a wild beast had entered her car; had tapdanced, sketched and generally whooped it up on the windshield, dash and upholstery to such an extent, that it brought sobs of disgust even to the pros at the car-cleaning place.

You try to be ready for anything. But hey, you can't be. As a teen, I used to carry safety pins and Tic Tacs and pencils against life's many surprises. When I began to catch on more, I added a pen-knife, Band-Aids, and some Pampers. Now I'm considering a tourniquet, a pair of Depends and some feel-good pills. The pills I may not need now, but who knows? Anyway, according to Squeak, they go for ten bucks a pop on the street.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resident thanks Fitzgerald for following process

To the editor:

I write to thank acting Superintendent Bob Fitzgerald for doing what a majority on the School Committee did not — respecting the process, and the Search Committee that followed that process, to find a superintendent for the Winchester schools. In doing so, Mr. Fitzgerald has earned my, and I believe the community's, highest regard and respect. He has been gracious throughout this process and was eloquently so in accepting the Search Committee's original decision. His behavior has been professional and commendable from beginning to this rather ugly end.

I fault the School Committee both for their decision last week and for the manner in which they announced that decision. Mr. Fitzgerald was not consulted prior to the announcement made at that meeting. He should have been. The School Committee, at that point in the process, had a responsibility to live up to their prior decisions. They had agreed to accept two, rather than the originally requested five, candidates recommended by the search committee. Whether it was a 3-2 vote or a unanimous one, the majority rules. That majority should not have wavered in its commitment to that decision.

By insisting on a third candidate of their choosing without consulting with the Search Committee, they not only insulted a group they had themselves appointed and that had been remarkably diligent and conscientious, they also disregarded the other seven semifinalists and attempted to present the community with a sole candidate.

A desire for Mr. Fitzgerald to be among the finalists as a professional courtesy could have been reasonably expressed and voted on by the committee when procedures were being established last fall. To express that desire now shows not only a disregard for the entire search process, but also a lack of careful thought and consideration on the part of the School Committee members who demanded such a courtesy last week.

Bob Fitzgerald, the Search Committee and the Winchester community deserve better.

Winton producer thanks community, members for support

To the editor:

The last strains of "Fascinating Rhythms" have faded, the Town Hall Auditorium is restored to its customary dignity, but the warm memories of Winton Club's 72nd Annual Cabaret will last forever. The success of the show depended on the combined efforts of many people, from the performers on stage to the host of supporters behind the scenes. The professional team of Director Neal Shapiro, choreographer Cheryl Hayes, and music director Victor Dal Pozzal worked a miracle in one month to meld almost 100 singers and dancers of varying degrees of expertise into a cohesive and enthusiastic troupe. Winton Club members and their husbands worked tirelessly on evenings and weekends on every aspect from scenery and costumes to soliciting ads and moving furniture. Many thanks go to the cast and club members who made this a truly rewarding experience in reinforcing old friendships and making new ones.

ON THE RECORD

Former Winchester Superintendent Charles Mitsakos has landed a job with the Mansfield School Department as their new superintendent. Mitsakos resigned as Winchester superintendent last July after serving eight years in the Winchester school system. Mitsakos, who lives in Lexington, was the unanimous choice of the five-member Mansfield School Committee. Mitsakos, who was chosen by the committee on Feb. 10, was one of three finalists for the job. Mitsakos is currently out of the country and could not be reached for comment on his new position. With his new job, Mitsakos will not have to worry about missing a paycheck — according to the agreement he had when he resigned, he will be paid through this June by Winchester.

The American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days kicks off this March in Winchester. The American Cancer Society will sell daffodils for $5 a bunch, raising money for cancer research, and local education and services to cancer patients. The flowers are distributed by volunteers during the first week of spring, March 23 - 28, to those who place orders in February. The daffodil is selected because as the first flower of spring it symbolizes hope. Last year, Winchester businesses and residents raised over $1,300. Anyone interested in this charity drive can call 643-3010 by the March 5 deadline.

Photographer Art Illman won second place in the Best Feature category for a photo he shot for the Winchester Star last year. The photo was of a youth playing tennis. Illman won the award during the annual Better Newspaper Competition sponsored by the New England Press Association. The contest winners were announced to more than 600 newspaper publishers, editors, staff members and guests at NEPA's annual awards banquet at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel. The Better Newspaper Competition is the largest newspaper contest in New England, and one of the largest in the nation. Almost 200 papers submitted nearly 3,000 entries in the 1992 competition. NEPA is a 44-year old professional newspaper trade organization of more than 400 weekly and daily newspapers, affiliate and associate members. Journalists from Harte-Hanks Community Newspapers won 32 awards, including 13 first places at the competition.

nitude is not possible without the tremendous support of members of the community: the advertisers in the program, the sponsors, and the donors of door prizes. My appreciation of their contributions is boundless. Last, but not least, my thanks to our audience who seemed to have had as much fun in attending as we did in presenting "Fascinating Rhythms." Behind the frivolity in our "show business" venture is, of course, Winton Club's commitment to continue support for patients' services at Winchester Hospital.

My thanks also go to The Winchester Star for publicizing our activities during the month and for reviewing the show.

Dewald questions need for field expansion plans

To the editor:

The town of Winchester has higher priorities than the wasting of tax money on a soccer complex for the private soccer club. Money wasted on unneeded playfield expansion will not be available for education, public safety, street improvement, etc.

My understanding is that Winchester does not have enough playing fields to properly maintain its present fields. I know that it sounds strange, but it appears that the most important factor in playing field maintenance in Winchester is "resting." The frequency at which fields need to be "rested" is still an unanswered question. All fields can't be "rested" every year! Maybe every other year will do. Maybe "resting" is in phase with the DPW workers?

I must admit that I am puzzled by the medieval agriculture practice of "resting" fields. If "resting" fields is necessary, Fenway Park would certainly have two baseball diamonds. How many golf courses have two sets of greens? Think of it, one set of greens is being rested while the other is being played on. I suggest that Fenway Park and golf courses have some employees who know how to grow grass. It is that simple!

For over 25 years, I have observed a university playing field that has surely more usage than Skillings Field, but is always in excellent condition. I phoned the gentleman in charge of field maintenance at that university last week. He told me that field maintenance starts with a soil analysis each fall. From this analysis, the fertilizer (amount and type) and lime needs for the coming year are determined. I was also informed that the field at the university is fertilized four to five times a year. The application of fertilizer, lime, etc. and other maintenance is done by a private lawn contractor which I was told is much cheaper than using university personnel. Also, when a contractor is used capital costs are kept down, especially for expensive equipment that is needed only for a few days a year.

The field maintenance program in Winchester has been a fraud ever since soccer arrived in town. The poor conditions of the playfields have been used for years to advocate field expansion so that taxpayers are conned into building an unneeded soccer complex.

The time is now for the taxpayers to be informed of the true cost of yearly field maintenance (including cost of labor, capital equipment, lawn treatment materials, water, etc.). It would be interesting to find out the sum of money that could be saved if Winchester's field maintenance programs were contracted out.

Finally, why should a private soccer club be allowed to create a financial burden for the taxpayers?

Former resident questions point in Star tribute

To the editor:

Our January 28 edition of "The Star" just arrived today Feb. 3, and we noted the well-deserved tribute to our friend Harrison Chadwick.

John Sullivan's remarks were most complimentary, but didn't John become moderator after a successful tenure by Attorney Ray Kenney?

Lucky so far

To the editor:

On Feb. 8 Canal Street lost another one of its residents to a car fatality.

My neighbors lost, as I have, one of their family members.

Another neighbor nearly lost one of its own but he escaped with bumps, bruises and dislocated bones.

This is a small street and we all feel the loss and hurt of our friends.

Is this town ever going to do anything before one of these accidents is to a child?

Is that what it's going to take to change the indifference the town fathers have shown to an obvious traffic problem?

I sincerely hope not. In memory of man's best friends: Shammy, Boo Boo and Keeper.

Residents question campaign promises from three members

To the editor:

"Responsive and responsible leadership;" financial foresight and contingency planning," "restore public confidence in the school committee" this was some of the rhetoric of three our present School Committee members which appeared in political statements and advertisements in the Winchester Star during their campaigns of 1990 and 1991. They stressed the need for "long range planning" and "priority lists." They sought to end what they described as "crisis management" so that there would be no more "eleventh hour resolutions" or "short-sighted solutions." Over and over again there were references to a "community wide perspective." And as one of these individuals said, "Proven performance rises above promises." Or could it just be proven performance falls below promises?

Perhaps the actions of these three School Committee members at the Feb. 9 School Committee meeting might shed some light on their performance versus promises. By that time both candidates that had been recommended by the Search Committee had now withdrawn before the final selection was to take place, the other was forced to withdraw by default. It was time for responsive and responsible leadership. A lot of time and money and effort had gone into the superintendent search. Now there was no candidate — crisis management time.

Would it not have been a reasonable move to invite the superintendent Search Committee, or at least its co-chairmen, for an open discussion of possible options? Perhaps the remaining finalists could be reconsidered for the position. Perhaps the Search Committee would feel that the process should be reopened once again. They were a diverse group of people who had held public meetings and encouraged written comments from the public before setting the criteria for the search. They represented the community wide perspective that appeared, at least in 1990 and 1991, to be so crucial to these School Committee members.

Instead these three School Committee members chose to ignore the very competent Search Committee and five of the remaining finalists. They chose to single out the one in-house candidate and invite him for an interview. This action put a very fine individual in an extremely awkward situation. And in doing so, they had circumvented the very process and people they had chosen to seek out viable candidates for the superintendency. These members took eleventh hour antics to a whole new level.

In a 1990 Star article our present School Committee chairman stated: "Let's stop comparing ourselves to surrounding communities and give surrounding communities reason to compare themselves to us. Let's lead and stop following." There haven't been too many communities that have followed us in eliminating a curriculum director. How many of you even remember Project 2000 — our long term curriculum plan to prepare Winchester students to be the leaders of tomorrow? Where are the long term plans for the future? Where are the contingency plans? Why do towns like Duxbury, Maynard, and Mansfield have very competent superintendents and we are back at square one with no immediate plans but enough raw feelings for everyone to share. Most of all how will the education of our children be affected by big promises and questionable performances?

Borggaard discusses the Symmes Grant line documents

To the editor:

Now that everyone in town knows exactly "within inches" just where the old Black Horse Tavern stood (on the walled lot at the corner of Main and Prospect Streets) with the barn and stables right below it at the corner of Main and Black Horse Terrace, I feel free to examine one or two more of the documents relative to the matter of the old Symmes Grant Line.

Over one hundred years ago, Mr. Luther Symmes, direct decendant of the original grantee, and at the time the president of the Winchester Historical Society, in an attempt to record for posterity the original boundaries of the grant, had this to say, "and thence crossing the Abajona bear the house of Henry W. Symmes and crossing Main Street about three hundred feet south of the old Black Horse Tavern and along the north side of Prospect Street " etc.

Unfortunately, for posterity, these last two short phrases, out of a long sentence, caused all the trouble. He was an intellignet man. He knew north from south; he knew where the line was and he was trying to describe it. However, when he said that "the line was three hundred feet south of the Tavern" it is evident that he "misspoke". There is absolutely no sign of a line anywhere near 300 feet south of the Tavern, but the line which crossed Main Street (and the Abajona) near the house of Henry W. Symmes is still there and was there then at about 300 feet north of the Tavern.

Again, when he said that the line continued along the north side of Porspect St. he caused further confusion. I fear that many of his readers, who should have known better, should have known that he was speaking synechdochically (are you paying attention?) and literally. He certainly did not mean the street itself, pavement, curbs, and sidewalks, etc. Far from it! He was not about to abandon all the properties that had access only from Prospect Street from the north side. No he meant the Prospect Street complex lots, houses, garages, etc. not just the street itself.

Please note that it was not Prospect Street itself that cut off Hillside Avenue, Summitt Avenue and the north wall of the Sharon house. No, it was the common line on the north side of all those house lots. And this is you see the "the line" of the old Symmes Grant.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Volume 20 — Report No. 3
Massachusetts House and Senate
Feb. 8-11, 1993

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on five roll calls from the week of Feb. 8-11. There were no roll calls in the Senate.

The first four roll calls are on proposed amendments to the House version of Governor Weld's economic development bill. The bill itself, including an increase from 1 to 3 percent in the investment tax credit, was passed on a voice vote.

SMALL BUSINESS LOANS (H 2152) — House 109-42, rejected an amendment increasing funding from $5 million to $10 million for a reserve to provide loan guarantees to small businesses. Amendment supporters said this will leverage another $100 million to help small businesses who are unable to get credit at banks. Opponents said the $5 million is sufficient and argued the state cannot afford the $10 million.

A Yes vote is for the $5 million increase. A No vote is against the $5 million increase.

Rep. Paul Casey voted no.

TECHNOLOGY (H 2152) — House 84-67, rejected an amendment increasing funding from $2 million to $15 million for the Emerging Technology Fund. Amendment supporters said this increase will leverage more private sector financing to stimulate job creation through the construction of modern manufacturing and other advanced technology facilities. They argued that without the funding, businesses may delay their expansion into manufacturing or located new facilities in another state. Opponents said the state simply cannot afford the $15 million and argued the $2 million is enough to get this fund started.

A Yes vote is for the $13 million increase. A No vote is against the $13 million increase.

Pazyrus participates in Bread of Life

Bread of Life, an organization dedicated to providing meals to the needy, recently honored Steven Pazyrus, owner of La Patisserie Bakery, 30 Church St., for his "charitable contributions" to their program.

Bread of Life, begun at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Malden, provides home-cooked dinners, four nights a week, to approximately 100-130 people. This organization was conceived 11 years ago when several strangers "happened into" a potluck supper at St. Paul's and asked for food. They were not turned away and the next week they returned and brought friends and the word traveled. Although the number of hungry people kept growing, the church was always able to meet their needs. Today, volunteers from over 27 area churches, temples and schools from six different cities participate regularly to provide the meals to anyone in need.

Pazyrus became involved with Bread of Life six years ago, when "we were looking for a place to donate our leftover food because we knew a lot of people needed it," he said. Pazyrus began donating supplies of day-old muffins, bread, croissants, etc., from his bakeries to Bread of Life every week and his contributions have become a vital part of the feeding program. Pazyrus, when asked why he had decided to become a part of Bread of Life, replied that, "We have a good business and we wanted to give something back to people in return, and we wanted to give something directly to the people who need it."

In addition to La Patisserie in Winchester, Pazyrus and his family own and operate bakeries in Woburn and Andover and also contribute food regularly to the Lazarus House feeding program in North Andover.

Although Bread of Life was supported during the holiday season, Program Coordinator Tom Feagley stressed that its resources will be greatly strained in the coming months and he urges people to keep remembering those in need.

Any individuals, businesses or organizations that would like to make a food or monetary donation or participate with Bread of Life can do so by contacting Feagley at 397-0404 or mailing or bringing donations to the Bread of Life office at 511 Main St., Malden, MA 02148. All contributions will be appreciated and are tax-deductible.

NCNS to hold open house

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, 21 Church St., will hold its annual open-house on Feb. 25, at 7:30 p.m. Programs for children ages 2.9- to 5-years old are available for the 1993-1994 school session. Interested parents are invited to come to the open house to meet the teachers, visit the classrooms and learn the school's philosophy of child-development. To the parent at NCNS, "cooperative" means being an integral, involved part of the child's first school experience. New applications are being accepted now; admissions will be processed Feb. 26. NCNS also has a parent-attended toddler program. The next eight-week session begins on March 17, from 12:30 to 2 p.m. each Wednesday. For further information, call Jan DiPerna, director, at 729-8081.

'Magic by George' a hit at NCNS

"Magic by George" was a big hit with all those who attended the magic show on Feb.7. Held at Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery school and open to the community, children of all age groups came to enjoy George's 'leger de main.' A participatory act, the magician used children selected from a very eager audience as his assistants. Many children stayed a moment after the show to meet George and his other assistants, a large polka-dot bunny named Ernie and two white doves, Hocus and Pocus.

Pazyrus participates in Bread of Life

Bread of Life, an organization dedicated to providing meals to the needy, recently honored Steven Pazyrus, owner of La Patisserie Bakery, 30 Church St., for his "charitable contributions" to their program.

Bread of Life, begun at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Malden, provides home-cooked dinners, four nights a week, to approximately 100-130 people. This organization was conceived 11 years ago when several strangers "happened into" a potluck supper at St. Paul's and asked for food. They were not turned away and the next week they returned and brought friends and the word traveled. Although the number of hungry people kept growing, the church was always able to meet their needs. Today, volunteers from over 27 area churches, temples and schools from six different cities participate regularly to provide the meals to anyone in need.

Pazyrus became involved with Bread of Life six years ago, when "we were looking for a place to donate our leftover food because we knew a lot of people needed it," he said. Pazyrus began donating supplies of day-old muffins, bread, croissants, etc., from his bakeries to Bread of Life every week and his contributions have become a vital part of the feeding program. Pazyrus, when asked why he had decided to become a part of Bread of Life, replied that, "We have a good business and we wanted to give something back to people in return, and we wanted to give something directly to the people who need it."

In addition to La Patisserie in Winchester, Pazyrus and his family own and operate bakeries in Woburn and Andover and also contribute food regularly to the Lazarus House feeding program in North Andover.

Although Bread of Life was supported during the holiday season, Program Coordinator Tom Feagley stressed that its resources will be greatly strained in the coming months and he urges people to keep remembering those in need.

Any individuals, businesses or organizations that would like to make a food or monetary donation or participate with Bread of Life can do so by contacting Feagley at 397-0404 or mailing or bringing donations to the Bread of Life office at 511 Main St., Malden, MA 02148. All contributions will be appreciated and are tax-deductible.

NCNS to hold open house

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, 21 Church St., will hold its annual open-house on Feb. 25, at 7:30 p.m. Programs for children ages 2.9- to 5-years old are available for the 1993-1994 school session. Interested parents are invited to come to the open house to meet the teachers, visit the classrooms and learn the school's philosophy of child-development. To the parent at NCNS, "cooperative" means being an integral, involved part of the child's first school experience. New applications are being accepted now; admissions will be processed Feb. 26. NCNS also has a parent-attended toddler program. The next eight-week session begins on March 17, from 12:30 to 2 p.m. each Wednesday. For further information, call Jan DiPerna, director, at 729-8081.

'Magic by George' a hit at NCNS

After School Adventures, run by the Lincoln School Parents Association offers the children many interesting courses on an early release day. The art of cake decorating; magic tricks learned and performed by the youngest of Houdinis; hand-made stuffed animals cuddly and endearing; colonial clothing made in preparation for Colonial Day: A busy and fun afternoon for all the children who participated.

Brownies celebrate investiture at meeting

Feelings high over search

Like those who were in attendance that evening, some parents were disturbed at the whole process. "I think that under the circumstances, I'm glad Mr. Fitzgerald withdrew," said Betsy Cregger, president of the Community Schools Association. Cregger said regardless of how people feel about Fitzgerald, he would have faced some difficulty if he had gotten the job under those circumstances. "He would not have the widespread community support you would like a new superintendent to have."

Phyllis Murphy, president of the Lincoln Parents Association, also found fault with the process. "I think Bob Fitzgerald is a great guy and would make a great superintendent, but circumventing the process was appalling, even for them," said Murphy.

Some parents interpreted the committee's decision as a lack of concern for the feelings of the school community. "It's really a travesty that they could pull one finalist forward and override how the public felt," said Linda Axon, president of the Muraco Parents Association. "It's more than the decision of five people. There are a lot of concerned parents, and their opinions count also."

Those who opposed the interview were also upset with the quickness at which the committee was moving. Heinold said she had spoken with Lombardi a couple of days before the Feb. 9 meeting about the search and he said nothing about Fitzgerald. "When the whole suggestion came up 24 hours later, I almost fell off my chair ... It was absolutely out of the blue," said Heinold.

There was some anger over the posting of an interview for Feb. 11, two days after the decision by the committee. "I don't understand what the big rush was," said Cregger. Evans said he did not know of the interview posting until after it had been cancelled.

Those who had wanted to interview Fitzgerald, however, have not given up their hopes. "I hope he reconsiders in the future ... because I think he would potentially make a good superintendent," said Lombardi.

Search may be turned over

that would receive direction from the School Committee and the school community. "They would be given a very clear charge in what to look for ... and public input would be a very large part of that picture," said Heinold.

Heinold said a consulting firm would cover a larger geographical area in its search and would not only bring in candidates who are looking for a new position but would approach any superintendent, even not those not on a job search, who it feels would be a good candidate for the job.

Committee members will take up the subject again at their March 2 meeting. The search for a new superintendent was momentarily abandoned when the two finalists for the position withdrew after being interviewed by the School Committee. Acting Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald was also offered a chance to interview but declined.

Sally Von Benken, the coordinator of planning and management for New England School Development Council (NESDC), a firm that assists school communities in the search for superintendents, said candidates are usually garnered through advertising and also through a large nationwide network of candidates. Von Beck said NESDC looks at hundreds of resumes and then narrows it down to a couple of dozen candidates for closer inspection. These candidates all receive interviews or have been interviewed recently by the firm. Von Beck said the firm generally forwards 10 to 12 candidates to the School Committee.

Von Benken said the process usually takes four to six months. NESDC administrators would not say how much they charge for searches for a superintendent.

Von Benken said consulting firms usually are given clear direction by school committees. She also said that public input is solicited. "We spend a couple of days in the district to greet a variety of people and constituencies," said Von Beck.

Maurer passes budget along

tive ones," said Maurer. Maurer cited salary increases for municipal and education employees, a capital budget, and no cuts to personnel at the municipal or school level.

Total estimated revenues for Fiscal Year 1994 are $33,027,000 which constitutes an increase, but the requests for spending total $33,862,793.

Included in the requests were specific departmental requests to restore personnel or add backup within the police and library departments.

"I hear 'we want to restore all these programs' but my feeling is that you should restore them with fixed revenue," said Maurer. Maurer questioned using a "one-time" shot of additional revenue as is being proposed by the School Department by recertifying free cash.

In explaining the budgetary concerns facing the town, Maurer used the library as an example of a well-run department with additional personnel needs.

"The library is an important part of the whole operation of the town," said Maurer. "And what they're finding is that they need more personnel to handle an increase in the number of people using the library." Library Director Lynda Wills has done a good job in maximizing limited resources, he added.

"The library wants the ability to call in people to fill slots due to sickness, in order to have a fully staffed library. And the public demands it," said Maurer.

But Maurer said he wanted to work within the confines of what was budgeted in terms of personnel last year and nothing more. And he says that's the way he will continue to operate until another source of fixed revenue is found. Possibilites for additional revenue include increased state aid, increases in fees and an override.

And next year, the heat is going to rise a notch higher. Fiscal Year 1995 revenue is projected to come in at 33,542,000, a slight increase over FY'94.

"Revenue becomes a problem in Fiscal Year 1995," said Maurer. "You can see how costs go up and revenue didn't go up that much by looking at FY'94." Maurer explained that any further gains in revenue will be further impacted by collective bargaining agreements costing $900,000 this year and $1,900,000 for FY'95. New town and school contracts call for these increases.

The town had been coping with increased costs so far by keeping municipal and education expenses down.

"We were at an advantage this year because the costs for health insurance dipped," as well as several other fixed costs, he said. However, next year those costs will start another slow climb upward, said Maurer.

" ... We are not going to solve the budget problems just by having a series of town officials bang their shoes on the table," he said. "You don't have to yell and scream at each other and you don't have to call someone a name to reach a solution," said Maurer.

or con whether he would have a shot at the job so he wouldn't have to go through a whole new process ... Then Bob decided he didn't want to go through with all that and withdrew, and so now we're back to where we were started six months ago.

Is there any validity to the opinion that Winchester has bad reputation in other communities that people don't want to work here?

I don't think so at all ... Ed O'Connell works for the state Department of Education, and he goes monthly to the superintendent meetings .. he said, contrary to that, Winchester is a very desirable place to work. It just seems that the pool of candidates is a little bit weak, unfortunately, now.

How do you see the budget as shaping up, and how do you see the gap between the School Committee and the town manager will be closed?

It's a gradual process. You start way apart from each other and gradually the town manager and the selectmen will be less conservative with their revenue projections, which will bring closer what they think the town can afford and what we feel the School Department needs to operate, so that the problem becomes smaller .. I feel very strongly that the money is there. I have always been for the guidelines of Proposition 2 1/2, but now that the money has been raised ... I don't see why we have to penalize ourselves further than that and hold over a million dollars in free cash to help us out next year. I think we owe it to the taxpayers to spend wisely the money we raise through taxes.

Are you interested in an override at all at this point?

At this point, no. I'm not the type of person who has been interested in an override, and I've campaigned against them. I think that it would be just about impossible to sell an override ... because of the economy, and I also think it would be even tougher to sell it now when we show people that if we recertify free cash, there's close to a million dollars there, but we still want to tax you more so we can keep that money in the bank.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Chad Maurer has suggested that no one add any personnel but the School Committee wants to add some teachers and a curriculum director. Is that something you feel very strongly about or would you be willing to give in?

I think we need a curriculum person, and the committee seems to be heading that way ... I do feel strongly about that, and I wouldn't be willing to give it up. As far as three additional elementary teachers, that's just to keep the class sizes the same ... No, I wouldn't be willing to give in on those right now.

Do you think there are racial problems in the Winchester public school system?

No, absolutely not, I don't ... From everything I've heard from the incident we had at the high school it was not a racial incident. One person happened to be white, and one person happened to be black. Then everyone justs jumps into it — the press, people in town, who for some reason like crusades like that — and say it was racial. All the evidence that was presented to me ... it was just the wrong people in the wrong place at the wrong time. If it was two white kids or two black kids or two Chinese kids fighting, it would have just been like any other incident at the high school. It would have been taken care of, and that would have been the end of the discussion. It just seems like people are very, very willing to overreact to those things. I think the ABC program has done a lot of good for a lot of good kids, and It is a shame to see it dragged into that type of discussion.

So you don't see a need to institute any policies, make any changes?

No, I think the way Dr. Ritchie has reacted with the forums ... is definitely helpful and constructive and should be something that is done every year ... There were no policies that could have been changed that could have made this different.

Bortman questions methods

not the way to start. Maybe you need someone actually going out and rustling the bushes to see where applicants might be solicited from ... We certainly need some advice from someone who knows how to start a search.

How do you feel about the budget proposed by the School Committee? Do you feel it is too low, two high, just right? How would you try to fill the $500,000 gap if you were sitting on the committee now?

It's hard to say. It's a first cut budget ... I think the real problem at this stage is the approach that the School Committee has taken with it, and particularly the chairman. I think if I had a budget that was perhaps half a million dollars higher than the town manager or the selectmen were happy with, I would be working with the town manager, the selectmen, or the chairman of the Finance Committee, explaining to them what was in that budget that was important to keep, what was important to the educational programs that I was promoting. I would be working with them to convince them that the budget was a reasonable one. I would not be arguing with them ... It would be much nicer at this stage to have an agreed budget ... At the joint budget meeting there was clearly an offer from the selectmen to come up with a little more revenue if the School Committee chairman could find is way to explain some of the extra $500,000 and discuss some negotiation between 0 and $500,000, and that there wasn't. What we saw instead was the chairman of the School Committee lecturing the chairman of the selectmen and the town manager and the chairman of the Finance Committee on the intricacies of statutory municipal accounting. He was explaining to them all about free cash ... The budget is certainly subject to negotiation, but the way to do it is to negotiate, not to lecture and to find fault.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Chad Maurer has suggested that no one add any personnel but the School Committee wants to add some teachers and a curriculum director. How do you feel about this?

I think we need a director of curriculum ... How does a teacher in any particular grade know that what he's teaching fits into the bigger context of subject matter from first grade all the way up to high school. It can't be done unless there's someone overseeing the whole thing ... The extra three teachers, well, the enrollment is going up. If we want to maintain the teacher-pupil ratio of what we got, than we have to increase the number of teachers...I think the 3.72 teachers is a reasonable increase.

How do you feel about overriding 2 1/2 as a source of funding?

It's much too early to have an opinion on that. It's unfortunate to turn the school budget turn into a political football and start waving the Proposition 2 1/2 question this early in the game ... What we saw at the joint budget meeting was some obvious political posturing. Each side wanted the other person to use the "O-word" first ... We just shouldn't be doing that ... We had an opportunity to negotiate a settlement with the selectmen someplace between 0 and $500,000 and that's what we ought to be focusing on.

Do you think there are racial problems in the Winchester public school system?

Racial is probably too restrictive a word. I think there is a problem of a multi-cultural nature ... I think that some of the programs that are around should be promoted some more ... I think that John Ritchie's reaction to the mace spraying situation was outstanding. I can't compliment him enough for jumping right in when that thing happened and doing exactly the right thing. More of those actions are needed in order to help everyone appreciate the diversity in our schools and our town. We don't have a racial problem, but we do have a problem of lack of sensitivity to people with different colors and religions.

Sachemettes stun Belmont

Winchester plays nearly flawless basketball to post upset rout

SPORTS WRITER

In one of the most stunning upsets in recent Middlesex League girls basketball history, the Winchester High Sachemettes crushed the Marauders of Belmont, 63-40, at Winchester on Tuesday night.

Winchester High School
Girls' BASKETBALL

Playing a near-perfect game, Winchester, which entered the contest at 4-12 in league play, handed the Marauders their most convincing loss of the season.

"We finally played up to our ability," said Winchester coach Joe DiSarcina. "We've got some good players. We've told them all year to play as hard as they can, up to their ability. It was just a matter of everybody playing up to their level of play. We believed we could do good things if we could do that. I'm not sure the kids believed that up until tonight."

Winchester's win was fueled by the intense defensive effort of guards Julie Russo and Corinne Imperatore, forwards Liz Hare and Jenna DeSimone and center Esme Baker. The five combined on a 12-2 spurt at the end of the first half to open up a 29-18 Sachemette lead at the break.

With the same players on the court to open the second half, Winchester's lead continued to grow. The Sachemettes blew the game open with a 12-4 run. With Belmont's Kim McBride, the league's Most Valuable Player, on the bench with four personal fouls, Marauder coach Bob Gleason couldn't find a hot hand to get his team back on track.

"What's that quote? Anything that can go wrong ... I don't know," said Gleason. "I think Winchester did a good job. They worked hard defensively, and we did not make shots early in the ball game. I don't know how many easy shots we missed tonight."

Winchester's strong interior defense, led by Baker, Jenn Russo, Hare and Amanda Armstrong, shackled McBride, who came into the contest averaging over 15 points per game. McBride eventually fouled out with just eight points.

"Early on, I said to one of my assistant coaches that this is a nightmare waiting to happen," Gleason said. "That run at the end of the first half, when they scored five straight, that may have been the killer right there."

Julie Russo, the Sachemettes' all-star point guard, led all scorers with 19 points. DeSimone added 14, and Baker, Jenn Russo and Imperatore tossed in six apiece.

Winchester High's Julie Russo drives to the basket during the Sachemettes' upset of Belmont Tuesday night in Winchester.

DiSarcina chose to shorten his bench in the second half, staying with the five players who had given him the big lead late in the first half while subbing Jenn Russo and Armstrong. Expecting the talented Marauders to make their move, DiSarcina called a series of timeouts to keep his players fresh.

"We talked (in the locker room) about the first two or three minutes of the second half, and how that would establish the game," said DiSarcina. "We had a good combination going defensively, so we started using the timeouts to conserve their strength."

Belmont never made its move however, and Winchester continued to add to its lead. The Sachemettes' biggest lead was 25, which came with 55 seconds remaining in the game.

For their efforts, the Winchester players received a prolonged standing ovation from the 100 or so Winchester fans who ventured out through the sloppy weather conditions.

According to Julie Russo, the game wasn't that big an upset.

"We just wanted to play good defense," said Russo. "We just went out there and gave it all we could. They played a perfect game against us the first time. They hit every shot. We knew we could do it if we did a little better and they did a little worse."

DeSimone, who notched a season high with her 14-point effort, agreed.

"We didn't play that well the first game," she said. "Coach stressed defense and rebounding, and said our offense would come from there. Everything just came together like it did in that first game against Burlington (a 60-59 win)."

DiSarcina said Tuesday's result should give the team more confidence heading into the open tournament, scheduled to begin Monday.

"Again, we have to believe that we can play with some of these teams," DiSarcina concluded. "And on a given night we can have a night like this."

WHS boys fall in double OT

Sachems stretch Belmont to limit

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

What a difference a couple of weeks make.

Winchester High School
Boys' BASKETBALL

Just 18 days after Belmont blitzed the Winchester High boys basketball team, 91-50 — a game in which the Sachems trailed by 42 points at the half — the Sachems nearly turned the tables on the Marauders. Winchester took the Middlesex League champions to double overtime before falling 79-77 Tuesday night at Winchester High.

"One thing about these kids is that they have a lot of pride," said Winchester coach Quinton Dale. "I knew by their intensity level all week in practice that they weren't going to come out and be afraid of Belmont. That had a lot to prove and I think they did prove that."

Winchester did everything it possibly could to win the game, but in the end, two Mark Mulvey (20 points) foul shots with 10 seconds remaining in the second OT sealed the Marauder win, giving Belmont (18-2) a share of the Middlesex League title with Lexington.

Winchester had whittled a 14-point lead down to five with 1:21 remaining in regulation. Peter French, Mark Morrison and Sean Furey all had clutch points in the final minute as Winchester forced the first of two extra sessions.

The list of heroes (in no particular order) for Winchester starts with Brian Keefe. The junior co-captain, fresh from the league's all-star clash, was nearly unstoppable, hitting for 26 points. Keefe was 7 for 7 from the free throw line and 9 of 11 from the floor. He also dished off five assists in keeping Winchester within striking range, before fouling out with nine seconds remaining in regulation.

"He gets in that groove and starts making those shots," said Dale. "He took that last foul for the team, and I was very proud of him for doing that. It helped us rally as a team to see our star player go out and commit his fifth foul (for the good of the team)."

Furey, Winchester's junior center, had another immense game. Although he scored just seven points, they included a 3-pointer which started the Sachems back from a 10-point deficit with 5:20 remaining, and a 12-foot baseline jumper with one tick left in regulation that sent the game into OT.

Furey also did the job defensively, limiting Belmont 6-foot-8-inch senior center Asa Palmer to 16 points (bringing his career total to 999). Furey was at his defensive best over the last eight minutes of regulation and the six overtime minutes, during which Palmer managed just one free throw.

"We didn't want him getting his 1,000th point tonight," said Dale. "We've been working on (Furey's) defense, and keeping him in the game. Once he's in the game for a while, he starts to play better basketball.

French, Winchester's senior point guard, was another Sachem who turned up his game in the second half. French led an intense defensive effort which limited the Marauders to just seven points over the last 6:37 of the contest.

But it was the senior's offense which came to the fore, as French tossed in four treys in the second half — two in the final 57 seconds of regulation — as the Sachems closed the gap.

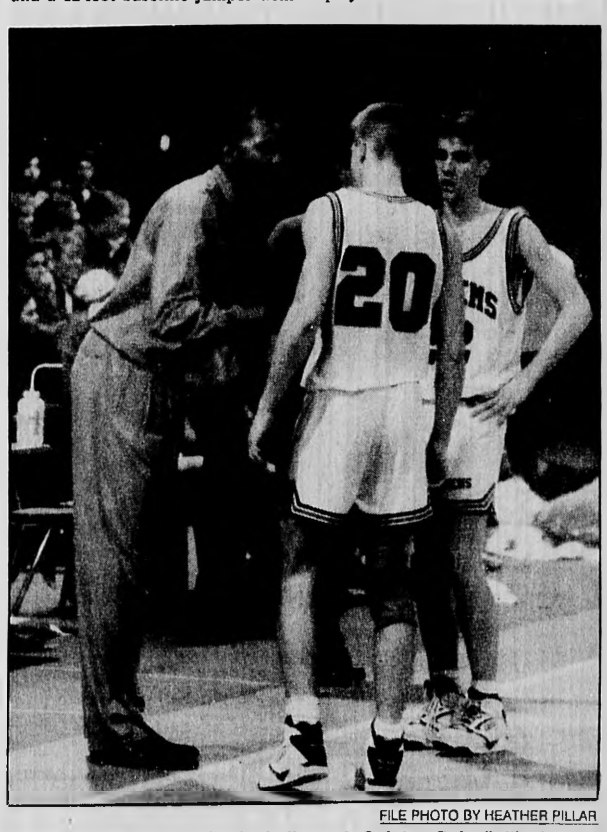

Morrison, who joined Keefe in last Saturday's all-star game, was overshadowed by the outstanding play of many Sachems, but was Winchester's constant source of points down the stretch and in the extra sessions. Ten of Morrison's 23 points came with less than five minutes to play in regulation. He was a perfect 8 for 8 from the charity stripe, including two with 21 seconds remaining in regulation, four in the last 24 seconds of the first OT, and another pair with 1:13 left in the second OT.

According to Dale, the 6-3 forward really stepped up his game when Keefe fouled out.

"He told me he wanted to be the one to take (the clutch shots)," Dale said. "He didn't want to be the one taking the ball out of bounds. He said 'coach, I want to be the one taking the shots.' With Brian out, he stroked them like a natural."

Despite the loss, Dale said the game proved his team had come a long way en route to the open tournament. (Winchester had one regular-season game remaining, a clash with rival Woburn scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 17, at Winchester.)

"This game will carry us into (Wednesday's game with Woburn) and into the tournament," Dale said. "We know we can play with just about any team we're going to run up against. We played Lexington tough, and we played Belmont to double overtime."

Future looks bright for Sachem skaters

By Jim Mckenzie
SPORTS WRITER

OK, local sports trivia buffs: When was the last time a Winchester High hockey team placed four players in the annual Middlesex League All-Star game? And when was the last time a Sachem player made the all-league team?

Winchester High School
WRESTLING

Not in a long time, that's for sure. In coach Jack Newhall's six years, the team has not had a player selected to the ML All-League squad, while just a handful of players have been selected to play in the all-star exhibition game.

Things changed last weekend however, when four Sachems — co-captain Anthony Bonfilio, goalie Andrew Brown and defensemen Bobby Marrone and Matt Breuer — were selected to play in the game. Between the second and third periods, Brown was announced as one of the league's all-star netminders. Even with a 4.88 goals-against average, the league's coaches felt Brown, who routinely faced 40-plus shots per contest, was one of the circuit's elite backstops.

"There was no question in my mind that he was one of the best goalies in the league," said Burlington High coach Bob Conceison, who guided the Devils to a second-place showing in the league. "In the first game of the year he was immense. We beat them 3-1, but he had some unbelievable saves to keep them in it.

"We were playing a lot better the second time we played Winchester (a 6-1 Devil win)," Conceison continued, "but we could have put 10 or 11 goals on the board if it wasn't for him. Our kids thought he was the toughest goalie in the league to beat."

In Sunday night's all-star game at Woburn's O'Brien Rink, all four Winchester players made significant contributions in the North's 3-1 win. Brown tossed a shutout in his one-period stint between the pipes, with Marrone doing much of the defensive work in front of him.

Breuer nearly scored, hitting the post on a third-period wrist shot from the slot, and Bonfilio made several nice passes and also rang one off the post.

"They all distinguished themselves out there," said Newhall. "Winchester made a good showing."

The Sachems concluded another tough season with back-to-back losses to Watertown (9-3) and Woburn (7-1), ending their season with a disappointing 1-15-2 mark. The Watertown loss typified the Sachem

Sachem wrestlers head into postseason tournaments

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

The Winchester High indoor track teams wanted the dual-meet season to end a little differently, but they weren't disappointed with losses to Woburn in last Saturday's regular-season finales.

Winchester High School
ROUNDUP

With both teams missing a few key competitors, the boys team fell 46-37, while the girls were nosed out 46-40.

According to girls coach Joe Cantillon, the loss typified Winchester's frustrating season.

"We lost five very tight meets," said Cantillon. "There were a lot of good, competitive meets. It was unfortunate we weren't able to beat a couple of the teams."

But, said Cantillon, Winchester (2-6-1) had a terrific season. This year's team featured the largest number of girls in over 10 seasons, and just about every member reached personal goals.

"The thing about track is that you can look at more than just wins and losses," Cantillon explained. "When everyone runs good times and the effort is there, it makes close losses a little easier to handle."

Against Woburn, Cantillon received one of the best team efforts of the season. Three Sachemettes switched events due to the absence of two of Winchester's better athletes, and all three responded with wins.

Elodie Kayulu got the ball rolling, dropping to the 1,000-yard race and winning it in a time of 3 minutes, 9.5 seconds. Betsy Kean was next, sliding down to the 600, where she recorded a meet-best 1:39.8. Laura Aleo dropped from the 600 to the 300 and was first in 40.8 seconds, one of the best times in the entire league this season.

"That was the first time each of those girls had raced that particular event this season," said Cantillon. "That was a real sacrifice and a great result."

Winchester's other winners included Sarah Bonnell (2-mile), Deidre Murdock (mile) and the relay team of Kean, Bonnell, Murdock and Aleo.

"I'm sure we'd all like to run some of those meets over again, to see if we could pick up a few more wins," said Cantillon, "but we're just happy to see the development the team made and we're looking forward to the outdoor season."

Winchester's boys also dropped a close meet, finishing their season at 4-4-1 after the loss at Woburn.

Winchester's winners included Justin Simeone (shot put), Brian Lindmark (300), Ben Simeone (hurdles), Ron Hall (dash) and the relay team of Shaun Oliver, Rob Donlon, Rolando Oyola and Lindmark.

Wrestlers headed to sectional meet

The Winchester High wrestlers finished the team portion of the season by taking fifth place at the Middlesex League meet in Melrose Saturday. With three strong grapplers unable to participate, coach Larry Tremblay was pleased with the results turned in by his young squad.

"I'm happy," said Tremblay. "Basically, we wrestled pretty well. Forfeiting three weight classes hurt us in the final standings, but we had six guys make the final four."

Dave Drazen was Tremblay's choice for best Winchester wrestler, as the 152-pound sophomore made it to the finals before getting pinned by Andy Burns of Melrose.

"Dave went out and pinned (Rob) Connors from Woburn after Connors had beat him a week ago," said Tremblay. "He knew he was better, and he pinned him at the end of the first period. He lost on inexperience in the finals."

Other strong Winchester efforts came from 145-pound Dan Boffo, who lost a heartbreaker in the semifinal round, but came back to take third place, and 135-pounder Dave Carr, who scrambled to the finals before falling to Chad Carbone of Woburn.

Captain Jeff Edmands was outpointed 17-4 by Reading's Dave Carvalo in the finals at 189, Mike Marino was the consolation winner at 171, Wes Matthews lost the consolation at 140, Tucker Bradford lost the consolation at 125, and Anthony Feola suffered the same fate at 119.

"We'll take everybody to the sectionals (Saturday at Franklin High) and hope to qualify a few guys for the states," said Tremblay.

McCarthy beams to North sectional

Winchester High gymnast Marisa McCarthy was the lone Sachemette competitor at last Saturday's North Sectional gymnastics championship at Stoneham High.

McCarthy, who qualified in the balance beam, earned a solid score of 8.41, putting the freshman in 31st place.

U-14 Blazers capture holiday tournament

Led by the stellar goaltending of Dan Notartomaso and Nick Danella, the under-14 Blazers took first place in the Luken Five-a-Side Tournament at the Dennis Luken Indoor Soccer Center in Burlington last month.

After losing their first game to the top-seeded Bandits, 2-1 in the last second of play, the Blazers ripped off three straight wins to claw their way back to the championship game. Once there, they defeated the Bandits 2-1 to lay claim to the championship.

Andrey Oks had the winning goal, while Matt Kurnick scored the first Blazer goal. Notartomaso was the winning goalie.

Matt Gallery, Haig Goudzouzian, Jon Harvey and Mike Takacs led a tenacious defense which allowed just five goals through the five games. The offense, led by Tim Alberts, Sanjeeve Martyn, Nick Linicheck, Kurnick and Oks, scored 35 goals over the course of the tourney.

As of Feb. 9, the Blazers were 15-0 in the Dennis Lukens U-14 premier league.

Leading 2-0 just 1:54 into last Wednesday's contest at the O'Brien Rink, on goals by Anthony Bonfilio and Matt Breuer, Winchester was unable to stop a storming Raider assault. Needing a win to qualify for the state tournament, Watertown peppered Brown with 36 shots en route to a 9-3 win.

"It was a must-game for Watertown," said Newhall. "Their first line (which accounted for an incredible 21 points) killed us. We couldn't handle it."

It was more of the same against Woburn. The Tanners made sure Winchester didn't mess with their league-championship hopes by pasting the Sachems, 7-1.

With the season complete, Newhall and Winchester can look to the future with anticipation. Of Winchester's top players, only senior co-captains Bonfilio and Andy Nolan will graduate. The first line had freshman Steve Cucinatti (6 goals, 8 assists, 14 points) on one wing and sophomore Paul McGowan (6-4-10) on the other. Defensemen Breuer (9-8-17) and Marrone (4-6-10) will have two years of regular shifts under their belts as juniors.

Sophomore Kevin Coughlin, freshman Mark Smith and juniors Pat Quill and Jamie Lanzo will return to bolster the forward lines, while Joe Vaccari and Greg Carroll return on defense. Then there's Brown, who will be a senior.

"He's going to get even better," said Newhall. "He could be the No. 1 goalie in the whole league. It will be tough."

Wrestling Boosters seek contributions

The Winchester High School Wrestling Boosters Club, like the wrestling team, faces a season of rebuilding. The boosters are rebuilding the club's bank account.

The huge success of the last few years' teams proved costly. Costs such as team trophies, awards and tournament expenses have left the boosters in the red this year and seeking any contributions, large or small.

A contribution will assist in the purchase of athletic shoes and other equipment for those unable to buy their own. The boosters provide wrestling camp scholarships for deserving wrestlers. They pay fees for the fall wrestling instruction offered through the recreation department for the community. In addition, the boosters hold an annual banquet to recognize the team's achievements.

Checks should be made payable to Winchester Wrestling Boosters Club and mailed to John and Kate Edmands, 12 Winthrop St., Winchester, MA, 01890, or Larry and Erna Worthen, 15 Hancock St., Winchester, MA, 01890.

'Unity in diversity' is theme of Black History celebration

"Unity in diversity" is the theme of Winchester's first Black History Month celebration which will be held Thursday, Feb. 25, at Winchester High School. All Winchester residents are invited to come.

The celebration is sponsored by the Africa Resource Institute and is being coordinated under the leadership of Agnes Lugira, a native of Uganda. Lugira has been disturbed by the racial incidents in the town this year, but was heartened by the participation in recent forums, the candlelight vigil and the turnout for the Martin Luther King celebration. "The incidents," she said, "have been an eye opener to most people who care for and about human dignity." Lugira sees the world as a "gigantic field of flowers, each portraying its individual beautiful characteristics. These different flowers," she says, composed of different colors, characteristics and endowments, are like the human race. "Each race has something to contribute to strengthen harmonious living."

To promote the awareness of diversity in our community, Lugira has been working with the Africa Resource Institute to plan the program. Winchester resident Dr. Tilman Hardy will lead off the evening with introductory remarks and the entertainment will include presentations by The Art of Black Dance and Music Ensemble, The Haitian Theater dance group, a poetry reading by Professor Ifeanyi Menkiti, Fatou Ndiaye performing a History of African Dance and the Persuaded Ensemble performing contemporary gospel music.

Foods from different cultures will be available at 7 p.m., along with books relevant to Black History Month and African crafts, and the program will begin at 7:30 p.m. A small admission will be charged. Families are encouraged to enjoy the event together and to celebrate the presence of African American people in the country and community.

Beaux Arts Ball 1993

The Winchester Art Association, Friends of Art, invites you to join us on Saturday, Feb. 27, from 8 p.m. until midnight at the Winchester Town Hall Auditorium for Beaux Arts Ball III — Midnight in Moscow.

The Beaux Arts Ball tradition began as a joyous celebration of the arts and Winchester has adopted this festive practice as our own and we are delighted to offer another evening of live music, delicious refreshments and charming company. "Midnight in Moscow" invites you in from the cold. Start with a review of our silent auction — donated works of art and other items to test our party-goers' bidding skills. Sample an array of tasty tidbits fit for the table of the tsar...and dance to the music of the Jerry and Jack Davis Band. In past years, many guests have embraced the spirit of Mardi Gras by wearing costumes and/or masks. We encourage such creative expression.

All proceeds raised support the extra-budgetary projects of the Winchester School Art Department, grades K-12 and to defray the costs of this event. Tickets remain $25 per person, including refreshments. Wine and beer are available at cost. This is a 21-and-over event. Seating is limited. For information call Margaret Reuland, 721-0751, or Susan Haskell, 729-6327.

Large crowd attends forum

A healthy respect and appreciation for religious diversity needs to be taught in the public schools, Leonard Davidson, chairman of the speaker's bureau of the Anti-Defamation League, told a crowd of nearly 200 gathered at Arlington High School Tuesday night.

Davidson spoke at a presentation sponsored by Temple Shir Tikvah of Winchester and the Jewish Community Association on the subject of "Religious Diversity in the Public Schools.

Speaking to a crowd that included residents from Arlington, Winchester, Belmont and other Greater Boston communities, Davidson spoke of the need to encourage a multi-religious society in the public schools.

"We often find the wall between church and state is a chain-link fence," he said. "There's clearly an overlapping of the secular and the sacred.

"How would we feel about singing songs to Allah or Buddha or being asked to declare fervently that there is no God?" he asked.

The presentation was held in the wake of a two-month controversy in town surrounding a Nativity scene that was displayed at the Jefferson Cutter House during the holidays.

Davidson said that religion has often proven to be politically divisive in the past, and he stressed that acceptance of all religions, not just the faith of the majority, needs to be a part of the public school system.

"It is time for us to join hands and to find the way together," he said. "When we tolerate insensitivity, we perpetuate intolerance. We must be vigilant in creating a society of tolerance, acceptance and understanding."

Others at the meeting expressed concerns similar to those of Davidson's after he finished speaking.

Kathy Colwell, an Arlington resident and president of the Arlington Educational Enrichment Fund, spoke in support of programs in Arlington public schools that encourage diversity. "I never experienced diversity, and I think it's wonderful what my children are experiencing," she said. "I can't teach them about diversity. I have been isolated all my life."

Rabbi Ferenc Raj, rabbi of Beth El Temple Center in Belmont, said that "I strongly believe that religion doesn't belong in the schools. I believe children should learn about religion in their churches and synogogues. The public schools are not religious schools."

John Deyst, an Arlington resident, said educating students about religion does not have to include favoritism toward a particular religious faith.

"You can teach about slavery without advocating slavery," he said. "You can also teach about religion without advocating a particular religion."

Kendra Lider-Johnson, a junior at Arlington High School, attended the presentation. Selected as a student-participant in the recently formed Peer Counseling on Diversity program, Lider-Johnson commented on what she sees as the role of the program, which will focus on a wide range of diversity issues, including religious diversity.

"The most important thing we can do is to have the one to one contact," she said. "It's easier for students to come up to other students than to adults with problems. These are kids that go to the same school. If they see that something is wrong and it is brought back to a peer counselor's attention, maybe we can do something together for ourselves and for our school to change it."

In an interview later with The Advocate, Davidson emphasized his position on the need for religious neutrality in the public schools.

"If there is a tendency to promote religion, it's unconstitutional," he said.

'World Day of Prayer' March 5

World Day of Prayer, a day on which millions of Christian women all over the globe join in "informed prayer and prayerful action," traditionally takes place on the first Friday in March and is translated into hundreds of languages. Nineteen ninety-three marks its 106th year.

In this community World Day of Prayer is being sponsored by the Winchester unit of Church Women United and it will be held at The Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St., on Friday, March 5, at 1 p.m.; refreshment hour will follow the service. All are invited to attend. Child care will be available. Members of 10 Winchester churches will be participating in this ecumenical service.

This year's World Day of Prayer service was written by women of Guatemala on the theme, "People of God: Instruments of Healing." The themes and sponsoring countries are determined at an international meeting held every four years.

The Guatemalan women share their background and experiences and tell of healing in the Mayan culture by medicinal plants, some of which are still in use today. The women describe some of their social conditions of Guatemala and their desire to be instruments of healing to solve some of these problems using Biblical and present day stories of healings.

The speaker at the World Day of Prayer service will be the Rev. Judith McCullough of Norwell. Michaela Morales of Guatemala will be present and at the social hour will demonstrate her weaving techniques. For information, call 729-2661.

Funds collected from the World Day of Prayer in the United States will be distributed by Church Women United for programs including Intercontinental Grants to many regions of the world for programs benefitting women. Church Women United, since its founding in 1941, has been the official sponsor of World Day of Prayer in this country, where approximately 5,000 communities and 178,000 people celebrate this service.

Even with a lot of encouragement from family and friends, sometimes it's difficult to break the cycle of smoking addiction. "Quitters in Motion," offered by Winchester Hospital, is an ongoing support group for those who have quit or are trying to quit smoking. For many, smoking is a way to ease stress, anxiety and frustration or limit a craving for food. Quitters in Motion addresses these emotions and helps participants find ways to replace smoking with more positive behaviors.

Quitters in Motion may be used in conjunction with the nicotine patch as a patch advantage program. The group will meet on Wednesdays, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center. The cost is $7 at the door. For more information, call 932-8200.

Pontiac Grand Am

Sales leader boasts powertrain improvements

owners are female, with an average age of 39 and a median income of $50,000.

For 1993, the Grand Am line includes a full range of safety and security features that keep the driver in control while providing occupant protection. Major safety features include: full-feature, 4-wheel anti-lock (ABS), power disc/drum brakes; 5-mph energy-absorbing bumpers; self-aligning steering wheel hub that offers drivers additional protection against chest injuries; automatic transmission/shift interlock; mini-wedge door-locking design helps retain door integrity in the event of a crash; power window lock-out switch; dual outside rearview mirrors; rear seat integral headrests; safety belts - automatic for driver and right front passenger and three-point rear seat for outboard positions; center rear 2-point; sedan rear-door child-security locks.

Grand Am coupes and sedans are distinctive with specific roof designs and flush-mounted side window glass. Upper door frames wrap into the roof for easier entry and exit.

Inside, a simple yet purposeful interior with large, easy-to-read backlit analog gauges and ergonomically designed stalk controls and radios are functional in detail and layout, yet fluid and friendly to drivers and passengers.

A 4-engine family complements the 4-model lineup with the 2.3-liter 115 hp 4-cylinder Quad OHC engine standard on Grand Am SE models and the 2.3 liter 175 hp Quad 4 H.O engine standard on GT models.

A number of detail, content and appearance changes have been made for the 1993 model year as well. These include: power antenna option on all models; the base instrument panel gauges and warning lights have been outlined with an applique that provides more pronounced instrumentation; rally gauges are now available on Grand SE models equipped with the Quad OHC engine and either the five-speed manual or three-speed automatic transmission; revised heating, ventilation and air conditioning (hvac) controls with more rounded and contemporary grips; an AM/FM stereo cassette with graphic equalizer and six-speaker sound system has been added to the audio lineup.

Sporty styling, balanced performance and roadability mark all four Pontiac Grand Am models.

Since being introduced in 1985, Grand Am has firmly become Pontiac's sales volume leader, posting sales over 200,000 units for four consecutive years between 1987 and 1990. The current Grand Am, introduced as an all-new model in 1992, has picked up where its predecessor left off.

Cadillac Eldorado Touring Coupe

Personal luxury meets modern mechanics

If you want a personal luxury coupe with 21st century mechanical systems, take a look at the 1993 Cadillac Eldorado Touring Coupe. This car is the ultimate.

KEANE ON WHEELS
By Tom Keane

The engine and transmission are in a class of their own. In addition, Cadillac has added a sophisticated road sensing suspension, speed sensitive steering, plus an advanced design traction control system. The body style is elegant.

The Northstar powertrain features a 32-valve engine, which is the first time General Motors has produced a multi-valve engine for a luxury sedan. With dual overhead camshaft, the 4.6-liter engine that develops almost 300 horsepower is coupled to a fully electronic automatic transmission. The adage that a transmission's best friend is a powerful engine proves true; it is virtually impossible to detect when it is shifting gears.

The power of this engine is only the tip of the iceberg. The design is so far advanced that a maintenance check isn't required until you log 100,000 miles. Platinum-tipped spark plugs make this possible. But that's not all. If for some reason the coolant should leak out, the Northstar has a "limp-home" mode that allows the car to be driven to a service station.

The exceptional ride is partially due to the Road Sensing Suspension, which Cadillac labels RSS. Unlike speed sensing systems that firm up as the speed is increased, RSS actually scans the road immediately in front of the car and, if necessary, retunes the suspension system every 10 milliseconds. The result is a comfortable ride and very little body roll or front end dive/lift under hard braking or acceleration.

Tied in with the RSS is SSS. That stands for Speed Sensitive Steering, which gave me optimum feel-of-the-wheel

It's hard to talk about resale value when no one's giving them up.

When you build a car right the first time, it's bound to age well. Buy a Saturn today, and four years from now you'll still probably be able to sell it for close to half of what you paid for it. That's more than you'd get for a lot of imports. Chances are good, though, that you may never want to give up your Saturn.

*M.S.R.P. of the 1993 SL2 is $11,795 and the SC2 is $13,095 including retailer preparation and transportation. Tax, license and options additional. Projected resale values based on figures from the Automotive Lease Guide (November-December 1992).

at all times. My only objection to the steering is the necessity for a wide turning radius; 40 feet are needed to make a curb-to-curb turn. That translates into a little more difficulty when negotiating a shopping center parking space.

This car has a traction control system that remains active at all times. It will control wheel spin on rain slick or icy roads by limiting the engine torque and applying the brakes simultaneously. This year, the Touring Coupe features dual air bags, and an improved PASS-Key II anti-theft system.

The interior is richly understated. It has leather seats and thick carpeting but they don't overpower you. The only dramatic feature of the interior is a thin strip of Zebrano wood running clear across the instrument panel from one door to the other. It's an eye-catcher.

The price is a bit of an eye-catcher, too. For some, an eye-opener. The drive-away price is $40,991.

I've always considered Cadillac as a leader in electronic devices and gadgets. This car reinforces my thinking, but the buttons and whistles are subdued. The instrument panel, for example, features information of immediate concern to the driver, making the interior surroundings very relaxing.

When it comes to relaxing, the front seats are ideal especially on a long journey — if you're in either front seat. I attempted to climb into the rear seat, but it was such an effort, I gave up. But I could see that the leg room is limited. Besides, my choice when driving with four or five passengers would be the Cadillac STS — a four-door sedan with the same mechanical features.

Yet many prefer the design of a coupe because the interior is a bit more intimate, especially when the only occupant is the driver. Others are attracted to its overall appearance of the two-door design. Whatever the reason, this Cadillac is a dynamite package and worth serious perusal.

Next week: 1993 Pontiac Bonneville SE Sedan

Car-deer crashes: The more than 300,000 car-deer crashes in the United States each year create a problem for airbag-equipped vehicles. As a result, General Motors Corp. is now studying ways for an automobile to detect in milliseconds if a crash is severe enough to require the protection of the supplemental inflatable restraint. Thus far, the company has used as many as 48 different sets of conditions as the basis for designing its airbag systems.

Exporting "foreign" cars: The American Honda Motor Co. has exported 100,000 U.S.-made automobiles since the export operation began in 1987. The Accord and Civic cars, made in Marysville and East Liberty, Ohio, are shipped from Jacksonville, Fla., to 18 countries in Europe, Asia, South America and Australia.

Oil spoils: One quart of oil can ruin 250,000 gallons of drinking water. Pouring used oil into storm and sanitary sewer systems is tantamount to pumping it directly into the water supply. When poured into soil, the oil will eventually seep into the ground water.

Check the buckles: When buying a car, make sure the safety belts are easy to fasten — as if your life were dependent upon it.

WORDS OF (CAR) WISDOM:

Dieseling: This is also known as "after-run." The engine keeps chugging and sputtering after the ignition is shut off. Causes range from inferior gas to excessive idle speed. Carbon in the combustion chamber also may cause an engine to run rough.

Dear Mr. Roszko,

I would like to express my sincere thanks to everyone at Jim Carney's Automall who helped me purchase my new 1993 Toyota Corolla! The service I received was both professional and pleasant.

I want to extend a special thank you to Andrej Nowakowsky for his exceptional patience concerning my color choice confusion. The thoughtful attention than Andrej gave me during the delivery process made buying my first car a pleasure! It was also a great surprise to drive home an immaculately clean car with a full tank of gas!

Thank you all again for your kindness. See you in 2,000 miles!

Sincerely,

Emissions test helps diagnose poor performance

Auto Weekly features Ask the Auto Doctor, a question and answer column by car specialist Junior Damato. Damato's column will be featured twice a month.

Damato, an ASE Master Automotive Technician with 25 years experience, owns and operates a seven-bay garage in Boston His talents are twofold: repairing cars and verbalizing problems. As a result, Damato has a nationally syndicated "Auto Talk" radio show broadcast six hours every week. Damato can be heard on WHDH in Boston Sundays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Dear Doctor: I won a 1984 Volvo 240 GL sedan with 98,000 miles on it. The car has been great but recently the fuel has dropped from 360 miles between fill ups to about 250 miles. The car runs fine; our driving habits haven't changed; my mechanic is baffled. Can you help?

Thomas G., Boston

Dear Thomas: During the winter months, your fuel average will be less than in spring, summer and fall. The engine works harder in winter because the alternator has to keep the battery charged.

The headlamps are on longer and you are using energy for the heater and defroster. To find out if there is an engine problem, take your car in for an emission test. Have a technician test the tail pipe emissions at idle, just off idle and at cruise speed. If you do some of your own work, pull out a spark plug and see if it is fouled with carbon.

ASK THE AUTO DOCTOR

By Junior Damato

A black, sooty spark plug is a sign of too rich a gasoline mixture. This can be caused from something as minor as a faulty thermostat, fuel injection sensor, sludge buildup in the throttle body, or even the timing belt may have jumped a tooth.

However, a 7 percent mileage decrease in cold weather is normal. One last suggestion: a professional fuel injection cleaning is something that you should have done. It job runs about $60.00

Dear Doctor: I have a 1988 Mercury Sable with a 3-liter V-6 engine that keeps stalling on me. It is most noticeable while waiting at a traffic light; it stalls unless I put it in neutral. My husband tells me that you are a wizard at coming up with solutions.

Kathy K.

Dear Kathy: There are a variety of different components that can cause this problem. The first thing you should do is have a technician perform an EEC-IV test. This will check the operation of the computer components as well as checking the computer trouble codes.

From past experience, I have seen such things as low idle speeds, EGR valves stuck partially open from carbon deposits, faulty throttle position sensor, and even sludge buildup in the throttle body. You may even have a vacuum hose that is leaking. Unfortunately, there is no simple solution in diagnosing engine performance problems. Look for an ASE technician that is certified in engine performance.

Dear Doctor: I am planning to buy a 1993 GMC pickup with a 6.5 diesel engine. I tow a fifth wheel camper with a gross weight of 8,000 pounds. Can you advise me of what automatic transmission and axle ratio would best fit my needs.

I plan on towing a camper cross country. I now tow with a 350 cid Chevrolet pickup. I was told not to use the overdrive when towing. I expect to keep the new truck about 10 years. What is your opinion on extended warranties?

Joe S.

Dear Joe: Good luck on your new purchase and your cross-country trip. Towing across country can be a great experience. The 6.5-liter engine is a turbocharged diesel with 190 horsepower. There are two automatic transmissions available depend;ing on the gross vehicle weight.

The 3.73 axle ration should work fine. There are a few heavy duty tow options that you should look into when ordering your new truck. Remember, it is much cheaper to order the option from the factory than to have it installed after you take delivery.

Don't be penny wise and dollar foolish. The power you get from the 6.5-liter turbo engine is about twice the power you're getting from the 350 cid engine. I am not real fond of extended warranties. If you insists on purchasing one, make sure it is a factory GM warranty. incidentally the price of warranties is usually negotiable.

Dear Doctor: I have the same problem with two GM cars. The problem is that the power steering is very hard to turn in the morning, especially if the temperature is below 45 degrees. The first car is a 1985 Chevrolet Celebrity V/6 wagon with 97,000 miles on it. The 1987 Oldsmobile Delta 88 Royal has 85,000 miles. I take good care of both cars, and have them serviced regularly. The dealer says it would costs about $450 to $500 to fix each car. Is this the correct price to pay? Is there anything I could have done to prevent this from happening?

James A..

Dear James: GM has a horrible record for power steering rach unit failures. Your complaint is typical. GM looks at every complaint on an individual basis and the warranty is 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first.

Don't let that stop you from talking to the dealer and local factory representative for some financial assistance The estimate is correct. A faulty power steering rach is a safety hazard and should be repaired immediately. There is nothing you could have done to prevent this from happening.

Rug dealer joins crime fighters

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Winchester resident Stephen Boodakian has become a part-time rug dealer and a part-time celebrity, as he finds himself in the middle of the media fascination over stolen Oriental rugs.

In the past two months, Boodakian, a rug expert at Koko Boodakian and Sons, has been in the news more than Mayor Flynn. Boodakian was first contacted about his Main Street business' method for coding rugs by Harte-Hanks Community newspapers, which includes the Star. Since then, he has been interviewed by local television channels 4, 5, and 56; the Boston Globe; and USA Today.

The theft of Oriental rugs is a crime that fascinates the public and media — burglars enter homes and bypass computers and televisions to take the rugs. And Boodakian has been the point man for the various media outlets for information on Oriental rugs in general and the system of coding the rugs in particular.

Boodakian seems a bit gun shy about all the media attention, but he says the final result is worth the inconvenience.

"I'm glad it was brought to light as long as the exposure leads to consumers being more aware of how to protect their investments," said Boodakian. "I don't want to see people discouraged from owning nice things."

There have been 1,000 rugs taken over the last three years in suburban Boston area. A police task force was recently formed to deal with the thefts. Boodakian says that the price of Oriental rugs varies greatly, but he estimated that the 1,000 stolen rugs cost more than a million dollars.

Media attention for Koko Boodakian and Sons has concentrated on their invisible coding system that will allow police to match up a recovered stolen rug with its owner.

Boodakian says he provides this marking service for any

Redrawn precincts bring town into line

By Deborah Trask
EDITOR

Town precinct lines will be redrawn using the federal census, following a decision last year by state legislators to redo State House and Senate district boundaries.

Town Clerk Carolyn Ward outlined the precinct changes with a recommendation it be enacted effective Jan. 1, 1994, in time for the March 1994 election. According to Ward, local redistricting must occur before the state can do its district lines.

Chief among the changes will be new boundaries at Harvard Street and the intersection of Lake and Main Streets. Because of those changes Town Meeting members in Precincts 1 and 2 will have to be re-elected in the March 1994 election. No polling places will change.

Ward said all voters in affected precincts will be notified in writing, but that no residents are affected in the Lake Street change.

"I can tell you that voters really dislike redistricting," said Ward in her presentation to the Board of Selectmen on Feb. 22. But, she said, the changes are necessary to meet a statewide standard which says all precinct boundaries must also coincide with federal census block boundaries.

Redrawn will be the line down Harvard Street between Precincts 1 and 2. The line will be moved where it meets the center line of Forest Street, continuing South to Swanton Street, west to the B&M railroad track and north along the track to the point where it meets the existing precinct line.

In addition, Precincts 2, 3 and 8 will be redrawn slightly at the intersection of Lake and Main Street. Both changes bring Winchester into the federal census block boundaries, as shown on official federal census maps.

Prior to voting on the changes, Selectman Stephen Powers sought to reassure residents that there was no other way to satisfy the requirement. "As long as people in Precincts 1 and 2 know we didn't single them out," said Powers in proferring his vote.

Registration deadline nears

Town residents who wish to vote in the March 30 town elections have until March 10 to register.

The town clerk's office will be running selected extended hours to accomodate potential voters. The town clerk's office will be open Monday, March 1 from 7-9 p.m.; Saturday, March 6 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Wednesday, March 10 from 8 a.m.-10 p.m.

Absentee ballots will be available March 12. Voters who will be out of town on March 30 or may not be able to make it to the voting booth because of physical limitations can go to or write to Town Hall for an absentee ballot.

Town Clerk Carolyn Ward said that 90 percent of the town's eligible voters — 14,000 people — are registered.

Lynch playfield faces opposition

Public hearing set

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The Winchester Fields Committee might face some opposition from neighbors of Lynch regarding their plans to renovate the Lynch well field.

One neighbor of the field is circulating a petition and passing out leaflets telling abutters the Field Committee intends to turn the area into "Sullivan Stadium".

Robert Dewald, who lives on Horn Pond Brook Road, says he has gotten over 200 signatures so far on his petition in opposition to the Fields Committee's plans. He says he plans to bring the petition to Town Meeting when funding for the Lynch well field is proposed.

Funding for the renovation of the Lynch field is being reviewed by the Finance Committee. The Field Committee, with approval from the Capital Planning Committee, has requested $26,000 for the project.

Trustees push for overhaul of library

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The library trustees are anything but quiet over their desire to renovate the busiest public building in town.

The trustees are ready to submit a warrant article for Spring Town Meeting that would fund a total renovation of the public library.

The early cost estimates for the renovation are $2 million. An architect is currently devising a plan for a renovation and a price estimate, to be completed on March 19. The cost of the architect is being paid by the Friends of the Public Library.

The library trustees say the renovation is necessary to update the physical plant, rearrange the library to utilize more of its space, and bring the library into compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

"It is an obsolete, outmoded library that is not efficient at all," trustee Lane McGovern told the Board of Selectmen at a recent meeting.

The two boilers that heat the library have been used since the library was built in 1931. Covered with asbestos, they are cumbersome and inefficient, say library trustees. The massive heating system, including ducts hidden in four feet wide walls, take up valuable space.

The heating is only the largest of the many physical problems the building has. Much of the building has no air conditioning, the rubber-insulated wiring is as old as the building, and the lighting on the third floor is to poor to read by.

Also, the passage of the ADA has spurned on the necessity of the renovation, according to the trustees. Some bathrooms are not and cannot be made handicap accessible. The elevator, formerly a book lift, is not handicap accessible. The book

Planning Board submits its warrant articles

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

As the deadline for submitting warrant articles draws near, the Planning Board is hastens to finalize articles on parking regulations and nonconforming structures.

The Planning Board had previously tried to pass similar regulations at 1992 Spring Town Meeting, but met with resistance from Town Meeting members. Members said they would be better prepared to defend their warrant articles at this year's Town Meeting.

The Planning Board members had also submitted regulations for 1992 Fall Town Meeting, but withdrew them before Town Meeting convened, saying they needed more time to study the regulations. The Planning Board did much of that studying by looking at the parking bylaws of neighboring towns.

The deadline for submitting articles for Spring Town Meeting is March 12.

The Planning Board will be sending out copies of the articles to all Winchester residents. There will also be a public hearing on March 22.

The parking regulations will change town bylaws, setting the required number of parking spots needed for various types of building structures henceforth built in the town. The parking regulations would affect numerous types of buildings from funeral homes to laundromats to day care centers.

The Planning Board had also considered new zoning bylaws regarding the height of structures, but decided not to pursue it.

Mitsakos lands job at college

By Stephen Olivieri
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Former Winchester Superintendent Dr. Charles Mitsakos has accepted a position as a department chairman at a New Hampshire College.

Mitsakos will be the chairman of education at Rivier College in Nashua, New Hampshire. The college, which specializes in elementary and special education, has 500 graduate and 300 undergraduate students.

Mitsakos had been offered the superintendency of the Mansfield school system by its School Committee, but declined the offer.

"I felt that I could make the greatest contribution there," said Mitsakos from his home in Chelmsford. "It makes the most sense at this stage in my life."

On Feb. 10 the Mansfield School Committee members voted unanimously to give the superintendency to Mitsakos. A week later, he was offered the position at Rivier and accepted it.

"It was a difficult position to turn down. They have a great deal of support for education in Mansfield," said Mitsakos.

Mitsakos had served as superintendent in Winchester for eight and a half years before resigning in September.

Mitsakos had been part-time faculty member at Rivier College for 16 years. Shortly after leaving Winchester, Mitsakos was a clinical faculty supervisor at Boston College.

Mitsakos will begin his new job in July. He will be paid by the Winchester School Department through the end of June for his tenure as superintendent.

FROM THE
JENKS CENTER

By Mary Kelly
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Beat the winter doldrums at the Jenks Center

Everyone knows that spring is just around the corner, but as February (short month though it is) comes to a close and March approaches, that corner still seems a long way off. The many activities at the Jenks Senior Center will help Winchester seniors get through the cold, snow and slush of the winter days still ahead. Look at our calendar, get involved, participate and enjoy. There is something for every one.

Seniors are reminded of programs that need their assistance: "Grandpals '93," the intergenerational program in which 76 fourth and fifth-graders at the Lynch School are each matched to a senior. Letters are exchanged, introductions made, and new friendships forged. Men and women are invited to sign up now. Call the center at 721-7136.

Another upcoming event that needs your assistance is "The Ageless Follies," to be held at Town Hall on May 1. As previously announced, under the leadership of COA member Margie Kalt, a committee of seniors and young people from the youth center has been working to shape this entertainment with all of Winchester's generations participating. This year's theme is "Romance through the Years," and seniors have been requested to loan their "romantic pictures" to the committee, to be converted to slides as a backdrop to the (un)talented people in the show. The response has been slow, and many pictures are still needed. Put your name and telephone number on the backs of pictures and leave them with administrator Barbara Ciampa at the Jenks Center. Pictures will be returned, and you will enjoy seeing yourself pictured on the large screen at the Follies.

Still offered is the ongoing tax assistance program at the Jenks Center, every Tuesday and Thursday morning, 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., until April 8. Trained senior aides are at the center to render assistance, and there is no charge for this service. Help is available on a walk-in basis, no appointment is necessary. If participating in this service, bring your 1991 reports, all forms needed for completing 1992 returns, and all personal records and receipts required for completing the 1992 turns. Assistance is available for preparing both state and federal tax returns.

Therapist to speak at Parkinson's group meeting

The Parkinson's Support Group will meet Thursday, March 4, at 10 a.m., at the Jenks Senior Center. The speaker for this meeting will be Marge Wilhelm, a physical therapist. Wilhelm will discuss the psychological and physiological importance of using humor to reduce stress.

For more than two years, ceramics classes have been offered to Winchester seniors on Mondays, from 10 a.m. to noon. Under the direction of Corinne Modugna, many seniors have cultivated skills in staining, glazing and painting figures, vases, picture frames and other objects of bisque. New participants are invited. Come, learn a new skill, or brush up on an old one. Sign up at the registration desk.

Plan ahead: Niagara Falls, Toronto, Lake George

Plan now to participate in this great trip to Niagara Falls, Toronto and Lake George, in June. This trip, involving five days and four nights, from June 14 to 18, is $469 per person, double occupancy.

The first night will be spent in Niagara Falls, and the next two nights in Toronto. There will be sightseeing and a cruise on Lake George. Nine meals are included. A full, detailed description of the trip is available in flyers at the Jenks Center lobby, or call Frances Sellitto, 729-2079.

Alzheimer's Caregivers Support Fund

Families and other caregivers living in Minuteman Home Care's 16-town region including Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Lincoln, Littleton, Maynard, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn, who are caring for those with Alzheimer's disease or a related disorder may apply to the Alzheimer's Caregivers Support Fund for financial assistance in obtaining respite services or adaptive devices which would ease their caregiving tasks. The aim of this fund is to help families meet respite needs that they could not otherwise meet.

A family may apply for a one-time need or an ongoing need such as: weekend institutional respite; weekend or overnight in-home respite; companionship services; an additional day of day care; home adaptation; or purchase of an adaptive device which would facilitate caregiving.

Referrals may be made by family members or professionals. Caregivers will be asked to fill out a simple application form stating their request and describing the family situation. A task force will screen requests and determine allocation. Families may receive up to $500 worth of respite services depending upon family income. Alzheimer's patients without an identified caretaker may also be referred for consideration. Families will secure their own services and bill Minuteman up to their pre-approved allocation. Funding is made possible through the generosity of the John Henry Carr Alzheimer's and Aging Foundation.

Contact Cynthia Sawyer at 272-7177 or (508) 263-8720 for more information or an application form.

Storm cancellation

Programs at the Jenks Senior Center are cancelled and the building is closed during stormy weather. Listen for the school closing announcement by radio or television — when Winchester Schools are closed, senior programs and activities are cancelled. COA staff will be on duty, as the severity of storms permits.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

IMPORTANCE OF COMPATIBLES

QUESTION: I understand the most important task in selling a home is deciding on the right sales price. How do you come up with best price?

Answer: This is not done by looking into a crystal ball or consulting with a guru. The most important factor is the price of comparable sales in your immediate area. These are sales which have already been completed of homes as nearly like yours as possible.
The sales should also be near in time, for five-year-old sales have almost no meaning in today's volatile financial market. Also, the homes should be similar in style, size, and condition as your property-- the closer the better.

THE SALES price of your home must be based on comparable sales in your immediate area.

Storeygard wins McCall Geography Bee

Twenty-two McCall students fielded 198 geography questions in a heated 1 1/2 hour oral and written competition and two finalists emerged — Nick Stephanopolus (left) and Adam Storeygard (right). Adam Storeygard became the new school champion on the question, "The Chaco, a semi-arid plain that is home mostly to cattle ranchers, makes up most of the western half of which landlocked country in South America?" Paraquay, of course!

Adam now awaits the results of a written test that will qualify him for the Massachusetts State Bee which will take place at Winchester High School April 2.

Minuteman Tech offers study skills course

Registration is now being accepted for "Students: Making the Grade with Study Skills," offered at Minuteman Tech Evening School beginning Feb. 10. The class meets on Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. for five weeks. The course is for students in grades eight through 12 who need to develop efficient, timesaving, study techniques for mastering school subjects. Students learn strategies that improve listening, note taking, reading comprehension, memorizing and test-taking.

Students learn how to make better use of time they spend studying, and gain maximum understanding in and out of class. Efficient techniques lead to improved grades and enjoyment in academics.

The instructor, Roberta Wolman, is a full-time reading and learning disabilities specialist at Minuteman and a registered educational tutor with the Learning Disabilities Network in Rockland. She has been a instructor of study skills for the past 17 years. In addition, Wolman teaches SAT preparation. She has served as a consultant and author in the field of education.

Minuteman Tech Evening School offers more than 50 courses in academics, arts & crafts, athletics, music, vocational skills and computer education. For a program brochure, further information and registration, call Minuteman Tech Community Education at 861-7150, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday. Telephone registration is accepted with credit card payment. To obtain specific information on the study skills course contact the instructor at 861-7150 during the day or 395-8045 in the evening and weekends. The course fee is $84 and materials $6.

Names Can Really Hurt Us: a workshop for parents

Many parents in Winchester have expressed an interest in discussing how their children can deal with teasing and intolerance. Many have expressed a commitment to working within their families to help their children recognize, understand and appreciate diversity. Parent to Parent is offering a three-session workshop so that these issues can be discussed in depth. The focus will be on parenting strategies.

Dr. Hillary Turkewitz, a clinical psychologist who conducts parenting groups, will lead the workshop, which is scheduled for Tuesdays, March 16, 23 and 30, from 8 to 9:30 p.m. Interested parents should call her at 729-7945 to preregister. This workshop is offered free of charge; funding has been provided by the En Ka Society.

SAT/PSAT verbal preparation at Minuteman Tech

Registration is now being accepted for Minuteman Tech's highly successful SAT & PSAT Verbal Preparation course scheduled to begin Thursday, March 11. The course meets in Lexington, for seven weeks and concludes just prior to the May 1 exam. This outstanding two-week course prepares college bound seniors, juniors and sophomores for the verbal sections of the exam. Students learn proven strategies that may lead to score gains of between 60 and 200 points and gain the confidence needed to perform at the highest level possible on the College Board Exams. The course instructor is a 16-year veteran of SAT preparation.

Participants gain proficiency in a variety of techniques designed for solving the analogy and sentence completion test items. An in-depth approach to the reading comprehension question, a most troublesome sub test, will be presented. Intensive vocabulary development will also be featured. The course provides the missing link for bright high school students whose potential sometimes may not be reflected in standardized test scores.

When to guess, how to score and interpret test results are a few of the many questions this course answers. Students practice and apply skills by taking SAT's given in previous years. Some students also improve math scores as a result of developing test taking strategies.

For course details and references contact the instructor, Roberta Wolman, at 721-1065 (evenings). Minuteman Tech Evening School offers more than 100 courses in academics, arts, crafts, athletics, vocational and computer skills. Course catalogs are available upon request.

Girl Scout Tea

The Winchester Girl Scouts will kick off National Girl Scout Week by holding a mother/daughter tea. The event takes place Sunday, March 7, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Town Hall auditorium. Registered Girl Scouts of all ages and their moms or other adults are invited to attend. Moms and daughters are encouraged to wear their Sunday best or party dresses to this lovely event. The cost is $5 per person with a $15 family maximum. Tickets can be purchased through troop leaders or by contacting Gwen Healey at 729-2521.

On the menu is tea, coffee, and punch to be served with finger sandwiches, cookies, and cake. A string ensemble will be musical accompaniment for the tea service. Entertainment will include a visit from a Juliette Low impersonator, and a traditional sing-along conducted by the Cadette Girl Scouts. Girls are encouraged to bring a sit-upon for the sing-along. Fun and surprises are also on the agenda.

Precious Moments Photography will be on hand at the beginning of the event for moms and daughters who wish to be photographed. They are offering a photo package for $10, payable at the time of the sitting.

Troops are invited to bring a troop donation for the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. The World Friendship Fund was designed to honor Juliette Low and her vision of worldwide friendship. Girl Scouts all over the country give money to this fund which is used to send Girl Scouts to other countries and to bring girls from other countries to the USA.

Service projects are a part of Girl Scout troops of all age levels. Through serving the community girls learn about their civic responsibility and become better citizens. Public support of Girl Scouting makes all these things possible.

Friends' March lecture

The next March lecture of the Friends of the Winchester Public Library will be a no-calorie treat. All anyone has to do is listen and imagine.

Sheryl Julian, food columnist for the Boston Globe and a food feature writer gives us the how, what and why of eating, spiced with historical and futuristic commentary. Entitled "American Culinary Art: Past, Present, Future," her lecture will provide much food for thought. Formerly food article writer for the "Washington Post," Julian, who trained at Cordon Bleu, was deputy director of La Varenne, the bilingual cooking school in Paris founded by Anne Willan. After starting the Women's Culinary Guild of New England she became a founding member of the Culinary Historians of Boston. With kudos as the winner of the 1989 J.C. Penney – University of Missouri journalism award, she went on to host a public television show, winning the coveted New England Emmy.

The treat will take place at the Winchester High School Auditorium on Sunday, March 7, at 2 p.m. Advanced sale tickets, $5 each, are available at Bookends, Henderson's, and the library. For further information, call 729-1346.

Unicef Chair thanks supporters

Unicef Chairperson Ann Russell thanks buyers and sellers who took part in the Unicef Sale before Christmas. The selling tables were tended by more than 80 Winchester church women during the course of three weeks, and a little more than $5,000 was raised. This display of cooperative effort made it possible to support, in a very substantial way, the tremendous work being done by the United Nations Children's Fund. The Unicef Committee is grateful for the generosity of so many people, and for the kindness and graciousness of the staffs at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge and at the Jenks Senior Center where the sales took place.

Por Cristo's fifth anniversary appreciation luncheon

Richard Lee and Mary Joyce-Morris, both of Winchester, were honored for their volunteer spirit recently.

Por Cristo, a nonprofit volunteer medical service organization based in Quincy, celebrated its fifth anniversary appreciation luncheon at the Ritz Carlton, Boston. His Eminence, Bernard Cardinal Law, Chairman of Por Cristo, recognized numerous talented business, medical and lay people help Por Cristo each year. Without this group, the success stories from Ecuador would not have become reality.

WINCHESTER KERNELS

Colonel William P. Winchester

Joint effort

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

The sluggish economy has been reflected of late by the closing of a number of businesses in the Square.

Everything is upbeat, however, with Andy and Marlene Lepore at Bargain TV and Music over in the Cullen Block on Main Street.

For years — ever since Gene Farrow sold Columbia cylinder and disc Graphophones out of his house on Thompson Street — there was always a business catering to home entertainment in Winchester until Hugo LaFauci closed his Winchester Appliance shop some years ago.

Andy, who is a full-time mechanical engineer at Horizons Technology, and Marlene, who grew up in town — and who coincindentally is the daughter of Hugo LaFauci — are determined to revive the tradition.

Home entertainment has been revolutionized since Columbia Graphophone days and though the latest new and used compact discs, vcr's, video games and appropriate machines are bought, sold or repaired at the new shop, tradition reigns supreme.

As Andy said recently, "We are trying to bring back prompt old-fashioned service at reasonable prices, and we try to cater to the needs of each customer".

Andy does much of the repair work himself but also has an assistant technician who helps with vcr and computer repairs.

The Observer — who has barely left the player piano/Victrola era — was pleased to find that Andy makes house calls as well.

Although as we talked, Marlene was home with daughters Katrina, 4, and Taormina, 8, Andy is quick to praise her excellent business sense and the effort she puts in when the kids are in school.

"She is a great mother and provider and at the same time insures that the business is a joint effort," he said.

In a happy twist of fate, Marlene sees many of her father's former customers and the experience gained years ago at Winchester Appliance is invaluable in this new venture.

Though the Observer has been bypassed in the Nintendo or video game enthusiasm, the variety of used games was incredible and the prices seemed very reasonable.

Behind the counter, they also keep a hefty list of customer needs which they try to fill when time allows.

Next time talk turns to the businesses which have closed in The Square, why not pay a visit to Andy and Marlene Lepore and get caught up in their genuine enthusiasm for their future in the Winchester business community.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 20 — Report No. 4
Massachusetts House
Feb. 19, 1993

THE HOUSE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on five roll calls from recent House sessions dealing with the new Boston Garden bill, economic development package and education reform measure. The House and Senate have passed different versions of the Garden and economic development bill, and conference committees are likely to be appointed to hammer out compromise versions. The Senate has yet to act on the education bill. There were no roll calls in the House last week.

BOSTON GARDEN (H 2151) — House 134-18, rejected an amendment to the bill allowing construction of a new $160 million Boston Garden. The amendment would strike a section requiring the developers to use the net proceeds from any refinancing or transfer of development rights to prepay its bank loans and MBTA loans in equal shares. Amendment supporters said this is another small concession necessary to insure that the deal goes ahead as scheduled. Opponents said the requirement protects the state by insuring prompt payment of the MBTA loan. A Yes vote is against requiring prepayment. A No vote is for requiring prepayment.

Rep. Paul Casey voted no.

CLEANUP (H 2152) — House 124-25, rejected an amendment to the House version of Gov. Weld's economic development bill. The amendment would provide for a 20 percent tax credit for cleaning up a contaminated site in an economically distressed area. Amendment supporters said this incentive would improve the environment and offer economic benefits to developers of blighted areas. Opponents said the credit is excessive and noted its sponsors have no estimate of resulting revenue loss to the state. A Yes vote is for the 20 percent credit. A No vote is against it.

Casey voted no.

The next three roll calls are on amendments to the House-passed version of the bill overhauling the state's public education system.

SCHOOL READINESS (H 801) — House 134-22, rejected an amendment requiring local school committees to provide an evaluation, if requested and paid for by a parent, to determine if a child who does not meet the minimum age for school entrance in that town is ready and should be admitted. Amendment supporters said the lack of statewide uniformity of cutoff dates is unfair and noted children who are ready but miss a cutoff date by even one day currently have no option but to wait. Opponents said the amendment begins to complicate a bill which is supposed to make things simpler for local schools. A Yes vote is for requiring an evaluation. A No vote is against requiring an evaluation.

Casey voted no.

FUNDING OPTION (H 801) — House 117-32, rejected an amendment allowing communities to decline additional state education assistance and be exempt from meeting the increased local funding mandate. The amendment also provides that communities which already exceed the required spending in a given year not be required to increase local funding. Amendment supporters said this restores some

How silly can these shows get?

COLUMNIST

We've been tracking certain trends in television lately — the one exemplified by the Home-Movie shows, for instance — and all we can say is, we certainly have cultivated an appetite for the bizarre in this country lately.

Not that some of the shows aren't good. Our favorite so far is the animal training film somebody was trying to make, in which an off-camera woman did a soothing well-modulated voice-over while an unseen cameraman taped the presumed Expert in Animal Training as he tried to get some cooperation from a cat on a leash. The woman provided a murmuring play-by-play about how masterfully the man was handling this cat, which was agitated, to say the least. It snarled and shook its little head so fast all you saw was a furry blur. "Get the box, " someone said, at about the time they decided this might NOT turn out to be one of your Oscar-winning Animal Training Films. The man bent down to corral the cat — now directly between his legs — who then went from a blur to a veritable STREAK of unholy energy, springing straight up in the air to sink 30 teeth and all 40 claws into the man's fleshy parts . "AYYYYYYYYYEEEEEEE! ! !" he went, still clutching the leash, before the camera faded to black. Now THAT was good television.

But a lot of this other stuff; well, it's kind of silly. These talk shows devoted to unusual pairings. You know the kind: "Tales From The Zipper Code: Women Who Sleep With Their Mailmen"; and "The Safest Sex of All: Dating at the Sperm Bank." What's next? A show about religious visionaries — "I Saw Jesus in the Cookie Aisle"?

The whole subject presented itself to us a couple of weeks ago when we saw two — nay three — big stars in this World o' Glamour together on one set. I speak, of course, of the Michael Jackson interview, in which he presented his elfin self to Oprah and 91 million of the rest of us for the first time in 14 years. AND, of the special cameo by Liz-I-have-many-chins-but-at-least-one-of-them-is-still-pointy-Taylor.

The show began with old films of the child Michael with his energy and joy, and that sweet rounded little-boy face. Thirty-four-year-old Michael says he used to look in the mirror back then and cry, he hated his looks so; and even his father used to tell him he was ugly. Well, where's his father now, we'd like to know? Because Michael looks awful: he has scary thin lips and a nose so turned up you'd have trouble believing it on Betty and Veronica. His skin is a shiny scar-tissue white and he's so thin he looks like one of the survivors From "Alive!" — or maybe one of the non-survivors of that plane crash, who has already had most of his steaks and briskets carved off for dinner.

Basically, Michael's agenda was to refute rumors: hey, just two bouts of plastic surgery he said about his face. Hey, he has a disorder OK?, he said about his skin color, letting tears well up prettily in his eyes. And then Liz came in on little cat feet to lend moral support.

Now Liz is no stranger to the gossip mills herself. She's like Michael in that she doesn't resemble a regular person either. Like him, she has hair like God never intended. Plus, she's really short. She reminds you of those unlucky girls that enter puberty in third grade, develop bodies like fertility goddesses and still need a booster seat when they go out to eat. "He's the least weird man I know," she said in the Elf Man's defense. Which, considering HER resume, may or may not be saying much.

Because frankly, we find them all weird, even Oprah who that night made Obsequio Hall look like a Nazi interrogator. Last week Oprah did another program about Dating Much Older Men and got Cher on the phone to ask if SHE would go out with one. "If I liked him, of course," Cher basically answered; then went on to say she knew Oprah had to do a show and all, but with all the problems in this country — children living in poverty, the health care crisis wasn't this all kind of silly?

I wanted to cheer. It seemed like a breakthrough, however small, to hear somebody say that. These shows are ridiculous. We get as mad as that cat when we consider the contempt with which the makers of them must view the American people. And what we say is, wait 'til we organize enough to vote THESE bums out of our living rooms. Stay tuned!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resident questions committee behavior toward public

To the editor:

I wish to express my concern about some recent developments at the Winchester School Committee. I feel that events there have recently taken a turn which I cannot call sinister — a word much too melodramatic — but which are disturbing all the same.

Indeed, I am rather at a loss how to exactly describe the events of recent weeks. I experiment with certain terms — "lack of leadership," "disregard for process," and so on. But these expressions, while possessing much force, lack the precise shade of meaning I wish to express.

By default, then, and for lack of a better set of words, I find myself falling on an antique term — "discourtesy."

I refer to the events of Tuesday, Feb. 9. At that time, the School Committee set out to deal with the need for a new superintendent of schools. The committee had before hand set up a Search Committee (composed of volunteers representing many different political and personal viewpoints) to seek out qualified candidates for the position. The Search Committee had, in fact, found two that it considered outstanding, and it forwarded these individuals' names and resumes to the School Committee. Unfortunately, both these individuals took other positions.

Then, under the direction of its chair, Mark Lombardi, the School Committee announced its intention to interview Robert Fitzgerald for the position of superintendent of schools, despite the fact that the Search Committee had not forwarded his name for consideration. However, Fitzgerald choose not to seek the position. And, as an aside, I might mention that this choice was doubtlessly hard, and I would like to compliment Fitzgerald (Sir, you acted with grace and dignity in a situation where both qualities were sadly absent).

Now, it is not my intent to quibble with Lombardi or the committee (or, rather, with the two votes on the committee that supported him in the action) over the decision to interview Fitzgerald. As the law has been explained to me, it was unnecessary for the committee to use any of the resumes forwarded to it by the Search Committee, or to take into consideration its recommendations, or — indeed — to pay any attention to the Winchester public as a whole. I gather, in fact, that the School Committee had every right to act in any manner which it chose, no matter how undemocratic it might seem to the outside observer.

But it is not my intention to debate that. I might mention that I am confused by it. I fail to understand why the screening committee was set up in the first place, if they were going to pay no attention to it. It also seems to be a bit odd that the School Committee would ignore the input of the citizens of Winchester, which had (rather firmly) made their wants and concerns known to the Search Committee. However, I say all this only in passing, almost as the stuff of light conversation, rather than as the core of any of my concerns.

What does trouble me is more subtle. What I wish to write about is how it behaved under the direction of its chair when it was questioned about those actions.

As everyone who watched the affair on public access TV already knows, there was an audience at that School Committee meeting. That audience spoke up. It expressed concern. It asked questions. It acted,

ON THE RECORD

Members of the Finance Committee will be out looking for a new member. Member James G. Nagle resigned effective immediately due to the constraints of his job. Nagle had been appointed last July, and his term on the Finance Committee doesn't expire until 1995. He had previously served a three-year term. Any residents interested in joining the 15-member committee must apply by March 5. Members of the Finance Committee are appointed by a committee consisting of the town moderator, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and chairman of the Finance Committee. This is the first time those three will choose a mid-term replacement. Before 1992 Spring Town Meeting, the Finance Committee had filled mid-term openings.

Selectmen approved by a 5-0 vote the transfer of funds from the Housing Trust Fund to fund the hiring of a housing counselor. According to Selectman Peter VanAken, when the Board approved the CHAS last fall, there was a provision for matching funds from the fund to be paid to the Council on Aging for the hiring of a housing counselor. The Council has since applied for the grant, and received approval. "One of the recommendations was to fund a person who would provide assistance in the form of service assistance to folks who were looking for help in aging-in-place. VanAken said the intent at that time was to provide affordable housing in a different way. The position is a part-time contracted one, and the counselor will be supervised by Council On Aging administrator Barbara Ciampa.

The D.A.R.E. program received a shot in the arm when the Board of Selectmen voted to accept $1,289 in contributions at a recent meeting. According to the town manager, contributions to the drug resistance program to date total more than $12,000.

Selectmen may still have one or two things to argue over the budget, but they all agreed that a purple or teal awning proposed for a Cross Street business should be referred to the Design Review Committee. Cross Street Cafe, a new business in town, brought their design plans for the awning to the attention of the board recently. "Are those our only two choices turquoise or teal?" queried Selectmen William O'Leary.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

in short, the way the public is supposed to act in a democracy, voicing its thoughts but doing so in a civil manner.

The committee did not respond in like fashion. I will not say that Lombardi shut up his critics, but I will mention that I watched in some disbelief while he interrupted their comments, characterized their positions as irrational, and dismissed their viewpoints as unworthy of consideration.

His tone was interesting too. I believe I remember hearing it last when, at the age of 5, I spoke out of turn and was rebuked by my kindergarten teacher. I have not, however, heard it much employed with grown adults who have the full rights and privileges of being active members of a republic.

Thus, I find myself falling back on that ancient word, discourtesy, to describe that evening of Feb. 9 — discourtesy, and a fundamental disrespect for voices other than those officially sanctioned. And this, I think, is more serious than you might at first suspect.

But, even so, I am disturbed. Courtesy may seem a thing both small and archaic, yet I am surprised at how often it is the core of political behavior in a civilized society. What is courtesy, after all, but a willingness to behave as though your community as well as your self must be considered in your actions? What is leadership but the same thing, applied to elective office?

Lombardi's behavior on that evening of Feb. 9 was not the behavior that should be expected of a chairman of the School Committee. It was not civil, it was not courteous, it was not, for lack of a better word, an act of leadership.

And that frightens me. This town, with its schools that contain nothing short of our own children — children who we must somehow guide and protect in this age of recession, decay, and sometimes real physical danger — desperately needs all the best qualities of leadership it can get.

Bill is called into question

Dear Mr. Calli:

Attached you will find a copy of my most recent water bill. I spoke with you in a recent phone conversation regarding the inequities of setting a usage limit, over which a resident pays a 20 percent premium, and then varying the term to which the rates apply from one household to another. Your office told me that some residents received bills for three-, four- and even five-month periods. My bill covered a period of four months.

I agree that we should pay for what we use and, in an effort to conserve the resource, pay a premium for excess usage. That is a great goal.

The manner in which you have implemented such a program, however, eclipses reason in the inequities it creates. Let me describe.

You think you are going to be able to read meters and bill on a quarterly basis.

You set the regular rate usage at 75 units for the quarter.

It turns out that you can't read meters each quarter, so you read them as often as possible, given the resources you have available.

You continue, however, to treat each meter reading and resident billing period as if it were a quarter, keeping the excess usage premium at 75 units.

Why don't you look at a daily usage figure (75 units/92 days in a quarter is .82 units per day) and multiply this by the number of days since the last meter reading? That would be the unit number over which the excess usage premium should be applied.

This approach sounds much more reasonable: the goal is met in an equitable way.

Your explanation of not having enough resources to read the meters once a quarter does not answer my question or provide a solution to a simple problem. The convoluted method which, for some strange reason, you have decided to use cost me an additional $30 which I should not have had to pay.

It has now been almost 5 months since my last water bill. I am sure that I am being assessed the 20 percent premium for excess usage for what might otherwise be standard usage under a logical approach to the situation.

Thank you for your time. Please send any correspondence to the address below.

Reader comments on new history columns

To the editor:

I find the articles on "Winchester, Yesterday and Today" quite interesting and look forward to each installment. The accompanying photographs reveal the vast changes that have occurred in the town over the years and reflects both the positive and negative impact that technology has on a rural community. The articles are reminiscent of the "Winchester Then and Now" column created by Henry Simonds 13 years ago, which are still enjoyable today. Kudos to Susan Keats for continuing this tradition and for nurturing the interest of all local history buffs!

Time to open Wedge Pond Beach

To the editor:

There is still a lot of snow on the ground but day by day the weather is getting warmer and the days are getting longer (about three minutes a day) — Before we know it the snow will be gone from the parks and fields and the ice long gone from the lakes and ponds. Time to put the ice boats and the hockey sticks away and get out the paddles and the bathing suits.

Oh yes! That reminds me! The Wedge Pond Reopening Committee held its first meeting last week and they were all raring to go! This year the water has been tested as usual by the Winchester Health Department, but as an added precaution by one of the most prestigious water testing companies in the New England area. I am happy to say that in both cases it passed with flying colors!

From what I read in the local press and hear down at the C & G and in the streets, the venerable Town Fathers are favorably disposed toward our project, and from the large stack of letters in my possession, so are the mothers and fathers of the many little kids, who will learn to swim there. Lee Evans, the town recreation director, figures that there may be four or five hundred kids who will enjoy the use of the premises during the hot summer days (I would like to get them all together in the balcony of Town Meeting on the night the article comes up, so that they could all give a resounding cheer of thanks to the meeting for its concern in their behalf. I am sure the volume would raise the rafters!)

We were all set to go last year. Paul Albianis' work group cleaned up the beach area, grubbed up the plants and bushes by the roots, raked and sifted the sand, etc. Dave Pywell, singlehandedly painted the whole building — swish, swish — (nothing to it!) Paul Casey took a day off from his strenuous labors on our behalf, and did a little pick and shovel work for a change (my aching back!) Maybe we should get all our politicians, Whip Saltmarsh, John Sullivan, Charlie Shannon et al., down there this year so that they too can see what we poor suckers have to go through just to pay their salaries!

OK, that will never happen! so let's all get with it and make it happen anyway each in his own way for the sake of the little kids.

Carol Mullin

Mullin announces candidacy for Board of Selectmen

It is with pleasure that I announce my candidacy for the Board of Selectmen. I am running for the board because I want to serve Winchester. I have lived in Winchester for 25 years and have raised my daughters, Caitlin, 23, and Megan, 20, here. My background, education and experience have prepared me for this service.

In 1978, I was elected to Town Meeting from Precinct 5, and I served as a Town Meeting member from that precinct through 1992. My Town Meeting experience has kept me involved in municipal and education concerns for over 14 years. I have the long view of where Winchester has been and welcome the opportunity to join the Board of Selectmen in setting policy for the future of the town.

In 1978, I joined the real estate firm of Bixby and Porter. Real estate provided me with a new perspective and understanding of the town. I know what makes Winchester a fine place to live.

In 1982 I enrolled in Boston College Law School, seeking a career that would allow me to return some of the many benefits I enjoyed. Working as an assistant district attorney for Suffolk County and subsequently in my own practice, has enabled me to advocate for those who need assistance and has given me the experience to realize that there is never only one point of view that is correct.

In my practice, I have learned to listen and to learn, not only from what my client is telling me, but also from what the opposing side has to say. I have learned to be a consensus builder. Advocacy requires skills in mediation and in negotiation, and I will bring these skills to the Board of Selectmen.

In addition to my experience as a Town Meeting member, Realtor and attorney, I have a master's degree in education from Boston University and taught high school history and economics for a number of years. When my children were in school, I was involved in the Parents Association at Parkhurst School and served on the Parkhurst Parent's Association Board in a number of positions, including president of the Board and chairman of the Enrichment Committee. I served on the Community Schools Association Board and through this opportunity, I became familiar with the needs and interests of other parents throughout town. I know Winchester well.

I want to serve on the Board of Selectmen for several reasons. I believe there is a need for the different boards in town to work together more productively. I look forward to bringing my negotiating and mediation skills, my understanding of the community, and my 14 years experience in town government to support the Board of Selectmen in their efforts to work with other committees to find the common ground in this time of tight fiscal constraints.

Winchester must remain committed to sound fiscal management. This includes tough decisions as to how we can successfully maintain our capital plant during tight financial times. We must make a commitment to long-term planning in a time when crisis management may seem the norm. I support the selectman in their strong leadership in supporting the funding and building of the water filtration plant that has been mandated. This would include educating both Town Meeting and the town itself on the necessity for the plant and also the benefits that the town will ultimately receive by being able to continue to provide some of the town's water supply through its own reservoirs. Because of the ever increasing Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA) costs, water is one of our most pressing long-term concerns. I want to help define the long-term solutions.

Affordable housing in Winchester must also remain a high priority of the Board of Selectmen. I applaud and support the work that the Board of Selectmen, the Affordable Housing Committee, and others have done to date. Some of my legal practice includes working with the elderly. I am sensitive to their concerns, and their desire to be able to remain in Winchester as their needs change. I support the studies being made and look forward to hearing proposals as they are developed.

The disposal of solid waste is another long-term issue for Winchester. We need to pay attention to creative proposals to dispose of our solid waste at a lower cost while at the same time providing for the ecologically sound recycling. As a selectman, I would be receptive to weighing the advantages and costs of programs that would allow us to be ecologically responsible while at the same time being fiscally responsible. My experience and education will enable me to assist the town to find solutions between the competing interests of ecological responsibility and fiscal responsibility.

I am excited at the prospect of serving our town in the way that my background, education and experience has best prepared me. I ask that you give me the chance to serve by giving me your vote on March 30. Thank you.

Winchester Rotary donates to 'Big Steps for Little People' walk-a-thon

At a recent meeting, Winchester Rotary Club President Richard Salter presented a check for $10,000 to Sumner Andrews, chairman of the board of directors of Winchester Hospital. The donation is for the "Big Steps for Little People" walk-a-thon to benefit Winchester Hospital's Childbirth Center and Level II Special Care Nursery. Walk-a-thon committee members hope to reach $100,000 in pledges and gifts.

Salter explained the reasons why the Rotary Club contributed to the walk-a-thon. He said, "The board felt unanimously that the hospital is clearly a significant part of our community, and the walk-a-thon is something we all felt proud to step up to the plate for. Listening to the personal stories about how Winchester Hospital's Childbirth Center and Special Care Nursery have helped community members in so many ways, we knew that this is a cause with real merit."

The 10K walk-a-thon will be held on May 23. To become a sponsor or participant, or find out how you can get involved in walk-a-thon events, call Winchester Hospital, 756-2156.

measure of local autonomy into the system and lets local communities make their own decisions. Opponents said the amendment kills what the bill is trying to accomplish and will result in unequal education opportunities throughout the state. A Yes vote is for the amendment allowing communities to decline the new aid. A No vote is against allowing communities to decline the aid.

Casey voted yes.

LOCAL AID RESOLUTIONS (H 801) — On a 75-75 tie vote, the House rejected an amendment stating the intention of the Legislature to provide certain amounts of local aid to cities and towns. Amendment supporters said this will put the House on record as promising communities the same amount of local aid as last year in addition to the new $175 million promised in the education bill and some $46 million in increased lottery revenue. They argued it is important to let communities know aid figures immediately so that local budget deliberations can begin. Opponents said local aid resolutions do not belong in the education bill and will tie the hands of the Legislature before it even considers the state budget. A Yes vote is for the local aid resolutions. A No vote is against them.

Casey voted yes.

THE SENATE — Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on two recent roll calls from debate on the Senate Ways and Means version of Gov. Weld's economic development bill. The bill itself was passed on a voice vote and sent to the House which passed its own version. A conference committee is likely to be appointed to hammer out a compromise version. There were no roll calls in the Senate last week.

NEW ECONOMIC BILL (S 1498) — Senate 27-8, rejected a motion substituting a different version of the economic development bill. Supporters said this different version includes a tripling, rather than doubling, of the investment tax credit. They argued this will encourage investment, stimulate the economy and create more jobs. Opponents said the hike to 3 percent is excessive and argued the state cannot afford the revenue loss. They argued the original version doubling the credit to 2 percent and creating a new 3 percent credit targeted for any new or increased capital investment is better. A Yes vote is for the new version including the tripling of the credit to three percent. A No vote is against the new version.

Sen. Charles Shannon voted yes.

SUNSET (S 1497) — Senate 25-10, rejected an amendment eliminating the "sunset" provision which provides that the increased dual investment tax credits expire after two years. Amendment supporters said the credits should be permanent and argued the expiration erodes the incentive for businesses to take advantage of them. Opponents said the expiration will encourage businesses to act quickly to take advantage of the credits while allowing the Legislature to study the impact and reinstate the credit if the results are good. A Yes vote is against two year expiration of the credits. A No vote is for two year expiration.

Shannon voted yes.

NEWS NOTES

Conservation district offers trees and shrubs to encourage education

The Middlesex Conservation District is now conducting its annual tree and shrub sales program. Massachusetts' 16 conservation districts work with farmers, land-users and municipalities to protect water and aquifer quality, prevent soil erosion and flooding, protect wetlands, provide soil survey information, encourage conservation education in schools, and foster forest stewardship programs.

To fund these programs, Middlesex Conservation District is offering a large variety of plants this year including evergreen and deciduous trees, ground covers, ornamentals, flowering, shrubs, and small fruit plants. Orders are placed by mail and can be picked up in April. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Middlesex Conservation District at 319 Littleton Road, Suite 205, Westford, MA 01886. Orders must be received by March 12.

The purchase and planting of these trees will not only benefit your back yard environment but will also provide environmental, ecological, aesthetic, medical, real estate, economic and societal values to your neighborhood.

•Energy and carbon dioxide conservation — Trees can contribute to energy conservation because they help reduce the cost of heating and cooling buildings. Recent studies by scientists show that even when tree maintenance costs are considered, tree planting is a more cost-effective energy and carbon dioxide conservation strategy that many other fuel-saving measures.

•Air quality — Trees capture harmful atmospheric particulates and gases like ozone, carbon monoxide and sulphur dioxide. A mature tree can intercept up to 50 pounds of particulates per year. Results from computer studies indicate that trees can reduce appreciably the amount of ozone in polluted air.

•Urban hydrology — Community forests can reduce the rate and volume of stormwater runoff, directly reducing flood damage, stormwater treatment cost and water quality problems.

•Noise reduction — Properly designed plantings of tree and shrubs significantly reduce noise. Wide belts of tall dense trees combined with soft ground surfaces can reduce loudness by 50 percent or more.

•Ecological benefits — Community forests provide habitat for wildlife, conserve soil and enhance biodiversity. Surveys have found that most city-dwellers enjoy and appreciate wildlife and their surrounding.

•Medical — Reduced stress and improved physical health for urban residents have been associated with the presence of urban trees and forests. Studies have shown that landscapes with trees produce more relaxed physiological states in humans than landscapes that lack these natural features.

•Real estate value — Real estate values can increase 10 to 15 percent due to trees and forests on residential properties. These increased values also produce direct economic gains for local communities through property taxes.

•Local economic development — Community forests also make a broad contribution to the economic vitality of a city neighborhood or subdivision. Often trees and forests on public lands are significant "common property" resources that contribute to the economic vitality of an entire area.

•Societal — Stronger sense of community, empowerment of inner city residents to improve neighborhood conditions and promotion of environmental responsibility and ethics can be attributed to involvement in urban forestry effort.

Although not as overt, racism still exists

GUEST COLUMNIST

By Peter Haley

Being 16 is to the passage of life, what hitting a baseball is to other athletic endeavors; it is the hardest thing to do. It is not made any easier when at the same time you are 16, you are being assaulted because of the color of your skin. There is never anything acceptable about racism at 16 or at 60, but somehow racism is particularly horrid when it occurs among people who have not reached adulthood.

It is in some ways like the moment when your 3- or 4-year-old utters a mild curse upon dropping something or stubbing a toe and you are stunned that common and vulgar words have passed the lips of your child. The child looks up at you and you instantaneously know the source of those words and know that in some small way you have failed as a parent.

When high school students attack each other because of the color of their skin, we know in a much larger way that we have failed as a community.

I was born in 1958 at a time when in many places in the United States of America there were separate water fountains and washrooms for black and white people. People who are 16 today were born in 1976, eight years after the death of Martin Luther King.

It is a common and unthinking assumption that people who were brought up in the years since 1976 or 1988 somehow have ingrained in them, as an elemental truth, that all people should be treated equally regardless of the color of their skin. And this truth is a lesson that has been learned by the country and is now reflected in its laws and public institutions and passed on to successive generations.

Thurgood Marshall, in his last public address, summed up this attitude in part by admonishing his audience that it must stop thinking about how far we have come and start thinking about how close we are. While no one believes there is no racism in America, many believe we have come about as far as we can as a society, some indeed believe we have come too far, that we have through affirmative action overcompensated.

People believe themselves so strongly to be without prejudice that they are resentful and angered when the community is depicted as being racially intolerant on the basis of a single incident, it is a problem in the South, in Charlestown, in Dorchester or in Medford, it is not a problem here.

The death of Thurgood Marshall provided an excellent opportunity to reflect on the country's struggle with racism and the triumph of one man working through a system of laws and people to bring about profound and lasting change in society. In many ways his life exemplified how much the country is capable of in terms of change, and how society can change in a positive manner. Justice Marshall's life was well-known and public. Shortly after Marshall's death Lou Montgomery died.

Montgomery was, in 1937, the first black member of the Boston College football team. I have heard many stories about the 1941 Boston College Sugar Bowl team, but until I read his obituary I had never heard the story of Lou Montgomery. Although Montgomery was a member of the team in 1939 when the team played in the Cotton Bowl and in 1941 when it played in the Sugar Bowl, he did not travel with the team to the Cotton Bowl. Although he accompanied the team to the Sugar Bowl, he was not allowed to stay with the team or practice with them and he was not allowed to play in the game.

He did not travel with the team to the Cotton Bowl or play in the Sugar Bowl, because the Cotton Bowl is played in Dallas and the Sugar Bowl is played in New Orleans. And in 1939 and 1941 there were no black players on college football teams in the South, and black people were not allowed to eat in the same restaurants as white people and were not allowed to stay in the same hotels as white people.

It was a widely held belief that if Montgomery were to attempt to participate in these games as a member of his team, players on the other team would refuse to participate and that there would be trouble. Montgomery did not accompany the team, his team, to the Cotton Bowl, and he did not participate with his team in the Sugar Bowl. While white people may never know what it is to be black, anyone who has ever played on a team or tried out for a team, knows in their heart what Montgomery must have felt at age 19 or 20 not being able to go with his team to the championship game.

Although I had not heard this story before, the fact that black players were not allowed to participate in intercollegiate athletics in 1941 did not surprise me as I was not uneducated about the extent of racism in America at that time. What surprised me was that Boston College, a Jesuit institution would allow its team to participate, that an institution which was part of the Catholic Church, would send its team to that game without Montgomery.

It is clear from the historical accounts that Montgomery did not want to make himself the issue, did not want to cause trouble for his team and elected not to participate on his own. Somehow these facts do not lessen the hurt or the disappointment. That a school which educated thousands who didn't have two nickels to rub together, took the subway to school, never received a dime from anyone and belonged to no one's club, couldn't do more for Lou Montgomery is sad and disappointing.

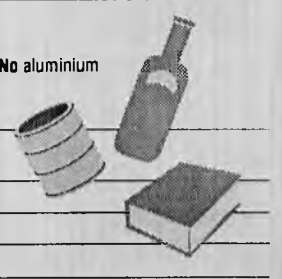

February is Black History month. Everyone will hear about Thurgood Marshall, everyone should hear about Lou Montgomery too. Undoubtedly, the administration of Boston College in 1941 and the white members of the 1941 Boston College Sugar Bowl team were not racist, racism was a problem in the South. Thinking about what it felt like to be Montgomery in 1941, that was not good enough.

Undoubtedly as well, the community of Winchester is not racist, racism is a problem in Medford. Thinking about what it was like to be black and 16 at Winchester High School in January, that is not good enough.

Education may be the best way to combat racism and there is no limit to the amount of education which is appropriate. The battle has not yet been won and perhaps it never will, but we must never give up the fight.

Playfield faces opposition

neighbors, Dewald, who is a Town Meeting member from precinct eight, claims the Fields Committee wants to implement a world-class soccer field with five soccer fields, lights, and increased parking. Dewald says the project will be a major inconvenience to the neighborhood.

Dewald, who is the former chairman of the Winchester Taxpayers Association, also claims that the fields are a gift to private soccer clubs at taxpayers expense. The chairman of the Fields Committee, Jay Boylan, was the president of a private soccer club up until 1993. In his leaflet, Dewald claimed other members also had ties to soccer clubs, referring to them as "soccer club toadies".

The disagreement between Dewald and the committee will likely come to a head at a public hearing held by the Fields Committee on Feb. 25 at Town Hall. The committee will entertain comments from the public on its goals for the future and its work since it was formed at 1992 Spring Town Meeting.

Fields Committee member Peggy Schleicher, who also lives in the Lynch area, concedes that she has gotten a lot of phone calls from concerned neighbors about the leaflet. But, she said the fact sheet passed out to them was filled with misinformation and that only one person, Dewald, is behind the move to derail the Lynch renovation.

"I apologize to the many people who have been needlessly alarmed by the misleading information that was presented," Schleicher wrote in her own handout.

Schleicher said the committee wants to build one large multi-purpose field and not five soccer fields. She added the committee had no plans for lights or additional parking.

Schleicher also denied that the committee was an advocate for a private soccer club. She said the renovated field would be for the use of the community and the Lynch school children.

Preparing for the worst, the Field Committee decided at its Feb. 22 meeting to limit comments at its public hearing to two minutes, with a one minute follow-up.

"I do not feel that there should be a limited time on any speaker," said Dewald, who attended the meeting. "I feel that you should listen to the public until the public has said their piece."

"We've got to pull this community together and stop pulling it apart," added Dewald.

Boylan said he would silence anyone who was repetitive in his questioning of the committee. "I have the prerogative to say, 'enough is enough,'" said Boylan. Boylan compared the method the committee would use to the one used at Town Meeting.

Oriental rug, not just the ones bought at his store. In addition, Boodakian has new rug owners undergo a complete appraisal. He records the size, origin, style and condition of every rug he sells.

This coding system and the appraisals are helpful when searching for rugs, getting recovered rugs back to the owners, providing evidence for prosecution, and dealing with insurance companies.

The coding and appraisals are crucial because some Oriental rug owners have difficulty describing the design and make of their rugs.

"Red, green, and blue isn't much to go on," noted Lt. James Pierce, Winchester's representative on the Oriental rug task force.

Since Boodakian started the coding less than a month ago, he has coded over 100 rugs.

Boodakian will be working with the rug task force as technical support — discussing rugs, estimating costs of stolen rugs, or identifying the make of any recovered rugs. He is not unfamiliar with working with law enforcement agents; in 1976 when a large rug theft ring was uncovered, Boodakian and Sons was asked to help sort out and identify the rugs recovered.

Boodakian has had interviews with the media about the rugs before, including Yankee and Newsweek magazines. He has lectured on Oriental rugs at universities, adult education classes, and civic organizations.

The rug company first opened in Winchester in 1938 under Koko Boodakian, Stephen's grandfather. It has been a family business ever since. The company is now run by one of Koko's sons, Michael, and five of his grandchildren, Sherry, Scott, Stephen, G. Michael, and Paul.

Trustees push for overhaul

stacks, which cannot be moved because they are built into the structure of the building, are not far enough apart for a wheelchair to turn around between.

The trustees say that the library is already running afoul of the federal law. All public building were supposed to be handicapped accessible as expeditiously as possible. The latest possible date to be in full compliance with the ADA is January, 1995.

Library trustee Lane McGovern said that the library was a "sitting duck" for any legal challenge by a physically challenged person.

"Because of the impact of the ADA, library renovation is no longer a back burner, if it ever was," said McGovern. "There isn't a lot of time for compliance."

One of the main purposes of the renovation is to provide extra space. The library totals 26,000 square feet, only 15,000 of which is utilized.

The extra space would be obtained by reorganization, removing the massive heating ducts, putting up thinner walls, and extending the second floor over the periodical room, the most ambitious aspect of the renovation.

The space is needed in order to provide more rooms between book cases, to group all the book genres together, to provide more meeting rooms for the public, and to provide more seating.

The organizational problem at the library lies in its nature. When the library was built in 1931, patrons were directly served by librarians, who would search the shelves for requested materials. Now, patrons are browsing in dark, narrow aisles, that were never intended to service the public.

"It is nearly impossible for a patron to find what he's looking for without the help of a librarian," said Wills.

The library trustees feel that now that the Public Safety Building and the Town Hall have been renovated it is the library's turn. They have received empathy from the town manager and the Board of Selectmen, but they have not received their committed financial support.

Although the town's debt is being reduced, there is also a federally mandated water treatment plant, priced at $7 million, scheduled to come before Spring Town Meeting for funding.

However, library trustees argue their project is no less a necessity than the water plant. "I've heard people describe the plant as a 'have to' and us as a 'want to', but the library has become a 'have to'," said Wills. The library had over 220,000 patrons in 1992.

"We are the most used building in town and the one building in town that serves all ages," said Will.

Staying in control with help from a diabetes counselor

JENNIFER WHITE
COLUMNIST

You may be one of the 11 million Americans who have diabetes. And you may, or may not, know it. Some people find out after a blood test and heeding the unmistakable warning symptoms — fatigue, sudden and steady weight loss, constant urination, blurred vision, excessive dry and itchy skin, hunger and thirst.

Many people with Type II diabetes do not know they have it, as it often comes on very gradually and the symptoms are not evident. That's why, according to Marty Wray, registered nurse and certified diabetes counselor at Winchester Hospital, even without symptoms, you should consult your physician about a diabetes test if you are at risk for the disease. High risk factors include being overweight, giving birth to an infant weighing more than 9 pounds, being over the age of 45, having had gestational diabetes during pregnancy or a history of other blood sugar problems. If you have one parent with Type II diabetes, you have a one in four chance of getting the disease, and if both parents are diabetic, your risk may be as high as 75 percent.

Whether you have recently discovered that you have diabetes, or have had diabetes for years, there is important information — including advanced medical treatments — you should know about. A diabetes counselor is just the person to help.

Who should see a diabetes counselor? "Everybody who has diabetes — especially women who are pregnant," says Wray. The American Diabetes Association recommends that women be tested for diabetes at some time after the 24th week of pregnancy. "Good control of diabetes is essential for long-term health, and control happens through education."

Physician referred patients see Wray once a week for three to four weeks, and then as needed. To start, they learn about the disease itself — that diabetes means your body is unable to properly use the energy in the food you eat. In Type I diabetes, or insulin-dependent, the pancreas is unable to manufacture any insulin. Without insulin, there is a dangerous buildup of glucose in the blood.

Type II is the most prevalent kind of diabetes, affecting more than 10 million adult Americans. In Type II diabetes, the cells of the body are resistant to the insulin made by the pancreas and don't absorb glucose.

Wray explains, "Initially, I try to find out how much a patient knows about diabetes and what they're doing to control it. I teach them how to test their blood sugar level, if they aren't already doing it, and introduce them to a variety of new products on the market and where they can purchase them for the least amount of money."

Because proper diet is an important part of maintaining a healthy lifestyle, Wray arranges for patients to meet with a registered dietitian to learn how different foods affect blood sugar. At this point, a meal plan is coordinated to ensure that the patient will receive all the nutrients he or she needs, while avoiding sudden surges in blood sugar.

Wray also talks to patients about the importance of regular, moderate exercise, especially for people with Type II diabetes since exercise increases the body's sensitivity to insulin, reducing the amount of insulin needed for control.

"Another topic of importance is that of proper foot care," says Wray who explains that due to diminished circulation and sensation, diabetics can develop severe foot problems.

Finally, Wray emphasizes that knowledge is the key to controlling diabetes. Before knowledge, however, there must be an awareness that you have diabetes. Wray urges people to consult their physician if they suspect they have diabetes.

HEALTH NOTES

Sibling class at Winchester Hospital

A new baby is a new person, and for the baby's sibling, it is a time of growing and learning.

At Sibling Class, offered by Winchester Hospital, young siblings who are at least 2 1/2 years old, learn how the new baby fits into the family and learn they are important to their new baby brother or sister. Class participants will share in fun activities including learning how to diaper and feed the baby. A movie will be shown as well. All children are encouraged to bring their dolls and teddy bears. This class is offered monthly, 2 to 3 p.m., at Winchester Hospital.

For dates and price information, call Winchester Hospital, 756-2220.

People Helping People at Winchester Hospital

Cancer patients and their families cope with many concerns and stresses. "People Helping People" is a support group offered at Winchester Hospital which addresses their concerns. The group brings together patients and their families with a health care professional who can give support and encouragement.

Patients who attend the meeting can listen to and talk with other people who have been through the same experience. The group, which uses a combination of self-help, education and counseling, helps patients deal with their emotions.

People Helping People meets March 10, from 6 to 7:30 p.m., at Winchester Hospital, and will continue to meet the second Wednesday of every month.

For information, call the Social Services Department, 756-2634.

Lifesaving techniques taught in CPR courses

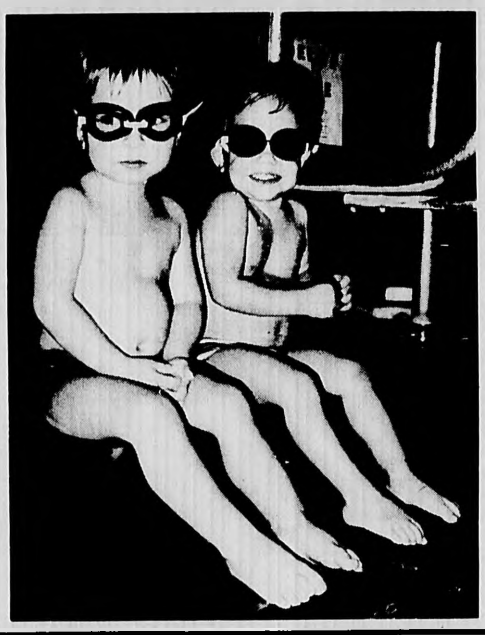

Winchester Hospital's Education Department offers cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) classes to the community. These classes teach participants how to perform lifesaving CPR and the Heimlich maneuver; a technique used to dislodge foreign material from the breathing passages.

Instructors demonstrate CPR through mannequin practice and a special film presentation. Participants who have successfully completed the course will receive a one-year certificate from the American Heart Association.

This CPR course will be offered in two-part classes, from 6 to 10 p.m., on March 8 and 15, at the Reading YMCA, and 6 to 10 p.m., on March 18 and 25, at the Woburn YMCA.

Businesses and organizations may call the hospital's education department to schedule classes for members or employees. For price information, call Winchester Hospital, 756-2220.

AROUND TOWN

Por Cristo's co-founder and Milton resident Dr. Martin Dunn, who has a doctorate in dental medicine, who did not attend the luncheon, communicated with attendants through a speakerphone from an Ecuadorian hospital where he was performing surgery. Dunn said that the burn unit established by Por Cristo's in Ecuador had helped two girls the previous day when they needed immediate medical attention due to severe facial burns. Before the burn unit was established, these injuries would have been fatal.

With Dunn in Ecuador were volunteers Estella Harrington and Patricia Reidy, both registered nurses of Children's Hospital, James Koepfler, medical photographer of Children's Hospital, Lynne McLeod, support staff of Mass General Hospital, Maureen Walsh, registered nurse of Cardinal Cushing Hospital and Joanne Ferino Zahrobosky, registered nurse of Virginia.

Guided by Dunn and Cardinal Law, the people, especially the children of Ecuador, have renewed hope. Por Cristo staff is confident that every donated dollar and every volunteer hour is utilized with maximum effectiveness. They are proud of the qualitative — and many times lifesaving differences made and will continue to make in the lives of these deserving children. To become involved or for information about Por Cristo, call 774-0410. The next fund-raising event, Mardi Gras/Carnivale, is scheduled for Feb. 21.

Cardinal Law, chairman of Por Cristo, recognized more than 100 volunteers for their commitment, generosity and support in the efforts of Por Cristo. Por Cristo is a nonprofit medical service organization based in Quincy.

Winchester resident Kirk Chisholm learns to use his strength on the ice

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS SPORTS WRITER

Just before the start of the Belmont Hill-St. Sebastian's hockey game on Feb. 10, Kirk Chisholm skated to center ice and waited for the opening faceoff.

The hockey at Belmont Hill is the no frills type. There is no pre-game national anthem; there is no admission charged at the door; there is no public address announcer to make public the names of the goal scorers. There is only, says Chisholm, the highest caliber high school hockey anywhere.

"I'd say that this is the best quality hockey around," says Chisholm, a junior at Belmont Hill and a resident of Winchester. "You have to be quick to play at this level and you have to be able to pass the puck."

Chisholm can do both those things. And at 6-foot-1-inch, 205 pounds, he can also hit with bone-jarring correctness. The Belmont Hill forward, a left-hand shot who plays right wing on a line with Keith O'Brien and Brian Callahan, has grown into the prototype modern wing: a big player with the speed and strength to cut in to the net from the outside.

"We were looking for someone physical to play on that line," said Belmont Hill coach Ken Martin. "We put him on his off wing and I think it took him a little while to adjust. But I think he's been a good complement to them. He's very good at deflections. I'm trying to get him to go to the net more. Keith is so strong that there aren't many players who can move him around once he gets position."

Chisholm had seven goals and five assists in the team's first 18 games.

"I tend to try to be aggressive out there," says Chisholm. "But I'm trying to be a more skillful player this year."

The second-year varsity player, in his sixth year at the school, is a classic product of the Belmont Hill hockey program, which features six hockey teams (seventh-, eighth-, two ninth-grade teams, a junior varsity, and varsity team).

"I've asked players coming up from the JV what the biggest adjustment is. They say it is the pace of the game," said Martin. The one advantage of playing here is that all the teams are taught the same system we use on the varsity."

The team system is one of the elements that characterizes prep school hockey, says Chisholm.

"It's more of a team effort," he notes. "Some teams have individual players that they feature. But overall, it is more of a team game."

Chisholm fits in quite comfortably in the team game. How good of an individual player can he become?

Well, if he develops a little more scoring touch around the net, you could see him developing into a Kevin Stevens type of player, a big forward who can go to the net with purpose and come away with a goal.

"I think he has to get a little quicker with his feet," said Martin. "It's that first step. Once he gets going at top speed he is fine."

That was evident in the waning moments of the St. Sebastian's game. Chisholm — who wears No. 16 and skates with that perfect angular posture that big players seem to have — took a pass in stride at center ice, barreled down the right boards, cut around a defenseman, and got a shot off before time expired.

"I'm trying to go to the net more," says Chisholm. "I'm trying to create more scoring chances."

Chisholm is hard to miss out there. He's going to be even more difficult to ignore as time goes on.

Winchester hooks Fishermen with late surge in tourney opener

SPORTS WRITER

For a while, it appeared as if the Winchester High boys basketball team might sink like a dinghy in the icy waters of Gloucester Bay, but the Sachems righted their ship in time to post a 57-49 victory over the Fishermen of Gloucester High in Tuesday night's first round Division 2 North Sectional tourney game.

Winchester High School
BASKETBALL

Trailing, 47-43 with less than five minutes remaining, Winchester went on a 14-6 run to close the game, winning the game at the same place they had nearly lost it — the free throw line. After a 9 for 24 start from the charity stripe, Winchester hit eight of its last 12 to put away a stubborn Gloucester team.

"I don't understand how we missed so many free throws in this game," said a relieved Winchester coach Quinton Dale. "If we had made some free throws earlier in the game it wouldn't have even been this close. But it doesn't matter how many we missed, we made them when it counted."

Winchester (9-10) travels to North Andover to take on the second-seeded Scarlet Knights Friday at 7:45 p.m.

Winchester had a very specific game plan and seemed to be implementing it perfectly when Kris Silvera, Gloucester's 6-foot-7-inch junior center, picked up his third foul early in the first half. But the Sachems couldn't capitalize on the big center's absence, and a back and forth struggle ensued.

The Fishermen scored the game's first six points, but two Mark Morrison 3-pointers and a conventional trey from Brian Keefe gave the Sachems their first lead, at 11-10.

The Fishermen put together a 7-1 run to open a 25-19 lead with 3:13 left in the first half, but Morrison got two of his game-high 22 points after stealing the ball at mid-court. Then, after getting a long outlet from Keefe, Morrison made a slick lookaway pass to a cutting Kirk Minihane for two more. Dave Middleton and Todd Sundstrom each made 1 of 2 free throws to tie the game at the break.

Winchester had several chances throughout the half to open the game up, but the Sachems were unable to shake the hosts.

"A lot of times we were beating them down the court, but we just couldn't complete the passes," said Dale. "We were getting the opportunities and guys were fumbling the ball or traveling. The opportunities were there, we just couldn't capitalize."

Morrison and Sundstrom (10 points) combined to score Winchester's first nine points of the second half, but the Fishermen kept pace. Gloucester was still leading, 47-45 when Silvera fouled out with 4:35 remaining.

There were eight ties in the second half, and it wasn't until junior center Sean Furey's free throw with 3:05 on the clock that the Sachems went in front to stay.

Dale used Middleton and French at the guard spots late in the game, and the duo responded by forcing key turnovers and harassing the Gloucester ball handlers.

"Pete French picked up the defense when Dave Middleton came in," said Dale. "When Pete and Dave are on the floor they can just about cover anybody."

Said French, "Coach basically let us loose to put some pressure, some man to man on them. I thought we could take them (defensively) because they really only had one good ball handler."

WINCHESTER NOTEBOOK: With Gloucester concentrating on stopping Keefe, Morrison had an outstanding shooting night. The 6-3 junior had four treys and buried another shot with one toe on the arc.

"The first shot I took felt good," said Morrison, "so I just kept stroking it and it worked out well for me." ...

The boys closed their regular season with a 71-68 overtime victory against Woburn on Feb. 17. Keefe had 27 points, including the go-ahead hoop with 18 seconds left in overtime, as Winchester swept the season series from the Tanners. ...

The Winchester High girls team closed out its season with a thrilling come-from-behind victory over rival Woburn on Wednesday, Feb. 17. Trailing, 53-41 with three minutes left, the Sachemettes went on a wild, 16-1 run led by Julie Russo, Esme Baker and Jenna DeSimone to stun the Tannerettes, 57-54.

The girls were scheduled to begin their tournament on Wednesday, Feb. 24 against East Boston. The winner of that game advances to a meeting with Concord-Carlisle on Friday at 7 p.m. ...

Senior tri-captain Amanda Armstrong, a 5-6 guard/forward, won the Middlesex League free throw shooting competition by swishing 12 of 15 attempts at Melrose High last Sunday. Armstrong will represent the league in the sectional competition which will be held in the next two weeks. The top scorers at the sectional advance to the finals at the Boston Garden.

Sophomore grapplers shine at sectional

WRESTLING

Division 2 Central Sectionals, held last Friday and Saturday at Wayland High School.

The Sachems, a sophomore-dominated group (8 of the 10 weight classes are filled by 10th graders), had eight athletes advance to Saturday's second day of competition. Of the eight who advanced, five earned top-six finishes.

"We had a great first day, but not a great second day," said coach Larry Tremblay. "But I'm very happy. Any time you put that many kids into the second day, you've had a good day."

Sophomore John Worthen, who placed sixth in the sectionals at 119 pounds as a freshman, qualified for the state tournament this time around with a fourth-place finish at 130. Sophomore Mike Marino took fifth place at 171 while classmates Anthony Feola (119) and Dan Boffo (145), along with senior captain Jeff Edmands (189), finished in sixth place in their weight classes.

Winchester, a perennial power which graduated seven Middlesex League champions from last season's 15-2 squad, shocked teams throughout the season, putting together a 13-4 record with just two returning starters, Worthen and Edmands.

Worthen, who had a first-round bye, beat Adam Olshanski, a Wayland senior, in the second round, but took a technical fall to eventual champion Daryl Connetta in his next match. He bounced back with a controversial pin of Marlboro's Todd Collins in the consolation round, before being stopped by Olshanski in a rematch.

"He won a real tough match (over Olshanski) then lost to Connetta — a real physical player," said Tremblay. "But he refused to give up. He took a technical fall. In a losing cause, John was the talk of the tournament.

"In the consolation, he was losing, then he stunned the kid with a strong move," Tremblay explained. "He just exploded and caught everyone off guard. He caught (Collins) in a cradle and pinned him."

According to Tremblay, every Sachem grappler wrestled well. Sophomore Artie Carr (112) won two matches in place of Nathaniel Haskell. Junior Tucker Bradford had first- and second-round pins in 12 and 30 seconds, respectively. At 135, Dave Carr had one win, and at 140, Wes Matthews lost, 6-5, to the eventual champion.

Dave Drazen was unable to pick up a win, but "never gave up" in the 152-pound group, which Tremblay called "a loaded class." Freshman Tim Sullivan was forced into the 160-pound class when Mark Grey was unable to compete, but was overwhelmed by heavier, more experienced opponents.

Hall, Lindmark, Murdock, Aleo, boys mile relay top performers at class meet

Winchester High School
TRACK & FIELD

Facility over the weekend, as stars of tomorrow met stars of today.

At intermission of the Class C State Track Meet, in which Winchester's boys and girls teams were competing, the time trials for next month's World Indoor Championships were held. With high school track athletes from throughout the state watching, Butch Reynolds, the world record-holder in the 400 meters, blitzed to victory in 45.91 seconds, qualifying for the American team.

"I think the high school kids really got a kick out of watching the professional athletes," said Winchester coach Joe Cantillon. "That added a different dimension to the meet."

After Reynolds and the other competitors had set the pace, the Winchester runners who had made the finals tried to equal their feats. Winchester was led by Ron Hall, Brian Lindmark, Deidre Murdock and Laura Aleo, each of whom received medals for top-six finishes, and the mile relay team of Lindmark, Shaun Oliver, Rolando Oyola and Paul Albiani, which finished fourth.

In a blistering 60 yard dash, Hall, Winchester's sophomore sprinter, was nipped at the wire by Foxboro's Hector Negron. But Hall's 6.79 was good enough to just edge the third and fourth place finishers.

"It was a real neck and neck battle," said Cantillon. "There was no real telling who crossed first. They were so close."

In the relay, Winchester took fourth — despite having four exhausted runners.

"Both Brian and Paul had qualified for the finals in the 300," said Cantillon, "so they had already run

Eppig earns 2 medals

Winchester High School junior Kevin Eppig earned two medals at last Saturday's North Sectional swimming championships at Haverhill High School.

Eppig, a Middlesex League All-Star, raced to personal bests in the 500 freestyle, where he finished third in 4 minutes, 58.76 seconds, and the 200 freestyle, where he took fourth in 1:52.56.

Eppig has qualified for the state meet, which will be held Saturday at Springfield High.

Winchester's Mark Waterbury also competed at the sectionals, but did not make the cut in the 100 backstroke.

Wrestling Boosters seek contributions

The Winchester High School Wrestling Boosters Club, like the wrestling team, faces a season of rebuilding. The boosters are rebuilding the club's bank account.

The huge success of the last few years' teams proved costly. Costs such as team trophies, awards and tournament expenses have left the boosters in the red this year and seeking any contributions, large or small.

A contribution will assist in the purchase of athletic shoes and other equipment for those unable to buy their own. The boosters provide wrestling camp scholarships for deserving wrestlers. They pay fees for the fall wrestling instruction offered through the recreation department for the community. In addition, the boosters hold an annual banquet to recognize the team's achievements.

Checks should be made payable to Winchester Wrestling Boosters Club and mailed to John and Kate Edmands, 12 Winthrop St., Winchester, MA, 01890, or Larry and Erna Worthen, 15 Hancock St., Winchester, MA, 01890.

All downhill for area prep skiers

SPORTS WRITER

It may not be the most glamorous of the winter sports, with hockey and basketball usually grabbing the headlines, but at the Belmont Hill School, the Nordic Cross Country Skiing team has quietly gone about racking up championship banners.

A victory in the Division 2 New England Championships on Feb. 17, coupled with a win at the Eastern Mass. Sprints on Feb. 3, ended one of the most successful cross country ski seasons in Belmont Hill School history.

Three Winchester residents, Colin Hynes, Phil Canzano and J.J. Wrighton, were among the 15 Hillies coaches Fran Kirby and Todd Rodger guided to a tremendous 25-4 overall record and a first-place finish in the Mass Bay East League.

Kirby, the fifth-year head coach at the Belmont school, said there is a different philosophy to cross country skiing than with other sports.

"We concentrate on building the athlete from the ground up," said Kirby. "The kids don't necessarily flock to cross country skiing like they might other sports. We often have to encourage kids to come out in the seventh and eighth grade."

There are two types of events in cross country skiing. The first is the classical style, which most people have seen when they watch the biathalon during Olympic telecasts. The classical form is the traditional method, where the competitors ski in tracks.

In the relay style, the skiing is done in a freestyle form, using different skis with longer poles. "It's basically like skating on hard-packed snow," Kirby explained.

Hynes, a 16-year-old junior, joined the team in the eighth grade. The all-around athlete, a member of the soccer and baseball teams at Belmont Hill, came into his own on the race course this season.

A consistent third-place finisher for the team, Hynes had his best race of the year in last week's New England Championships, where he made up two minutes (a huge margin by cross country skiing standards) as Belmont went on to win the 10 kilometer relay race.

Canzano and Wrighton, both freshman, competed at the junior varsity level. Kirby expects both to be impact skiers on next year's team.

According to Kirby, it takes a special kind of person to make a competitive cross country skier.

"It's a sport of real self discipline," said Kirby. "You have to be able to accept a sport where their is very little glitz or glamour."

It also takes outstanding athletic ability, which is why the team spends the first month of the season doing various drills such as playing soccer, weight training, running long distances and running the dreaded Harvard Stadium stairs.

"These are real athletes," Kirby contends. "It requires a great deal of aerobic cnditioning and upper body strength. A lot of the kids do cross country running first. If you aren't in top shape, you won't be able to handle this sport."

Tremblay was excited about the progress of several Sachems, including Feola, Boffo, and Marino.

"Anthony had a great tournament," Tremblay said. "He wrestled real tough. I think he made a name for himself. Boffo certainly didn't embarrass himself. He lost two tight matches. Marino was just typical Marino. He was losing, then came back and pinned (in the fifth/sixth-place match)."

Edmands, the lone senior starter for the Sachems, was forced to withdraw from the fifth/sixth-place battle at 189 after sustaining an injury early in the tournament.

"I feel badly for Jeff," said Tremblay. "To end the season with an injury is tough. He was a good captain and a good leader."

Worthen is the lone Sachem expected to compete in this weekend's state tournament at Franklin High, but a host of Winchester wrestlers will be in the practice room to help prepare their teammate.

"John's the only definite state competitor," said Tremblay, "but a bunch of the guys are going to work out this week. Marino, Boffo, Edmands and Feola will all go as alternates, and even some guys who aren't going to Franklin are going to work out. It's a pretty dedicated group."

Lindmark grabbed a medal with his sixth-place finish in the 300 (34.1), while Albiani was seventh, at 34.2.

Ben Simeone also competed for Winchester, but he was unable to qualify for the finals of the hurdles.

The Sachemettes were paced by Murdock, the team's senior quad-captain, who picked up a third-place medal with her time of 12:23 in the two-mile run.

Aleo, a junior middle distance runner, earned a fifth-place finish with her time of 1:37.7 in the 600, while Colleen Campbell (7.9) and Maile Bushnell (8.1) just missed the finals in the dash.

Cantillon, who filled in for boys coach Tom Kline, who was unable to attend the meet, said the timing of the meet may have been a disadvantage to the competitors.

"It was unfortunate to have the meet at the end of the vacation week," said Cantillon. "It's hard for the kids to really get up after taking it easy for a week and trying to do things with their families.

Each of Winchester's medal winners qualified for this Sunday's All-State meet, which is also held at Harvard.

Correction: Albiani a key part of relay

Winchester High senior Paul Albiani was mistakenly omitted as a member of the school's league-leading relay team in several recent Star articles. In fact, while the team has alternated six runners in the four available slots, Albiani has been the anchor throughout most of the season.

According to boys coach Tom Kline, Albiani was one of Winchester's best runners all season long.

"He was a key person for us all year," said Kline. "He was my most solid runner. He broke 35 (seconds) in the 300 on his first try, and he had the best mark on the team (1:19) in the 600. He even ran the dash, and came in second to Hall. All in all, I'd have to say he and Hall were my top runners."

Albiani was also the anchor on Winchester's Middlesex League-best relay team, which turned in a time of 3:39.6.

NCNS to hold open house Feb. 25

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, 21 Church St., will hold its annual open house on Feb. 25, at 7:30 p.m. Programs for children ages 2 years 9 months to five years and older are available for the 1993-94 school session. Interested parents are invited to come to the open house to meet the teachers, visit the classrooms and learn the school's philosophy of child development. To the parent at NCNS, "cooperative" means being an integral, involved part of your child's first school experience. New applications are being accepted now, and admissions will be processed Feb. 26. NCNS also has a parent-attended toddler program with the next eight-week session beginning March 17. The class meets 12:30 p.m. each Wednesday. For information, call Jan DiPerna, director, 729-8081.

V-O on skates

The Stoneham Ice Skating Rink was the scene of celebration and enjoyment as the entire population of the Vinson-Owen Elementary School took to the ice on Friday, Feb. 12. This annual event commemorates the Vinson-Owen family, after whom the school is named.

Mrs. Maribel Vinson Owen was born in Winchester and learned to skate on Smith Pond. She won the North American Singles Figure Skating Championship three times, and was a member of three United States Olympic teams. She taught at the Boston Skating Club and among her more than 4,000 students were Tenley Albright, six members of Olympic teams, and her own two daughters.

The older daughter, Maribel, was North American pairs figure skating champion and also a member of the United States Olympic team.

The younger daughter, Laurence, was North American singles figure skating champion and also a member of the United States Olympic team.

All three died in a tragic plane crash, along with the entire U.S. Olympic team. The Vinson Owens were en route to the World Skating Championships when their plane went down in Brussels, Belgium on Feb. 15, 1961.

A skating portrait of the Vinson Owens was presented to the school by the Parents Association in a dedication ceremony on Oct. 6, 1965. The portrait is located in the foyer of our school.

Rob Taylor

V-O features Rob Taylor

V-O Elementary School was honored with a visit from Rob Taylor, adventurer, mountain climber and storyteller extraordinaire, utilizing slides, climbing equipment and his gift as a storyteller, Taylor engaged the audience in a truly remarkable adventure.

Taylor recounted his trip through the wilds of Tanzania as he and his partner climbed Kilimanjaro, and the accident that nearly cost him his life.

The students listened attentively as Taylor talked of African wildlife, plant life and astounding land formations unique to the geography of Kilimanjaro and Africa's rift valley. When difficulties arose of an unexpected nature, the emphasis of the story shifted from adventure and discovery in nature to an examination of the relationships between people, the importance of self-reliance, standing up to peer pressure, team work, communication, faith, trust and friendship.

Throughout the assembly, the students were spellbound by Taylor's story. Indiana Jones couldn't have impressed them more.

Beaux Arts Ball 1993

The Winchester Art Association, Friends of Art, invites you to join us on Saturday, Feb. 27, from 8 p.m. until midnight at the Winchester Town Hall Auditorium for Beaux Arts Ball III — Midnight in Moscow.

The Beaux Arts Ball tradition began as a joyous celebration of the arts and Winchester has adopted this festive practice as our own and we are delighted to offer another evening of live music, delicious refreshments and charming company. "Midnight in Moscow" invites you in from the cold. Start with a review of our silent auction — donated works of art and other items to test our party-goers' bidding skills. Sample an array of tasty tidbits fit for the table of the tsar...and dance to the music of the Jerry and Jack Davis Band. In past years, many guests have embraced the spirit of Mardi Gras by wearing costumes and/or masks. We encourage such creative expression.

All proceeds raised support the extra-budgetary projects of the Winchester School Art Department, grades K-12 and to defray the costs of this event. Tickets remain $25 per person, including refreshments. Wine and beer are available at cost. This is a 21-and-over event. Seating is limited. For information call Margaret Reuland, 721-0751, or Susan Haskell, 729-6327.

A regular performer at Children's Hospital and the Shriners Burn Institute, O'Malley is used to performing to a wide variety of audiences.

Many of his performances, such as his "Just Say No Drug and Alcohol Show" or his annual show at the Pine Street Inn, simultaneously entertain and convey an important message. ## 'Energy Connection' holds fitness workshop

The Energy Connection fitness program is offering a workshop called "Body Fat: How much is too much?" on Friday, Feb. 26, at 8:30 a.m. and Saturday, Feb. 27, at 9:30 a.m. These one-hour programs will be held at Crawford Memorial Methodist Church and are free and open to the public. These workshops are being offered because February has been designated heart month by the American Heart Association.

The workshop will feature Susan Powers, R.N., manager of health education at Winchester Hospital. She will explain the concept of body fat content and its correlation to health and long life. Powers states, "Most people keep track of how fat they are by stepping on the scale. But because lean tissue weighs more than fat, the scale can be deceptive. A more accurate fitness assessment comes from measuring the proportions of fat and lean tissue in the body." She will measure the percentage of body fat of those participants who wish to have it done by using the Futrex Machine. This small hand-held device gives an immediate digital readout and is one of the latest ways to measure body fat content. With the knowledge of their personal body fat percentage, participants will be helped to focus on positive ways to maintain a healthier lifestyle.

The Energy Connection offers 15 aerobic classes weekly at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church and the Jenks Senior Center. For more information on these classes or on the upcoming workshops contact Linda Vacovec at 729-3256 or Marie Dacey at 729-7268.

Classical music concert for kids

While Boston boasts three classical music radio stations and scores of live classical concerts each month, it's tough to find classical music presented in a way that captivates and entertains children under eight.

Aside from a handful of live concerts, a small number of orchestral recordings like "Peter and the Wolf," and the classic lullabies, there isn't much opportunity for young children to hear classical music that's geared to them.

On Sunday, March 14, at 3 p.m. at the Winchester Town Hall, young children, ages 3 to 8, and their families will have a unique opportunity to see just how entertaining and accessible the work of some of the greatest classical composers can be. Presented by Children's Own School in Winchester to celebrate its 50th anniversary, "Kids' Classics" is designed for short attention spans and active imaginations.

Hosted by Dennis Boyer of WBUR-FM's daytime classical music program, "Kids' Classics" will include works from such classical composers as Mahler, Stravinsky, Poulenc, Ravel, Bartok, Schumann, Prokofiev, Rossini, Brahms, and Copland. Songs and instrumental music will be organized into thematic segments to which children can immediately relate: "Creatures Great and Small," "Clowns and All that Jazz," "Birds, Bears, and Bagpipes," "Naptime," "The Big Boot," "Peter and the Wolf," and a surprising finale.

Featured performers include Winchester residents Marion Dry and Peter Cokkinias. Dry, a singer who has appeared as soloist with the Cleveland Orchestra, the National Symphony of Panama, and the Hartford, New Hampshire, Nashua, and Quad Cities' symphonies, was a member of the original cast of the world premiere performances of John Adam's acclaimed opera, "Nixon in China."

Cokkinias has conducted and performed as clarinet soloist with many orchestras, including the Boston Symphony, the Boston Ballet, and the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and Greater Marlborough symphonies. Currently professor of clarinet at the Boston Conservatory and Berklee College of Music, he appeared as principal clarinetist in the MGM film, "Yes, Georgio," with Luciano Pavarotti.

On piano will be Bertica Shulman Cramer and Cynthia Huard. Cramer, on the faculty at New England Conservatory of Music, has performed with the Boston Pops, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Florida Orchestra, the Tampa Bay Chamber Orchestra, and the Boston Classical Orchestra. Huard has appeared in a number of chamber music programs in the Boston area, including concerts by the Arlington Piano Trio and with Emmanuel Music. A teacher of piano and harpsichord, Huard has also performed at the Aston Magna Institute.

For parents looking for a great way to introduce their children to live classical music — and share in the fun themselves — "Kids' Classics" is an opportunity too good to pass up. Tickets are $6 per person and are available at the door or by calling Gayle Merling at 729-1443.

ARTS UMBRELLA

Reception for Ann Bannister

The public is cordially invited to a reception for Ann M. Bannister, Winchester Art & Frame's Artist of the Month, Thursday, March 4, from 7:30 to 9 p.m., at the gallery, at 47 Church St. As Artist of the Month, her work will be featured throughout the month of March. For those who cannot attend the reception, her work may be viewed weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bannister is a Winchester resident and maintains studios in Winchester and Squirrel Island, Maine. Ann received her art training at the Rhode Island School of Design. Although she has painted in various media, watercolor is her ultimate challenge.

From 1970 through 1972, Ann worked as a freelance artist at Harvard's Peabody Museum in Cambridge. In 1972, she joined Gilders Workshop in Winchester, doing reverse painting, gilding and restoration of glasses for clocks and mirrors, taking over the business in 1992.

She is a member of the Historical Society of Early American Decoration, the Winchester Art Association, the Concord Art Association Distinguished Artist, the Copley Society of Boston Copley Artist, and the New England Water Color Society.

She exhibits with the New England Watercolor Society, the Concord Art Association, the Copley Society, and the Brick House Gallery of Boothbay Harbor, Maine.

Hospital displays work of R. K. Schurink

The Winchester Hospital coffee shop is currently displaying the oil pastels of Rebecca (Becky) Kingsbury Schurink of Amherst. Schurink has a strong educational background having graduated cum laude as a fine arts studio major from the University of New Hampshire as well as a masters in art education at the University of Massachusetts.

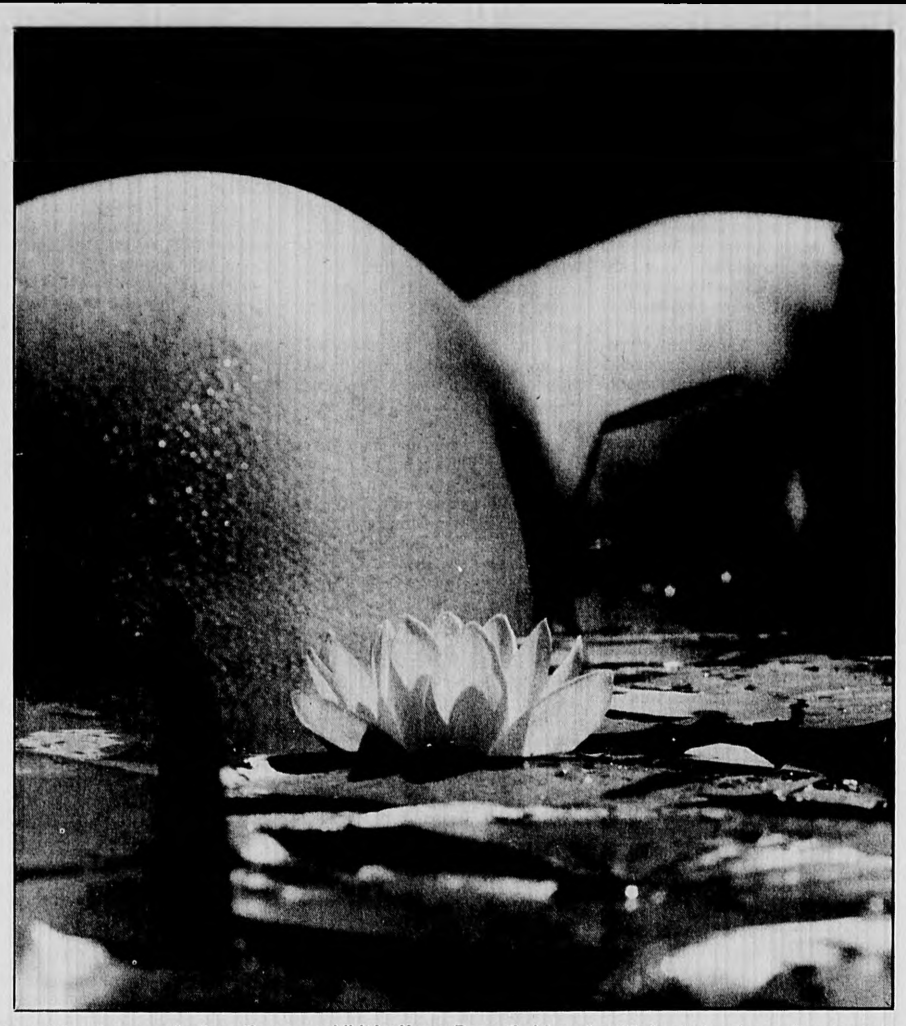

She has received numerous awards and honors such as the Artistic Excellence Award for a painting in the 72nd National Juried Exhibition at the George Walter Vincent Smith Museum in Springfield in 1991.

Besides painting, Schurink has also spent several years teaching art. Her paintings have been shown in many art galleries and exhibitions all over New England.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Kingsbury of Winchester.

Lieberherr accepted into art exhibit in Cambridge

Winchester artist Ruth Lieberherr was accepted into the open juried multimedia exhibition "Origins: Artists' Personal and Cultural Heritage" at the Cambridge Art Association Gallery. Lieberherr's acrylic painting "Rest/Spirit at Ease," showing a connection to Lieberherr's Swiss heritage, is one of 49 multimedia pieces in the exhibit, chosen by jurors Kay Mathew from the Space Gallery and Guadulesa, cultural coordinator at Harriet Tubman House, from over 140 works submitted by more than 70 artists. The exhibit runs from Feb. 3 to 26, at the Cambridge Art Association Gallery, 25 R Lowell St.

One of the photographs from the new exhibit by Karen Rosenthal from her "Animate Landscape" series to be shown in March at the Arthur Griffin Center for Photographic Art.

For more information call Kathryn Zuckerman, director, Cambridge Art Association Gallery at 876-0246, or Ruth Lieberherr at 721-2663.

Rosenthal to exhibit work at Griffin Center

The Arthur Griffin Center for Photographic Art announces The Animate Landscape, black and white and color photography by Karin Rosenthal on Thursday, March 4 through Sunday, May 2.

"Meet the Artist" is on Sunday, March 14, from 1 to 4 p.m. and Sunday, April 18, from 3 to 4 p.m. A slide-talk with the artist will be Sunday, April 18, from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m. The cost is $2 for members and $4 for nonmembers.

Rosenthal has been breaking challenging artistic territory with her unique photographic resonances of the nude form and the natural landscape. In much of her work, figure and landscape are united. Nudes evoke islands and desert scenes while landscapes are photographed as intimatcly as animate beings.

This exhibition of 55 photographs includes work from several different studies, including black and white nudes and new color images combining the figure with the southwestern landscape. The most comprehensive showing of her work to date, this exhibit encompasses photographs from 1977 to 1992, taken on Cape Cod, and in Greece and the American southwest, including color landscapes of these areas.

"Rosenthal creates elegant abstractions ... ," stated Kelly Wise of the Boston Globe in regard to her critically acclaimed and extensively exhibited black and white nudes. David Pratt, former curator of the Fogg Museum, wrote of their acquisition of her work, "Nude photography is one of the most difficult and treacherous genres in the medium, requiring a good eye and an effective rapport with the model — Rosenthal combines both of these qualities.

The Animate Landscape provides an excellent opportunity to see the full range of Rosenthal's themes and approaches in a new, large and ideally designed exhibition space.

'World Day of Prayer' March 5

World Day of Prayer, a day on which millions of Christian women all over the globe join in "informed prayer and prayerful action," traditionally takes place on the first Friday in March and is translated into hundreds of languages. Nineteen ninety-three marks its 106th year.

In this community World Day of Prayer is being sponsored by the Winchester unit of Church Women United and it will be held at The Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St., on Friday, March 5, at 1 p.m.; refreshment hour will follow the service. All are invited to attend. Child care will be available. Members of 10 Winchester churches will be participating in this ecumenical service.

This year's World Day of Prayer service was written by women of Guatemala on the theme, "People of God: Instruments of Healing." The themes and sponsoring countries are determined at an international meeting held every four years.

The Guatemalan women share their background and experiences and tell of healing in the Mayan culture by medicinal plants, some of which are still in use today. The women describe some of their social conditions of Guatemala and their desire to be instruments of healing to solve some of these problems using Biblical and present day stories of healings.

The speaker at the World Day of Prayer service will be the Rev. Judith McCullough of Norwell. Michaela Morales of Guatemala will be present and at the social hour will demonstrate her weaving techniques. For information, call 729-2661.

Funds collected from the World Day of Prayer in the United States will be distributed by Church Women United for programs including Intercontinental Grants to many regions of the world for programs benefiting women. Church Women United, since its founding in 1941, has been the official sponsor of World Day of Prayer in this country, where approximately 5,000 communities and 178,000 people celebrate this service.

Church video on Cablevision

For the first time, First Church of Christ Scientist, will present a video program locally. Channel 19 of Continental Cablevision will carry the program at 5:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 25, and repeat it at noon, Tuesday, March 2.

The half-hour color program combines two independent but complementary 15-minute lectures: "Restoration," by David C. Driver, C.S.B.; and "Identity & Individuality" by Laurence Doyle,Ph. D., astrophysicist, both produced by The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

In the first lecture, "Restoration," Driver, reveals how seemingl insurmountable problems faced by people today can be resolved through restoration of man's active, conscious relationship with God. A longtime student, practitioner and teacher of Christian Science, Driver has given other Christian Science lectures in person in many cities and towns in the United States and abroad. In addition to Driver, "Restoration" features a woman who tells how she was spiritually healed of multiple drug addictions.

In the second lecture, "Identity & Individuality," Laurence Doyle shares intriguing observations on man's relationships to the universe and to God. Much of Doyle's perspective arises from his work in astrophysics at SETI (a NASA institute involved in the search for extraterrestrial intelligence). Striking photos from astronomical research complement Doyle's rugged seacoast location, as he uses everyday language to explain how, in Christian Science, religious and scientific views of man are in harmony.

For information, contact the Christian Science Reading Room, 729-5856. Located at 4 Mt. Vernon Ave., the reading room is open 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, 9:30 to 1 Sat., 2 to 4 p.m., on the first Sunday of each month, and an hour after each lecture the church presents.

Epiphany to hold Lenten programs in March

An outstanding Episcopal clergyman will be conducting special Lenten programs on March 5 and 6, at the Parish of Epiphany, at 70 Church St. The Rev. Aaron Usher comes to Winchester from Portsmouth, R.I. where he is rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. In line with his special interest in pastoral care, counseling and healing mission, he is also a counselor for Westport Family Medicine in Westport.

However, it is his experience as Protestant chaplain to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and Leningrad and as the Anglican chaplain to the British Embassy in the Soviet Union from 1986 to 1988 that inspires his talk for Friday, March 5, at 7:45 p.m. His title, "Sojourn of the Spirit," reflects the deep impression made on him by the warmth of the Russian people in their religion. A potluck supper will precede this program at 6:30 p.m. For information or reservations, call Mrs. Benjamin Marshall, 729-5444.

On Saturday, March 6, from 9 a.m. to noon, Usher will take as his subject "Prayer of the Heart: Turning In, Living Out." This will be a period of reflection on Usher's chosen topic and also a time for meditation during the Lenten season.

Church Women United hold luncheon

Church Women United of Winchester, a chapter of the national ecumenical women's organization, had its annual meeting and luncheon at the Church of St. Eulalia on Ridge Street, on Tuesday, Feb. 9.

The luncheon, which was organized by women from St. Eulalia's and from the Crawford United Methodist Church, was attended by many clergy members and parishioners from the host parish as well as First Congregational Church, Second Congregational Church, Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, First Baptist Church, First Church of Christ Scientist, Immaculate Conception, Parish of the Epiphany, Winchester Unitarian Church and St. Mary's.

Outgoing president Mary Lou Eugley introduced board members who reported on the many valuable services that the group has provided during the past year. Unicef chairman Ann Russell stated that about 80 volunteers had sold almost five thousand dollars worth of Christmas cards and thereby raised a significant amount of money for needy children. Members had staffed a Meals on Wheels route one day a week all year long. At the Winchester Hospital, the fresh flowers in the meditation room were provided by Church Women United under the leadership of Barbara Fickett. Many elderly residents enjoyed holiday meals through the Share a Meal program which was coordinated by Susan Schulz.

After reports were made, Father James Savage installed board members for the 1993-94 year. They include Eva Arnott, president; Margaret Keefe, vice president; Marjorie Berger, recording secretary; Jane McClennan, corresponding secretary; and Barbara Fickett, treasurer.

After the installation ceremony, Sister Rose Marie Lipke, a pastoral associate at St. Eulalia's, described her work with the various support groups that the church provides for parishioners and for other members of the community.

She talked about the groups for divorced and separated people, widows and widowers, Alzheimer's care givers, "Morning for Moms" groups, people in career transition and several other programs. As she finished her talk, those present were inspired to continue to work together as Christian women who have so much more to offer.

Concord Subaru

Location: 50 Concord Turnpike, Route 2, Concord, MA

History: Leo Bertolami, owner of Concord Subaru, opened the dealership in February, 1991. Bertolami, also the owner of Milldam Leasing, has been a local business man in the Acton/Concord area for more than 20 years.

Concord Subaru employs only 13, but there is a lot of Subaru experience in such a new dealership. Its sales staff has many years of experience, including the #1 Subaru salesman in New England. The service manager has 12 years of technical background with Subaru and the technicians are certified by Subaru.

The new dealership marked its two year anniversary on Feb. 15, 1993. "With the unexpected success of our first two years, next year looks to be even more promising than the last. The growth and success we have had serving the people in this area with small town service and attitude will generate future sales," said Charlie Arbine, general manager at Concord Subaru.

Types of Cars Sold: Subaru Legacy, Loyale, SVX and the all-new Impreza. All models are available with four-wheel drive.

Best Deal on The Lot: The 1992 SVX Luxury Sports Coupe. Buyers can save up to $7,000 with factory incentives. Standard features include 230HP, 6 cylinder, ABS, AWD.

Specialties: Concord Subaru offers a full service and parts department. Within the department are three service technicians, a full time prep person, a parts manager, and a service Manager. Between the seven employees is more than 50 years of Subaru experience. All technicians are Subaru trained and certified.

Incentives: Manufacturer rebates up to $3,000 and cash incentives are being offered on most models at this time.

Philosophy: "It's not necessary to travel to get your best deal. Come see your neighborhood Subaru dealer, Concord Subaru, the #1 dealer for customer satisfaction in Massachusetts."

Subaru Impreza

Subcompact vehicle combines comfort, performance

Subaru of America adds the Impreza series of subcompact front and all-wheel drive sedans and wagons to its 1993 lineup, according to the firm and its parent company, Fuji Heavy Industries, Ltd. in Japan.

The Impreza, which will carry the same name in the U.S. and Japanese markets, aims to establish a class-leading balance of performance, comfort and safety while also offering trademark Subaru value and durability. The Impreza sedans and wagons will arrive in U.S. dealer showrooms this month, and will be sold alongside the Justy, Loyale, Legacy and SVX.

The Impreza aims to establish a class-leading balance of performance, comfort and safety while also offering trademark Subaru value and durability.

According to Chuck Worrell, Subaru executive vice president, lessons learned in designing the Legacy and the flagship SVX coupe played an important role in the development of the Impreza.

"By borrowing the outstanding Legacy platform and many of the technological advances implemented in the SVX, the Impreza will compete in the subcompact segment armed with class-leading levels of performance, value, quietness and safety," Worrell said.

Impreza sedans and wagons will be offered in L and LS trim levels, in front and all-wheel drive and with five-speed manual and four-speed electronic automatic transmissions.

Superior traction is achieved through a host of design considerations coupled with either of the front-wheel (FWD) or two all-wheel drive (AWD) systems. Both FWD and AWD Impreza models benefit from the horizontally-opposed engine's low center of gravity, a lock at first gear for slipper roads, the unique four-speed electronic automatic transmission and on LS models, four-wheel disc brakes with ABS.

In addition to its superior traction and structural integrity, safety features include standard driver's-side airbag, adjustable three-point manual seat belts and the unique Subaru hill holder which affords manual transmission-equipped models easy first gear starts on steep inclines.

The Impreza is powered by a 1.8-liter, 110 hp, four-valve, SOHC, horizontally-opposed aluminum four-cylinder engine with multi-point fuel injection. The engine system was designed for superior low-end power for daily driving and ease of maintenance and serviceability for low cost ownership.

To achieve leading levels of ride comfort, handling and control, the Impreza features a four-wheel independent suspension, power rack and pinion steering and power brakes. Impreza L models are equipped with disc front and drum rear brakes while LS models incorporate four-wheel disc brakes with four-channel ABS.

The suspension's negative scrub and anti-drive and anti-squat geometry help give both the front and all-wheel drive equipped models excellent stability.

Crucial in the subcompact segment is utilization of available interior space, and the Impreza excels in that department, with class-leading front legroom and headroom and total EPA Interior Volume.

All Subaru automobile, including the Impreza, are covered by a three-year, 36,000-mile limited warranty.

1993 Honda Civic Coupe

Eye-catching design makes this car a future best seller

KEANE ON WHEELS
By Tom Keane

When push comes to shove, I prefer a four-door sedan to a coupe. I may reconsider my priorities; I just drove the 1993 Honda Civic Coupe.

Last year, Honda redesigned their Civic hatchback, sedan and Si models; now they have added a coupe. Why it took them so long to make this addition, I'll never know. This car is more attractive than the other models because of its sporty appearance. It is such an eye-catcher, I wouldn't be surprised if the coupe becomes the best seller of the line.

The Civic Coupe is available in two models, DX and EX. The EX I drove had the option package, which included a passenger-side airbag. Not many cars in this price class offer dual airbags. Although the base price for the DX is $10,350, the EX model with the option package is a lot higher: $15,100. It has everything except anti-lock brakes .

The EX model is equipped with a 4-cylinder, 16-valve engine that produces 125 horsepower. This engine has been around for about five years and each year Honda makes slight improvements. Linked to an automatic transmission, the performance is above par, but having driven other Honda cars equipped with this engine, I think a manual transmission in the coupe would make an exciting combination. Besides, the manual transmission (standard) is about $750 cheaper.

Typical of all Honda vehicles, road visibility is outstanding. Honda designers seem to focus on providing excellent visibility by either making the seats higher or keeping the instrument panel and the hood line low.

Honda uses a double wishbone suspension system on this car. It not only smooths out a bumpy ride, but it provides extra stability when zooming over hilly roads. The front stabilizer bar improves the handling to the point that I

1993 GMC Truck Sonoma

Pontiac, Mich. — Compact pickups have been around for years. Popular for their versatility and efficiency. these smaller trucks get the job done for thousands of buyers. Like the full-size GMC Truck Sierra, a Sonoma strength is depth of character. GMC Truck offers tremendous flexibility and choice A high-performance towing machine can be equipped to trailer up to 6,000 pounds. Work trucks can be ordered to handle a 1,900-lb. payload. A tough and rugged 4x4 can be fully outfitted for the outback right from the factory.

GMC Truck Sonoma

Sonoma provides buyers with a choice of purposeful powertrain combinations. The compact pickup market includes several large segments, from basic transportation to work and recreational trucks. All require different powertrain characteristics and GMC Truck delivers with six purpose-driven choices.

Standard on all two-wheel-drive models. the 2.5-liter in-line four-cylinder is the Sonoma mileage champ. Teamed with the improved five-speed manual transmission. proposed 1993 EPA estimates show the combination achieving 23 mpg city/27 mpg highway. With 105 horsepower on tap, power was not sacrificed for fuel efficiency. The 2.5-liter can also be teamed with the optional, non-electronic 4L60 four-speed automatic transmission.

Standard on all four-wheel-drive models and available on two-wheel-drive vehicles, the 4.3-liter V6 (LB4) brings big displacement power to the Sonoma line. Matched to a New Venture Gear five-speed manual transmission, this engine produces five more horsepower and five more lb.-ft. of torque than it did in 1992. and is now rated at 165 horsepower at 4,000 rpm and 235 lb.-ft. torque at 2,800 rpm.

With the choice of six engine/transmission combinations. Sonoma's strength in the compact pickup segment is its powertrain options. Buyers benefit by having the ability to choose the powertrain they need to get the job done.

To accommodate the front half shafts, four-wheel-drive models use computer-selected torsion bars up front. This design features less unsprung mass compared to competitive systems that use a solid front axle. Distinct Sonoma benefits include a smoother ride and reduced tire wear. Four-wheel-drive models utilize the same rear suspension as two-wheel-drive models.

In 1989, rear-wheel anti-lock brakes (RWAL) were made standard on every Sonoma. The system cured a common problem associated with unladen pickups — rear-wheel lockup — under hard, emergency-situation braking. The RWAL system prevents the rear tires from locking or skidding by modulating rear brake line pressure.

Sonoma's RWAL acts on power-assisted front disc and rear drum brakes. The anti-lock system functions in two-wheel drive. and the brakes act in a conventional manner in four-wheel drive.

Sonoma is available in two cab styles, the traditional Regular Cab and the roomier Club Coupe. Both cabs are available in standard SL trim, a sporty SLS outfit and top-of-the-line SLE formal wear. Box lengths of 6.1 and 7.4 ft. are available on Regular-Cab models. Of course, the Sonoma line would not be complete without the choice of two- or four-wheel drive.

1993 Dodge Stealth

The 1993 Dodge Stealth sports coupe. an image and performance leader for Dodge, is an extraordinary example of advanced engineering, inside and out.

Four models are available—Base, Stealth ES, Stealth R/T and Stealth R/T Turbo—each with distinctive styling to satisfy the individual tastes and budgets of a wide range of buyers.

The ultimate model, Dodge Stealth R/T Turbo, has a standard 300 horsepower, 3.0-liter DOHC 24-valve MPI twin intercooled turbo V-6 engine. For 1993, this engine is further improved with a forged crankshaft and four-bolt main bearings.

It combines this with a five-speed manual overdrive transaxle, all-wheel-drive with center differential and viscous coupling, four-wheel hydraulic-assist steering that activates at speeds over 30 mph, four-wheel anti-lock brakes, driver-side air bag and three-point belts for all occupants.

The other three models — Base Stealth, Stealth ES and Stealth R/T — are offered with graduating mechanical and convenience sophistication and optional equipment availability.

The Base Stealth and step-up Stealth ES, for example, sport the same muscular exterior body contours, interior look and feel as the Stealth R/T and R/T Turbo — but with their own distinctive styling cues — and offer a majority of the same standard features, including driver-side air bag and three-point belts for all occupants, four-wheel high-performance power-assisted disc brakes that are vented front and rear and power-assisted rack and pinion steering.

The Base Stealth is powered by a naturally-aspirated 3.0-liter V-6 engine capable of a peak 164 horsepower at 5,500 rpm and 185 pound-feet of torque at 4,000 rpm, providing a performance potential that equals or exceeds any sports car in its price range.

Four models are available, each with distinctive styling to satisfy the individual tastes and budgets of a wide range of buyers.

Stealth ES and Stealth R/T are each equipped with a naturally-aspirated 3.0-liter 24-valve DOHC V-6 engine that will deliver 222 horsepower at 6,000 rpm and 201 pound-feet of torque at 4,500 rpm, and is coupled with a five-speed manual overdrive transaxle. A four-speed automatic transaxle is optional on Base Stealth, Stealth ES, and Stealth RT.

Stealth's other optional equipment on selected models includes AM/FM stereo radio with cassette (or compact disc) with four speakers; security alarm and — new for 1993 — remote keyless entry system; leather seats; tailgate wiper/washer; rear spoiler for Stealth and ES models, plus "SOFERA" styled, molded composite-face wheels.

In addition, the sill molding formerly restricted to the ES model is now standard.

Leaking exhaust systems can be fatal

OWNERS AUTO KNOW

By Don Chaiken

Leaking exhaust system could have deadly c onsequences.

The deep-throated rumble of a sporty exhaust note may be an exhilarating call to the road for many. The raucous sputter of a leaking exhaust system, however, is only a loud annoyance to others and a clear signal of serious danger to you.

Your vehicle's exhaust system is designed to carry the hot and noxious exhaust gases from the engine past the passenger compartment and vent them safely behind your moving car or truck. In all modern vehicles equipped with a catalytic converter, the exhaust gases are also further purified as they pass through the catalyst on their journey from engine to tailpipe.

A leak in the exhaust system between the engine and the catalytic converter means that nonpurified exhaust is venting to the atmosphere. Even more serious, any leak in the system means deadly exhaust gases may be filtering into the passenger compartment as you drive. This is extremely critical this time of year when much driving is done with the windows closed, reducing the amount of fresh air entering the passenger compartment.

All automotive exhaust — even that which has passed through a catalytic converter — contains carbon monoxide, an odorless, deadly gas.

Inspect your vehicle's exhaust system regularly — four times a year at least. Check the system immediately if you notice a change in the sound of the exhaust note or if you have reason to suspect the system may have been damaged. Your vehicle's exhaust system gets very hot with use — several hundred degrees hot. Perform all exhaust inspections and maintenance only on a cooled system. To gain access and visibility to most of the components, you may have to raise your car. Chock the wheels at one end of the car and jack up the other. Then place the car on safety stands. Never work beneath a vehicle that is supported by only a jack.

Given the rust and debris that's part of the exhaust system's environment, wear safety glasses when working beneath your car and a hat and work gloves are advisable. Begin at the engine end of the exhaust and work your way back. Check that there are no signs of leakage between the exhaust manifold itself and the engine. Dark, sooty or burned looking fan-shaped areas on the engine surface indicate a leak. Have the gasket between the engine and manifold replaced. On V-type engines, there are two exhaust manifolds.

Next, check the connection of the manifold to the exhaust pipe. This connection is typically spring-loaded to allow for the movement of the rest of the exhaust system as the car's body bounces up and down as you drive. There may be slight movement at this connection if you try to jiggle the exhaust pipe. However, the securing nuts or bolts should be tight with no signs of leakage.

Again, V-type engines will have two exhaust pipes — one coming from each manifold. These may connect to a single exhaust pipe or, on sporty cars, continue on as two separate and complete exhaust systems. All must be thoroughly checked.

Continue back along the exhaust pipe, inspecting it for holes — even tiny pinholes — dents and cracks. There should be none. Check that the exhaust pipe is securely connected to the catalytic converter, which looks like a flattened muffler. Check it for damage and signs of leaking exhaust.

From the catalyst, move back along the next exhaust pipe toward the muffler. Many exhaust systems employ two mufflers after the catalytic converter to reduce noise without severely reducing engine performance. Each muffler and all connecting pipes must be inspected.

As you check the components, probe suspiciously rusty sections. If you can poke through the rust — jabbing at the pipe or muffler with an old screwdriver — the component must be replaced.

However, if an otherwise sound exhaust pipe has one small rusted or damaged section, you can replace just that damaged area using pre-cut exhaust pipe made for the purpose. Replacement sections of various lengths are available at auto parts stores.

Check each clamp and every connection between sections of pipe and between pipes and mufflers. Loose clamps should be tightened, if possible; replaced, if not. Also check the security of the various hangers used along the entire length of the exhaust system to keep the various components from clanging against the underbody, drivetrain and suspension as you drive. The exhaust system hangers vary from large, thick reinforced rubber straps attached to clamps to heavy rubber "donuts" slipped over metal fingers on the exhaust. Grasp the exhaust pipe or muffler near each hanger and try to rock the exhaust system. It should move slightly, without hitting any part of the car. Replace any cracked, torn or loose hangers.

Exhaust systems, along with brakes and suspension parts, take the most punishement in short term driving. Take note of exhaust odor as it may indicate a problem. The rotten-egg spell that oftentimes comes from catalytic convertrs may indicate an engine problem or that the converter is malfuntioning.

1993 Mercedes-Benz 600SEC

Sporty slopes create distinction

MONTVALE, N.J. — The 1993 introduction of the Mercedes-Benz 600SEC sets the standard for luxury coupes, just as last year's debut of the 600SEL established a new benchmark for luxury sedans.

The 600SEC coupe, the new Mercedes flagship model, has the same 6.0-liter V12 engine which powers the 600SEL sedan.

While the 600SEC and the new V8-powered 500SEC are obviously Mercedes automobiles, the familiar look has been subtly changed.

The sloping grille has horizontal vanes and the Mercedes star in its center, like the SL roadsters. The large flush headlights wrap into the fenders and the bumpers are integrated into the body.

The coupe's distinctive front end slopes back to the relatively high rear deck, to produce a subtle wedge shape. The strong forward rake of the rear roof pillar and the large wheels and tires give the coupe a sporty look.

Sportiness is also conveyed inside where there are four individual leather seats which were specifically designed for the new coupe.

Both front seats feature 12-way power adjustment with three-position memory and integrated head restraint. The rear seats have head restraints that can be electrically lowered by the driver for maximum visibility when the seats are empty.

Also unique to the coupe are a special leather-covered steering wheel with perforated leather sections in the grip areas.

Air bags for both the driver and front passenger and ETR emergency tensioning retractors that take slack out of the shoulder belts in a strong frontal impact are standard in the SECs.

While individual climate controls for driver and front passenger are increasingly common among luxury cars, the 600SEC offers individual controls for all four occupants. The electronic climate-control system also has an activated charcoal filter that removes pollutants and odors from incoming air.

The V12 engine is rated at 389 horsepower and 420 pounds-feet of torque, making the 600SEC the most powerful production coupe in Mercedes history. The V8 engine in the 500SEC is rated at 315 horsepower and 347 pounds-feet of torque. Both vehicles are equipped with four-speed automatic transmissions.

In track testing, the 600SEC has gone from 0 to 60 mph in 5.9 seconds; the 500SEC takes 6.5 seconds.

Both engines have four valves per cylinder with computer-controlled variable intake camshaft timing. Variable valve timing maintains peak power and efficiency throughout the engine speed range, while reducing exhaust emissions.

The electronic fuel injection system on both engines uses a sophisticated "hot-wire" airflow sensor which provides very precise matching of the fuel flow to engine requirements. That, in combination with knock-sensor ignition control, allows a 10.0 to 1 compression ratio for improved engine efficiency.

The coupe chassis has a double-wishbone front suspension with separate coil springs and shock absorbers. Precise steering control is provided by the speed-sensitive recirculating-ball power steering.

The rear suspension utilizes the Mercedes' patented five-link design which has been tuned to provide quick and precise handling with no compromise in ride quality.

You might be surprised by our foreign exchange rate.

Odd as it may sound, the more Saturns we build, the more imports we drive. It's become a real pattern. An import drives in, a Saturn drives out. Another one comes in, another Saturn goes out. Of course, starting at $12,795,* there's no mystery why.

1993 Cadillac Allante

Brand new features for a brand new year

DETROIT — America's only luxury two-seat roadster and flagship vehicle of Cadillac Motor Car Division, the Allante reaffirms its position of technological leadership for 1993 with a comprehensive package of engineering advancements.

Allante has built a tradition of pioneering automotive technology for Cadillac since its introduction in 1987. Allante was the first Cadillac to feature four-wheel anti-lock brakes as standard equipment, the first to offer Traction Control, and the first front-wheel-drive vehicle outfitted with a 200 horsepower V8 engine. Its Italian-crafted Pininfarina body also helped pioneer advanced manufacturing techniques.

Introduced in January as a 1993 model, Allante was the first Cadillac to be equipped with the new 32-valve, 295 bhp Northstar V8 engine, a new four-speed automatic transmission and an array of other innovative technical refinements, including Road Sensing Suspension, Speed Sensitive Steering, Short/Long Arm rear suspension and a new generation Traction Control system. Continuing in the Allante tradition, these new features deliver leading-edge performance with unparalleled smoothness, luxury and control.

Cadillac Allante

Engine and powertrain

An intensive, four-year development process created Allante's Northstar 4.6-liter engine and 4T80-E transmission. The powertrain team has set new standards for the world in refinement and performance, quality and reliability, and quiet, smooth operation.

Both the engine and transmission for the next generation of Cadillacs are precision crafted to meet the desires and expectations of the international luxury car customer in every aspect.

Northstar is the first all-new Cadillac V8 engine in more than a decade. Incorporating four overhead camshafts, the 4.6-liter V8 delivers peak output of 295 horsepower at 6,000 rpm and 290 lbs-ft of torque at 4,400 rpm.

The four-camshaft, 32-valve engine powers the 1993 Allante to a 0-60 mph clocking in less than 7.0 seconds and a top speed of 150 mph.

Engineering innovations found in the all-aluminum die cast Northstar V8 include highly efficient compound-geometry valve/port designs, a high-density aluminum lower crankcase casting for uniform strength and quiet operation, and "quiet coil" Direct Ignition System designed to operate at high rpm levels without loss of spark synchronization.

The engine's dual stream injector Fluid Induction System is another advanced innovation. The Fluid Induction System is isolated from underhood heat sources and actually cools the fuel during operation, enhancing performance and hot engine restarts. Fully enclosed, it operates silently, contributing further to Allante's quiet performance.

Allante's 4T80-E transmission also is completely new for 1993. The result is an uncompromising and completely balanced powertrain system.. SEE ALLANTE, Page 12

Allante sets new standards in refinement and performance

Fully electronically controlled, the four-speed automatic transmission was designed exclusively to handle the increased torque output of the Northstar engine while providing smooth shifting under varying driving conditions.

Innovations continue in the 4T80-E transmission. It is the only transmission to feature a controlled-flow, dual lubricating system, which provides proper lubrication under all operating modes with the capability for sustained high-speed driving. Freewheeling clutches ensure consistent shifting quality.

In addition to its new performance features, the new 4T80-E transmission has variable pressure pumps and a dry pump fluid system which improves fuel economy.

The 4T80-E design also makes extensive use of preassembled components for more precise assembly and quality. Both the engine and transmission are controlled by one of the world's most advanced powertrain management systems.

Allante's Powertrain Control Module allows the engine and transmission electronics to communicate with each other. By modulating engine power during shifting, the system helps to reduce wear, increase fuel economy and deliver smooth power.

The transmission shift point (redline) is 6,500 rpm. At 6,700 rpm, fuel delivery is cut off to the engine.

Fitted with extremely high memory capacity, Allante's advanced electronics system can adjust to the driving habits of individual drivers and other variables affecting engine and transmission performance. The result is optimum transmission performance under all conditions.

Chassis and suspension

Innovative chassis and suspension technologies contribute to Allante's superior performance capabilities.

The Allante pioneers a new Short/Long Arm (SLA) rear suspension design, a highly sophisticated ride control system called Road Sensing Suspension, Speed Sensitive Steering, upgraded Traction Control and enhanced braking power.

Each of these technological developments contributes to Allante's superb balance, resulting in a state-of-the-art luxury roadster that delivers high performance with complete driver confidence and control.

Allante's power four-wheel-disc brakes feature larger rotors and calipers for 1993, providing balanced braking capability and direct control. The Bosch ABS II Antilock Braking System is standard.

The chassis also includes a new high-density polyethylene (HDPE) 23-gallon fuel tank that provides improved crashworthiness, is less susceptible to corrosion, improved fuel temperature control and a new running loss vapor control system that greatly reduces fuel vapor emissions into the atmosphere.

Exterior and interior

The 1993 Cadillac Allante features additional enhancements on the exterior and interior, including one-piece door glass, new exterior colors, new orthopedically designed seats and entertainment system.

Allante's folding soft top is ergonomically designed with gas spring-assisted opening and power fastening for ease of operation. The convertible top is outfitted with improved fabric for greater durability and improved appearance. A new maroon-colored soft top is available.

Allante owners may also select the optional removal aluminum convertible hardtop.

The new system's capability for engine control has been enhanced for even greater performance.

Three new exterior clearcoat paint colors, Pearl Red, Pearl Flax and Polo Green, are offered for the 1993 Allante, bringing the total to eight available colors.

Allante exterior features include a headlamp washer system, new electric, heated rearview mirrors with a foldaway design, and blue tinted glass.

On the inside, Allante offers a comprehensive array of comfort, control and luxury features.

Allante's new Nuance leather-trimmed bucket seats have been orthopedically designed to provide superior lateral support and a wider seating area for greater comfort. For easier access to the rear storage area, the seats now release freely.

The floor console also is improved with new features. The console includes a transmission shift selector that is slightly offset 20 degrees toward the driver for ease of shifting.

The lockable console armrest features fuel door, trunk lid release and coin holder. New for 1993 is a dual cupholder that folds into the storage armrest. The armrest also has provisions for cassette and compact disc storage.

Allante features power side windows with an express-down feature, electronic climate control, electric door locks with a central unlocking system, cruise control, controlled-cycle windshield wipers and a standard driver's side Supplemental Inflatable Restraint (airbag) system.

For listening enjoyment to match its other performance attributes, the Allante offers a new eight-speaker audio system which an AMAX high fidelity AM Stereo/FM Stereo radio, and includes compact disc and cassette player.

Muscle cars flex bigger muscles in '93

General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. will compete in a horse race in the 1990s, as both companies rejuvenate their pony cars

General Motors' Chevrolet and Pontiac divisions recently introduced their redesigned muscle cars, the Chevrolet Camaro and Pontiac Firebird. The cars will be in dealer showrooms this spring. Ford's revamped Mustang won't be on the market until a year later, but the automaker has provided clues to what's in store for the car through a recently introduced concept car.

Completely redesigned for 1993, the Camaro and Firebird are longer, wider and taller than their predecessors with more power under the hood.

The windshield, with its steep rake of 68 degrees, highlights the sporty styling of the cars. The body panels, except for the rear quarter panels and hood, are plastic.

GM executives say 90 percent of the content of the cars is new, including new engines, body structure and standard equipment.

The Camaro is available in the standard version and the uplevel Z28. Chevrolet General Manager Jim Perkins said that a convertible will be added in the 1994 model year. The base Camaro is priced at $13,399. The high-performance Z28 carries a price tag of $16,779.

Pontiac's entries consist of a base version, the Formula and Trans Am. They have base price tags of $13,995, $17,995 and $21,395, respectively. The top-end of price shouldn't go much beyond $22,000 since Pontiac offers only four options on the Trans Am: automatic transmission, leather seats, compact dis player and removable hatch roofs.

The standard Camaro and base Firebird are powered by a 3.4-liter V-6 engine that produces 160 horsepower, 20 horsepower more than the 3.1-liter V-6 engine it replaces but with better fuel economy.

The Camaro Z28 and Pontiac's Formula and Trans Am are equipped with the 5.7-liter, 275-horsepower V-8 engine that also powers the Chevrolet Corvette. The engine produces 35 more horsepower than the engine it replaces. Features of the cars include standard anti-lock brakes, solar ray glass and dual airbags.

Pontiac General Manager John Middlebrook notes the standard anti-theft system and airbags should help contain insurance costs.

The Camaro and Firebird were first introduced at the height of the muscle car era in the mid-1960s. This is the fourth generation. The last remake was in 1982.

Ford will dip into its past for styling cues from the original 1965 Mustang when it introduces the new Mustang as a 1995 model.

Ford recently unveiled a concept car, the Mustang Mach III, at auto shows in Detroit and Los Angeles. Ford executives said the concept car provides a glimpse into what is in store for the next-generation Mustang, a prime competitor to the Camaro and Firebird.

The Mustang Mach III concept car blends styling cues of the classic Mustang with 1990s design and technology. Fritz Mayhew, chief design executive for Ford's North American Design, said people are nostalgic about the Mustang.

The Mach III is an open-air roadster built with carbon fiber body panels. The concept car sports a short, low windshield, wraparound rear bumper and 19-inch five-spoke wheels. The distinctive open grille, characteristic three-bar taillights, air scoop and lines along the door panels are reminiscent of the 1960s Mustang.

However, under the hood, the Mach III is powered by a 1990s engine, in keeping with the Mustang's performance tradition. It is equipped with a supercharged 4.6-liter V-8 engine rated at 450 horsepower. The powertrain includes a "cold pack" manifold intercooler and uses a dual exhaust system. Engineers estimate 0-to-60 mph performance at less than five seconds.

A major technological innovation demonstrated on the Mach III is adjustable pedals. The brake, clutch and accelerator pedals have a three-inch range of adjustment to provide greater driving comfort for short- and long-legged drivers.

The Mach III also features a six-speed manual transmission with overdrive, anti-lock brakes, dual front airbags, 1,000-watt audio system and flexible fuel capability. It runs on either regular gasoline, M85 or any combination of the two fuels.

The next-generation Mustang goes on sale in April 1994, 30 years after the original Mustang's debut. The redesign will be the first since 1978. It is believed the 1995 Mustang will come in one body style, a two-door hatchback. Both ride and handling will be improved.

It will be available as a base model and GT model. The new base Mustang is expected to be powered by Ford's 3.8-liter, V-6 engine, which would replace the current 2.3-liter, four-cylinder engine. The GT likely will be powered by the 4.9-liter V-8 in the current model but with more horsepower, putting it over 200 mph. Speculation is that later versions will be equipped with an even more powerful engine felt like I was driving a sports car. A quiet sports car, that is; the road noise coming up through the floor boards was minimal.

A quiet ride in this car is appreciated, especially when listening to the sound system. It has a six-speaker system that makes a slow ride through congested traffic much more enjoyable. Some of my favorite cassette tapes never sounded so good.

The air conditioning/heating system is easy to reach and operate. In fact, all the controls are within easy reach. The ergonomics are well thought out, and the clarity of the instrument panel is excellent.

The comfort of the front seats is about average, and the back seats are a little small and difficult to get into, except for little kids. Another drawback of the coupe design is opening the doors. Coupes require doors that are wider than a sedan, thus they require extra berth. In a tight parking space, it can be difficult to enter and exit.

Adding to the interior comforts are power operated windows, door locks, and power mirrors. Even the moonroof can be opened and closed with the touch of a button. It also has cruise control, cup holders, and even a light on the passenger's vanity mirror.

The trunk is another area that is thoughtfully designed. The low lift-over trunk lid makes loading cargo easier, and a split-back on the rear seat provides access for additional space. But what I don't understand is why it doesn't have a warning signal when the headlights are left on, like it does when opening the door with the key in the ignition. Since most road service calls are for dead batteries, this thoughtful feature should be mandatory.

The Civic Coupe EX is a welcomed addition, and could create interested crowds in the Honda showroom. I just hope they don't push and shove.

Next week: 1993 Cadillac Eldorado Touring Coupe Big on safety: An important factor to consider when it comes to a safe car is size. According to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, people in small cars are injured more often and more severely than those in large cars. In relation to their numbers on the road, small cars account for more than twice as many deaths as large cars. It should be noted, however, that most safety equipment, such as anti-lock brakes and airbags, originates on the more expensive, larger cars.

Dousing the fire: To combat the rumors that the demise of Oldsmobile was imminent, a teaser-type TV commercial was made to show the 1994 Olds Aurora, their next new car. The company is also touting its new 250 horsepower Aurora engine, which they claim will lead them into the next century.

End of the line: Now that the Cadillac Allante has become a world class car, the company has decided to discontinue it in July. The $60,000 luxury convertible hasn't generated enough sales to make it profitable.
